47 vi. — Of racing club.—Resp. sued applts., a racing club, for the value of a coat which she had left at applts.' cloak-room at the racecourse, & which disappeared from there. Resp. was holder of a ticket for the race meeting, but paid nothing for the deposit of the coat. There were hung on the walls of the waiting-room notices stating that while every care would be taken of deposited articles the club accepted no responsibility for same.—Held: there was a

The rules provided that "No claim in respect of any property alleged to have been left or lost in the club-house will be entertained, & neither the club nor the proprietors shall be responsible for any article of value so left or lost in the club, but small articles of value may, on application to the secretary, be deposited in the safe, but neither the club nor the proprietors shall be under any liability in respect of such deposits." The jewellery was stolen from the safe by the night porter employed by defts., who before engaging him had obtained references from two persons by whom he had been employed, but apparently had made no inquiry as to his previous career. After the theft it was discovered that he was an old & dangerous criminal:—Held: defts. had not used due care in engaging the night porter, & as the above rule did not negative defts.' liability for damage due to their neglect to take such care, they were liable for the loss.—*WILLIAMS v. 172 iii. — — — — —.]—A cold storage co. gave a receipt for hops stored with them which bore, "The co. will use every endeavour in taking care of all goods consigned to its charge, but will not be held responsible for any damage whatsoever. . . . All goods are received subject to the conditions on the back of this receipt." The first condition on the back was, "The co. will use every endeavour in taking care of all goods consigned to its charge, but will not be held responsible for loss or damage to goods stored through maintaining too high or too low a temperature in the stores, failure of machinery, buildings or plant fire, or any other cause whatsoever other than theft"—Held: the contract meant that defenders promised to do their utmost to take care of the hops, but that, if their efforts were unsuccessful for any cause other than theft, they were not to be liable in damages.—BALLINGALL & SON v. DUNDRE ICK & COLD STORAGE CO., [1924] S. C. 238.—SCOT.

Pltf. took his bicycle to the cloak-room at a station of deft. co. for the purpose of depositing it there, paid to the official the charge demanded, & received a ticket purporting to be a cloak-room ticket upon the face of which was legibly printed the following condition: "The co. will not be in any way responsible in respect of any article deposited the value whereof exceeds £5, unless at the time of deposit the true value & nature of the article shall have been declared, & 1d. per £1 sterling of the declared value be paid for each day or part of a day in addition to the ordinary cloak-room charges." The value of the bicycle exceeded £5, but pltf. made no declaration of value or additional payment. The bicycle was standing at the open door of the cloak-room, but the official told pltf. to leave it there as he would put it away. When pltf. returned to claim the bicycle it could not be found. In an action by pltf. against defts. for the value of the bicycle defts. relied upon the above condition. It was found in effect that pltf. knew that there was printing on the ticket, that he believed it contained a condition, & that defts. had done sufficient to give pltf. notice of the condition; & it was not found & there was no evidence to show that pltf.'s assent to the condition had been obtained by fraud. It was further found that owing to the negligence of the official in leaving the bicycle at the door of the cloak-room it had been stolen:—Held: (1) assuming that the condition was unreasonable which, semble, it was not, defts. were not, merely on that ground, prevented from relying upon it, inasmuch as it was not so extravagant as to imply that pltf.'s assent to it had been obtained by fraud, or so irrelevant as to be foreign to the contract; (2) defts. were protected by the condition, although the bicycle had not been deposited within the cloak-room; (3) on the above facts & findings judgment should be entered for defts.—*GIBAUD v. 218a. Agreement to insure chattel—Against "all risks."—Defts. hired a crane-barge from pltf., one of the terms of the contract being that pltf. would insure the crane against all risks, defts. paying the premium. Pltf. took out a policy covering, as they thought, all risks. The crane, when proceeding to lift a load, broke away from its bedplate & fell over & was damaged. It was then found that the accident was not covered by the policy, & defts. refused to pay for the damage. In an action for breach of contract:—Held: though defts. had failed to discharge the onus which was upon them, of proving that what happened was not the result of negligence by their servants, yet, as the agreement in regard to insurance was intended to be an arrangement for the benefit of both parties, & as the accident came within the description "all risks" & defts. had stipulated that they were not to bear those risks, the action failed.—*BRICE & SONS v. In case of failure to pay any of the instalments on due date, previous payments will be considered null & void, & the lorries are not considered as sold until the final payment has been received. The purchaser has no right to mortgage or dispose of any lorries until the full amount has been paid & [plff.] or his nominee has the right to seize the lorries wherever they may be. The consideration money is to be paid as under. As against the payment of Rs.5,000 I have to-day given to you delivery of all the nine lorries, & also a letter addressed to the Commissioner of Police to transfer the lorries to your name"—Held: the agreement was an agreement for sale.—COLE v. an order from resp. for a motor car, which was written upon one of applt.'s order forms, the order describing the same but not stating in the description whether it was to be a new or a second-hand car. In the order resp. agreed to pay a deposit & the balance of the purchase money by instalments & to execute applt.'s usual form of hire-purchase agreement. On the order form it was stated that all new cars were sold subject to a guarantee which was set out, which did not include a guarantee that the car was new; & that no guarantee was given with second-hand cars. Resp. also signed applt.'s usual form of hire-purchase agreement, by which the co. agreed to let & the hirer to take the car described therein, the description being similar to that in the order form, & repeated the provisions as to guarantee above referred to; & this agreement excluded any implied "warranty undertaking or agreement other than is herein set forth." The car delivered by applt. to resp. was not new:—Held: the contract between the parties was constituted by the order & the hire-purchase agreement; & that, when read together, they constituted an agreement for the sale, & not merely for the hire, of the car.—MARCUS

The hirer could become the owner of the truck on payment in full of the instalments & a rupee extra. On failure on part of the hirer to pay any instalment as it became due, the owner was entitled to seize the truck & credit its value as against the amount due but subject to a condition that the owner in no case would credit the hirer with more than the amount still due on the contract:—Held: the agreement though in form is one of hire, its object is to provide for a contract of sale in which security to the seller is provided for due payment of the purchase price.—MAUNG BA OH v. 248 vi. ————]—What is payment.]—Under a hire-purchase agreement the hirers made an initial payment & gave to the owners bills of exchange for the total amount of the monthly payments as collateral security. These bills were subsequently discounted by the owners:—Held: no conditional pay-any formal notice, put an end to the hiring & retake possession of the piano, & that the hirer should keep the piano in his own custody. At a date when the hirer had paid all the instalments then due, but before he had paid the total price, he sold the piano to deft., who bond fide believed that the hirer was the absolute owner. The hirer having subsequently got the piano back into his own possession & having again disposed of it, but having, in the meantime, kept up the payment of the instalments, *pltf.*s, on ascertaining the facts, claimed damages from deft. for conversion:—Held: the sale by the hirer to deft. was not ipso facto a repudiation of the hire-purchase agreement, as *pltf.*s had never accepted the repudiation, but it transferred whatever interest the hirer had at the time of the sale, & as *pltf.*s were not entitled to the possession of the piano until they elected to put an end to the agreement there was no conversion by deft.—NELSON MURDOCH & Co. v. Wood (1921), 126 L. T. 745; 38 T. L. R. 23; 66 Sol. Jo. (W. R.) 6 D. C.; reversd. on other grounds (1922), 38 T. L. R. 393, O. A.

- 276a. — — — — — At branch where account kept.]—In the absence of special agreement, it is an implied term of the contract between a bank & its customer that the promise of the bank to repay a balance is a promise to repay it at the branch of the bank where the account is kept & not till after demand at that branch. The obligation of the bank is local, although after local demand & refusal to pay the bank is liable to be sued wherever it can be served. When local demand must be met by payment in a foreign currency the remedy available in an English ct. for refusal to pay is a cause of action in damages for breach of contract & not for debt.—*RICHARDSON v. Account opened in assumed name—Payment in of cheque obtained by duress—Payment out on forged cheques—Action by party whose name assumed.]—Pltf. brought an action against deft. bank for £125,000, money had & received by defts. to his use. Pltf.'s case was that an account was opened in his name at a branch of deft. bank by some one other than himself, that a cheque for £150,000 payable to his order was paid into the account, & that on the following day a forged cheque, purporting to be drawn by pltf., for £130,000 was cashed by one H., the balance being afterwards withdrawn by H., by means of other forged cheques. Defts. alleged that the cheque for £150,000 was obtained by a blackmailing conspiracy from one A., who was discovered by one N. with pltf.'s wife in compromising circumstances, & that the proceeds were shared between the conspirators, whom defts. alleged to include, among others, pltf., pltf.'s wife, & H. & N. Pltf. & his wife denied that they took part in any conspiracy, & pltf. said that, when he heard of the relations between his wife & A., he instructed H., who represented himself to be a solr., to take divorce proceedings, & that, when the sum of £25,000 was handed to him by H., he, pltf., passed the amount on to his wife & said that he would have nothing more to do with her, & that he learned later that A. had paid £150,000. Where the bank is authorised so to appropriate the money it acts in doing so as agent of the depositor, & if it fails to carry out its duties as such agent, the loss falls on its principal. was to recover the difference between these two amounts that the action was brought. The jury found that there was a conspiracy to get money from A. by catching him with pltf.'s wife, but that pltf. & his wife were not parties to the conspiracy, that A. was induced to part with the money through fear, & that his parting with it was not free & voluntary:—Held: pltf. never got the property in the cheque for £150,000 & could not sue in conversion, & he had no right to sue in contract because the dealings with deft. bank were not on his behalf, & therefore he had no title to the cheque, & the action failed.—*ROBINSON v. (2) The negligence referred to in the subsect. is negligence in collecting the cheque, not in opening the account. The test is whether the paying in of any given cheque, coupled with the circumstances antecedent & present, was so out of the ordinary course that it ought to have aroused doubt in the banker's mind, & caused him to make inquiries. 387a. ————]—For some years before 1919 one U., a merchant, had a banking account at defts.' bank. In that year he converted himself into a limited co., all the shares being allotted to himself except one, which was held by his wife. A debenture in the form of a floating charge over the assets of the co. was issued to a creditor of U. as a security for his debt. The arts. of assocn. of the co. incorporated Table A. by par. 71 of which the business of the co. is to be managed by the directors. By the arts. U. was appointed sole director. After the formation of the co. U. kept on his private banking account with defts. as before, they having notice that his business had been transferred to the co. The co. had a separate account, which was kept at another bank, but defts. had no knowledge of that fact. U., as sole director, became possessed of a number of cheques, some crossed & others uncrossed, drawn in favour of the co. He indorsed them "A.L.U., Ltd.—A.L.U. sole director," & paid them into his own account with defts. instead of paying them in to the co.'s account with the other bank. Defts., without inquiring whether the co. had a separate banking account, collected the cheques & credited U. with the proceeds, which he misappropriated. When doing so they treated him as being identical with the co., as he owned all the shares, & overlooked the materiality of the cheques being drawn in the co.'s favour & not in his. In an action brought by the co. on behalf of the debentureholder for conversion of the cheques:—Held: (1) defts. were precluded from setting up that U., when paying the cheques in to his own account, was acting within the scope of his apparent authority as agent of the co., upon two grounds: first, that the act of an agent paying his principal's cheques into his own account was so unusual as to put them on inquiry, that they ought to have inquired whether the co. had a separate banking account, & if it had, why the cheques were not paid in to that account, & that their failure to make that inquiry amounted to negligence; & secondly, that U. when paying in the cheques did not purport to act as the co.'s agent, but as being himself the co., & that defts. so treated him; (2) with respect to the cheques which were crossed the omission to inquire about the co.'s banking account disentitled defts. as collecting bankers to the protection afforded by Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (c. 61), s. 82.

to whole account—Position of bank.—Where a bank deposit is made in the name of either of two persons it is a notification that either one may deal with the funds & that the account will be subject to the control of either of them in the absence of special directions. But upon a subsequent notice to the bank by one of such persons that he claims it all, the bank in dealing with the money thereafter in any way affecting such claim acts at its own risk.—HILL v. HOCHRELAGA BANK, [1921] 3 W. W. R. 430.—CAN.

A customer of a bank paid into his account some cheques to which he had no title. Immediately on his so paying them in the bank credited him with the amounts of the cheques in their ledger, but there was no agreement between the bank & the customer that he should be allowed to draw against the cheques before they were cleared, nor did he in fact draw against them until after the bank had received the proceeds:—Held: (3) apart from any question whether the bank had notice of any defect in the customer's title, they were not holders in due course, there being no evidence that they took the cheques for value. The mere fact that bankers credit a customer with the amounts of cheques before they are cleared does not make them holders for value; in order to entitle them to that character there must have been an agreement, express or implied, that the customer should be allowed to draw against the cheques before clearance, & that agreement must have been acted upon.—*UNDERWOOD (A. He did not inform his wife of the joint account, & always drew cheques on the account himself. He died in Nov. 1919. The wife never drew any cheque on the account until shortly before his death, when he was in failing health & unable to attend to business. The bank manager then informed her of the joint account, & advised her to draw a cheque, which she did. The husband had also from time to time made deposits in the joint names of himself & his wife, & in Aug. 1919, consolidated them into one deposit in the joint names. The wife never knew of this deposit until after her husband's death. There was then found among his papers an envelope indorsed with the wife's initials & containing the deposit receipt & a document in which he said: "I would like this paying away at once if possible as under," with a list of names with amounts against them:—Held: the money standing to the credit of both the current account & the deposit account belonged to the wife as survivor, & the document did not raise any presumption that the husband regarded the deposit as his own property.—*Re HARRISON, DAY v. 403a. Loss of right to repayment—Laches.—In May, 1866, one F. deposited £6,000 with a Birmingham branch of deft. bank, upon the terms that he could withdraw the money at any time on giving fourteen days' notice, & that interest should be paid on it at the rate of 6 per cent. for the first three months, & thereafter at the current bank rate for the time being. In Aug. 1866, the bank repaid £2,500 of the £6,000 with interest due to that date, & a note of the payment was indorsed on the deposit receipt. In Nov. 1866, a further indorsement was made showing that all interest then due had been paid, but after that date there was no record of any further payment by the bank of either principal or interest & no record of any demand by F. for payment. F. died in 1893. In 1927 a relative of F. discovered the deposit receipt amongst some old papers, & sent it to the surviving exor. & trustee of F.'s will. He gave deft. bank formal notice to pay the £3,500, balance of the principal £6,000, together with interest, in fourteen days. The bank refused to pay, on the ground that it must be presumed that the deposit must have been repaid long ago. The exor. then brought this action to enforce payment, & the bank pleaded presumption of payment; & although they refused to plead Stat. Limitations, they claimed relief on the ground that F. & his representatives had been guilty of laches:—Held: although defts. could not produce evidence of repayment, the proper inference from all the circumstances was that that money must have been repaid, & the action therefore failed. Bankers' Books Evidence Act, 1879 (c. 11), s. 3, makes an entry in bankers' books prima facie evidence of an account.

She was about to open it, when he took it from her hand & said he would keep it for her & locked it up in his despatch box. After testator's death there was found in his despatch box an envelope containing: (1) A deposit receipt for £500 deposited with his bank in 1914; (2) an order in writing signed by testator directing the bank to pay to G. the sum of £500 then on deposit; & (3) a letter addressed to G.: "You have been very kind to me & I desire to make some return by giving you the amount £500 now on deposit at the . . . bank as per receipt enclosed." The deposit receipt was not indorsed by testator & no notice was given to the bank of any assignment till after his death, the interest on the sum on deposit having been carried by the bank to his current account:—Held: there was a valid & complete gift to G. of the sum on deposit by way of assignment under Jud. Act, 1873, s. 25 (6).—Re WESTERTON, PUBLIC TRUSTEE v. GRAY, [1919] 2 Ch. 104; 88 L. J. Ch. 392; 122 L. T. 264; 63 Sol. Jo. 410.

the question whether the bank receive it as holders for value or as agents for collection is a pure question of fact. The fact that the cheque is immediately credited in the ledger does not necessarily make the bank holders for value. That inference may be rebutted by notices in the pass-book & paying-in slip or other evidence showing that the customer could not draw before clearance.

(2) If the bank receive the cheque as agents for collection & stop payment before it is finally cleared at the clearing house, they can only receive & hold the proceeds as collecting agents for their customer, & not on the ordinary bank relationship of debtor & creditor. Consequently, in a winding up following on the stoppage the liquidator must pay the full proceeds of a cheque cleared after the stoppage to the customer, although it was cleared shortly before the actual winding up.—Re FARROW'S BANK, LTD., [1923] 1 Ch. 41; 92 L. The bank refused payment of the cheque, not because of the state of A.'s current account, but because they doubted A.'s signature on the cheque. A. died before anything further was done:—Held: in the circumstances there had not been any appropriation or dedication of the money in the bank, or any constructive payment of the cheque; & there had been an incomplete gift inter vivos of the amount of the cheque, which gift would not be perfected by the assistance of equity.—*Re SWINBURNE, SUTTON v. When the bill became due it was brought by W., a servant of *pltf.*s, to a partner of pltf. firm, who, at W.'s request, indorsed the bill in blank. W., instead of taking the bill to *pltf.*s' bank for the purpose of collection through the clearing house, presented the bill for payment over the counter to deft. bank & received the money, which he then fraudulently converted & stole. Pltfs. sued defts. to recover the amount of the bill on the grounds of negligence, money had & received, & conversion of the bill. Evidence was given at the trial that there is an almost universal custom at Liverpool that trade bills should be presented through the clearing house for payment to the bank at which they were accepted payable, but evidence was also given that presentation of such bills over the counter, though most unusual, was not irregular:—Held: deft. bank were not liable to *pltf.*s. (1) on the ground of negligence, because no privity of contract existed between defts. & *pltf.*s., & defts. owed no duty to *pltf.*s.; (2) on the ground of money had & received, because the drawing of the bill did not amount to an assignment in favour of the payee of funds of the drawee, as the acceptors had no funds to meet the bill, which was paid out of a loan by defts., & the advice to pay the bill sent by the acceptors to defts. gave no rights to *pltf.*s. as against defts.; (3) defts. were not liable to *pltf.*s. for the conversion of the bill, because the bill was a negotiable instrument, & they paid it in good faith without notice of any defect in title & in accordance with the law merchant. A bank was not bound to make inquiries merely because a bill indorsed in blank or an open cheque was presented for payment over the counter. According to the law merchant such presentation, although unusual, was always recognised as due presentation, sufficient to require the bankers to pay, in the absence of very special circumstances of suspicion.—*AUCHTERONI & Co. v. represented that he had bought goods for them from W., & the co. drew cheques to the aggregate amount of £762 in payment on a South African bank, making them payable to W., & handing them to M. as manager that he might hand them to W. M., instead of doing so, paid the cheques with forged indorsements into his own account with deft. bank which credited him with the amounts & obtained payment from the South African bank. The cheques were signed by two directors, including M., of pltf. co. M. applied the money received from the cheques with the exception of about £272 for W., paying out of the proceeds of five cheques "to order" for £62 10s. each four sums of £60 from his private account to W. One cheque, dated May 27, 1918, for £97 10s., which was payable to "self or order" & signed by M. & a co-director, was refused by the bank, & came back to them after such refusal with M.'s name written in after the word "self," but the alteration was not initialed by both directors, & the addition was in M.'s writing. Pltf. co. repudiated the transactions & sued the bank for damages for conversion of the cheques, or alternatively for money had & received. Deft. bank claimed protection under Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (c. 61), s. 82, & also as holders for value:—Held: (1) the onus of proving that there was no negligence had been discharged by the bank, except as to the five cheques for £62 10s. each; (2) the bank's duty with regard to these five cheques was to have made inquiries, & they were negligent in paying them into M.'s account; (3) the bank was negligent in cashing the cheque of May 27, 1918, as it should have seen that the alteration in it was made without the concurrence of both directors; (4) the evidence was not sufficient to show that M. paid anything out of his private account to W. in respect of the fifth cheque for £62 10s.; (5) there must be judgment for pltf. co. for £2 10s. on four of the cheques "to order" for £62 10s., £62 10s. on the fifth cheque for the same amount, & £97 10s. on the cheque of May 27, 1918, making an aggregate amount of £170.—*SOUCLETTE, LTD. v. Those cheques were then sent to deft. bank for collection, with instructions written by L. on the bank's letter paper requesting deft. bank to place the proceeds of the cheques to the credit of a joint account which L. had opened at deft. bank in the name of himself & his wife. Those instructions having been carried out, the proceeds of the cheques were then collected by L. promptly after they had been paid in. It appeared from the account itself that it was generally in small credit until the arrival of each fraudulent cheque, & there was a failure on the part of deft. bank to make inquiries of pltf. bank as to the regularity of the transactions:—Held: (1) each cheque taken by itself was "issued," being signed & dealt with by persons having ostensible authority to sign & issue it, but the accompanying instructions, signed by L. alone, gave notice of irregularity which destroyed the "holding in due course"; (2) deft. bank were not entitled to rely on Indian Negotiable Instruments Act, s. 131, as their title as holders was defective through notice, so that they were not "true owners" within the sect.; (3) deft. bank had failed to discharge the burden of showing that they had collected without negligence. Examination of L.'s account should have put them on inquiry as to the source from which these payments were made, & *pltf.*s. were entitled to succeed in their claim for conversion; (4) defts. could not set off the amount of the cheques repaid to *pltf.*s. against the amount of the converted cheques.—*LLOYDS BANK v. - 691a. ———— Cheque payable to & indorsed by public official.—A banker to whom a private customer hands, for collection on his account, a cheque payable to & indorsed by a public official is put upon inquiry whether the customer is entitled to the cheque, & acts negligently if he credits the customer with the proceeds of the cheque without having made any such inquiry.

The Overseas Military Forces of Canada engaged in the European war had an estates office in England authorised by the Secretary of State for the Colonies to perform in accordance with statutory conditions the duties of collecting & distributing the estates of members of these forces dying in Europe. A sergeant employed at the office misappropriated during a period of ten months thirty-two cheques of the aggregate value of about £3,900, representing money belonging to the estates of deceased soldiers. Each of the cheques was drawn payable to "The Officer in Charge, Estates Office, Canadian Overseas Military Forces," & was indorsed

PART II. SECT. 12, SUB-SECT. 3.

691i. What is negligence—Defective title of customer—Collection for stranger.—A man unknown to a banker was permitted to open an account with the bank by paying in a deposit of £5 in notes & four crossed cheques for collection, such cheques being made payable to a number or bearer & marked "bank," or "not negotiable," or "bank not negotiable." Without making any inquiry as to the man's title to the cheques the bank collected them. On the following day the man, by an open cheque, drew out almost the whole of the amount to the credit of his account, & paid in for collection four other crossed cheques, including one drawn by pltf. payable to a number or bearer to which the man who paid it in had no title. These four cheques were collected by the bank almost without inquiry.—Held: the circumstances in which the account was opened was such as to put the bank upon inquiry; the duty of inquiry extended to the transactions of the next day & in the absence of reasonable inquiry the bank was guilty of negligence.—*LONDON BANK OF AUSTRALIA, LTD. v. generally by that officer under the same description with a view to its being sent to the Paymaster-General of these forces for payment of the amount to the beneficiaries, or in some cases directly to the beneficiary, & each cheque was crossed generally. The sergeant paid the first two cheques into a branch of debts' bank at which he had a small private account of his own & the rest of them into another branch of the bank which passed them on to the former branch. No inquiry was made at either branch whether he was entitled to the cheques, & at the former branch they were credited to his account & payment of them was received for him. In an action by the Paymaster-General against debts. for damages for conversion of the cheques:—Held: the fact that the cheques were drawn payable to & indorsed by a public official should have put the cashiers of debts. upon inquiry whether their private customer was entitled to the cheques; in crediting the cheques to him without any inquiry the cashiers of both the branches had been guilty of negligence; & therefore debts. were not protected by Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (c. 61), s. 82, from liability to pltf. —*Ross v. 691c. —[In 1922 pltf. were building ships for a firm, L. M. & P., & in connection with that business L. M. & P. sent pltf. a crossed cheque for £8,000. That cheque was duly received at pltf.' office & B., a director, signed a receipt form on the back of the cheque as follows: "L. & M. Shipbuilding Co. T. B. director." Another director of pltf., J., then indorsed the cheque to the order of another co. of which B. was a director, B. & Co. Ltd. The cheque was then indorsed by B. "for & on behalf of B. & Co. T. B. director," & was paid into the account of B. & Co. at a branch of debts.; & subsequently by arrangement between debts. & himself B. drew £2,000 out of the £8,000 thus credited to B. & Co. Ltd. for his own private purposes. J. had no right to indorse the cheque to the order of B. & Co., & B. & Co. had no right to the proceeds of the cheque. In 1923 pltf. went into liquidation, & the liquidator on examining the accounts found that the cheque for £8,000 had been misapplied, & also that other sums were owing by B. to pltf. The liquidator thereupon proceeded by a misfeasance summons against J. & B., & upon that summons an order was made for £450 against J. &

£10,450 against B. The money was not paid, & pltf. brought an action against debts. for conversion of the £8,000 cheque:—Held: there was clear evidence of negligence on the part of debts., & Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (c. 61), s. 81, gave no defence to the claim.—*LONDON & MONTROSE SHIPBUILDING & REPAIRING CO., LTD. v. 756a. Credit conditional on tender of approved insurance policy.—What is approved insurance policy.]—Bankers issued a letter of credit to English sellers of 100 tons of steel plates to Dutch buyers. By the terms of the letter of credit the bankers agreed to honour the sellers' draft for the amount of the purchase-money, which included freight & insurance to R., provided the draft were accompanied by an approved insurance policy covering the shipment of the goods. The sellers presented their draft accompanied by a certificate of insurance which did not contain & did not offer any means of ascertaining the full terms of the insurance. In an action by the sellers against the bankers for not honouring the draft :—Held : the certificate was not an "approved insurance policy" within the meaning of the letter of credit, & the bankers were justified in refusing to honour the draft. An approved insurance policy is one to which no reasonable objection can be made.—SCOTT (DONALD H.) & Co., LTD. v. BARCLAYS BANK, LTD., [1923] 2 K. B. 1; 92 L. J. K. B. 772; 129 L. T. 108; 39 T. L. 756b. Irrevocable letter of credit.—Payment for goods.—Refusal of bank to pay invoices.—Liability of bank to seller.]—Pltfs. entered into a contract with buyers in C. to manufacture & ship machinery by instalments over several months at agreed prices, but subject to a stipulation that should the cost of labour or wages increase, there should be a corresponding increase in the purchase price. The buyers were also to open a "confirmed irrevocable credit" in favour of pltfs. with a bank in this country, & to pay for each shipment as it took place. In pursuance of this arrangement defts., who were the buyers' bankers in L., wrote to pltfs. stating that they would pay bills drawn on the buyers to the extent of £70,000, the bills to be accompanied by documents & to be received before Apr. 14, 1921, "this to be considered a confirmed irrevocable credit." Pltfs. shipped two instalments under the contract & received payment under the letter of credit. The buyers then found that the invoices included an increase in the purchase price on account of wages & material, & instructed defts. only to pay so much of the next invoices as represented the original prices. Defts. accordingly refused to pay the bill presented on the next shipment & pltfs. then cancelled the contract, claiming damages from defts. as on a repudiation by the buyers :—Held : the credit being irrevocable, the refusal of defts. to take & pay for the particular bills on presentation of the proper documents constituted a repudiation of the contract as a whole, & pltfs. were entitled to damages so reckoned. The basis of this form of banking facility is that the buyer is taken, as between himself & the banker, to accept the seller's invoices as correct. Any adjustment must be made by way of refund by the seller & not by way of retention by the buyer.—URQUHART LINDSAY & Co. v. EASTERN BANK, LTD., [1922] 1 K. B. 318; 91 L. J. K. B. 274; 126 L. 756c. Revocable letter of credit.—Duty of bank to give notice of withdrawal.]—A firm in W., who wished to buy a quantity of asbestos sheets from pltfs., a firm in L., instructed defts. to open a credit in favour of pltfs. Defts. accordingly wrote a letter dated June 14, 1920, to pltfs. informing them of their instructions & adding that their letter "is merely an advice of the opening of the above-mentioned credit, & is not a confirmation of the same." On July 20, 1920, pltfs. shipped part of the goods to the buyers & were paid the agreed price by defts. on presentation of the stipulated documents which included bills of lading & a draft on defts. On Aug. 4, 1920, defts. were instructed by cable that the credit was withdrawn. On Sept. 30, 1920, pltfs., not having had notice of the withdrawal of the credit, shipped the balance of the goods to the buyers, but defts. refused payment of a draft for the price. Pltfs. brought an action against defts. for recovery of the balance of the credit, alleging (inter alia) that it was the

a i. —.]—A document in the form of a letter written by a bank was as follows :—"We beg to inform you that we are in receipt of advice by wire from our London office that a confirmed irrevocable credit has been opened under which we are authorised to negotiate your bills, as offered on G. & Co., of London, to the extent of £16,875 on the following conditions : bills to be drawn payable three months after sight & to be accompanied by proper shipping documents representing shipment of two thousand bales of jute of a particular mark from Calcutta to Antwerp, during Nov., Dec. 1920." Among the conditions, the two following were the most important :—(a) "Please note that this advice does not release you from the liability attaching to the drawer of a bill of exchange"; (b) "Under present conditions we can give no undertaking to negotiate bills drawn under this credit." :—Held : the document was not an ordinary banker's letter of credit.—*CHANDANMULL BENGANEY v. duty of debts. to give to plffs. reasonable notice that the credit had been withdrawn. There was evidence that it was the practice of debts. at once to inform persons to whom revocable credit was given of the withdrawal of the credit, but that in this instance, owing to pressure of business, they had forgotten to do so. Among the documents tendered to debts. on the application for payment on the second occasion was a bill of lading which debts. alleged was out of order, but which, according to plffs., was in exactly the same terms as the former bill of lading accepted by debts. without objection:—Held: (1) a letter in the form of that written by debts. on June 14, 1920, intimated to the person in whose favour the credit was opened that he might find that the credit was revoked at any time; (2) there was no legal obligation on debts. to give notice of the revocation of the credit; (3) the giving of notice was an act of courtesy which it was very desirable should be performed, but it was not founded upon any legal obligation.—*CAPE ASBESTOS CO., LTD. v. sz. Unauthorised application of proceeds—In payment of borrower's debts to other customers—Right to damages.—After crediting plff. with the proceeds of a note which it discounted for him, debt. bank, without authority from him, applied nearly all of such proceeds to pay off debts which he owed to other customers of the same bank, & paid itself the amount of the note out of the proceeds of promissory notes which it held as collateral securities for advances made by it to him:—Held: plff. was entitled to nominal damages & costs for the breach of the contract to lend him the money, & to judgment for the amount of the proceeds of his note which the bank had so applied, together with interest.—*MARSH v. 803 i. Joint loan—Several liability.—Three shareholders in a shipbuilding co., which was heavily indebted to a bank, agreed to purchase certain shares which belonged to the co. & were held by the bank as security. The price of the shares was £69,750, & the bank agreed to advance £39,750 "on joint loan" to the three purchasers, the balance being provided by them in equal portions. The shares were thereafter held by the bank in security of the sum advanced. The purchasers paid for the shares by granting their individual cheques to the sellers for £10,000 each, & by drawing joint cheques, signed by them all, on the bank for the £39,750 advanced. The bank paid this amount to the sellers, & opened a joint overdraft account in name of the three purchasers. The purchasers were not customers of the bank. The value of the shares having fallen, the bank intimated to one of the three purchasers that they held him liable for the whole amount of the loan. He thereupon brought an action concluding for declarator that he was liable only for one-third of the amount of the loan, & that, on payment thereof, he was entitled to receive a transfer of the shares held in security by the bank:—Held: (1) the purchasers were not jointly & severally liable, as drawers of the joint cheques, to the bank as a holder in due course, in respect that the cheques had been paid by the bank as drawee & were thus no longer subsisting documents of debt; (2) the loan was constituted by the agreement to advance it, which imposed only a joint liability, & not by the cheques; (3) the transfer of the shares to the bank in security of the loan, being merely a part of the contract to advance to the borrowers jointly, the pursuer was entitled, on payment of his pro rata liability, to receive a transfer of his proportion of the shares.—*COATS v. 809 i. Discharge of overdraft—Tender of cheque—It had amounts to acceptance.—Held: the action of the bank in retaining & clearing the cheque was not conclusive on the question of acceptance, & as the bank had not accepted the proceeds of the cheque in full settlement, judgment had been rightly entered for the bank.—*BURT v. 921a. ————]—Defts. acted as bankers for a firm up to Feb. 3, 1914, when the firm being insolvent by deed assigned all their property to pltf. as trustee for their creditors. The deed provided that payments to the creditors should be made upon the basis of a bkpcy. distribution of the property & that secured creditors should have the same rights as under a bkpcy. At the date of the deed the firm had £2,934 to the credit of their current account in deft. bank, & the bank held certain shares as security for an advance to the firm. These shares were subsequently sold by the bank & realised £812 in excess of the amount of the advance to the firm. Before Feb. 3, 1914, the firm had discounted with the bank a number of bills of exchange, which matured after that date, & in respect thereof the firm became the debtors of the bank to the amount of £10,941. In an action by pltf. as trustee under the deed to recover from the bank the two sums of £2,934 & £812, the bank claimed a lien on those sums & also to set off a sufficient portion of £10,941 against those sums:—Held: the bank's claim was right on both points.—*BAKER v. The husband gave evidence of non-access. The birth had been registered by the wife, who gave the name of a man other than her husband as its father:—Held: (1) the husband's evidence as to non-access

92 i. Evidence as to legitimacy—Declaration in matter of pedigree—By deceased member of family—By father.—A husband or wife is entitled to give evidence as to events prior to their marriage even though such evidence may have the effect of bastardising a child born in wedlock. Upon an application by A. for maintenance under Testator's Family Maintenance & Guardianship of Infants Act, 1916, it appeared that A. was born about seven weeks after the marriage of his mother with M. Declarations by M., who was deceased, were tendered in evidence to show that, although M. had been intimate with his wife about four months before their marriage, A. was not his son, & that his wife had admitted that fact.—Held: the evidence was not rendered inadmissible by reason of the rule laid down in *Russell v. On the morning of the birth when resp. was in labour, applt., who had no other female servant, lit a fire for her & took her some tea & brandy. He also sent for the doctor. After the birth he allowed her & the child to remain for five weeks & two days, until June 17, in his house. There was no evidence whether she was sufficiently recovered to have left at an earlier date. Applt. admitted that during those five weeks & two days he never asked resp. who was the father of her child. Resp. in her evidence said that during that time, though she did not fix the date except that it was before June 16, she asked applt. what he was going to do about the child, & he said that there was nothing for him to do but to pay. After resp. had left his house she wrote him a letter charging him with being the father of the child, & asking him if he meant to pay for its maintenance. sw. Imprisonment—Failure to pay alimony—Offer by father to maintain child in his home.]—In an application under Civil Imprisonment (Scotland) Act, 1882, s. 4, by the mother of two illegitimate daughters for warrant to imprison the father, in respect of his failure to obtemper a charge proceeding upon a decree for payment of alimony until the children respectively attained fourteen years of age, the Sheriff, notwithstanding an offer by the father, a married man, to maintain the children, who were then over ten years of age, in his own home, granted warrant of imprisonment. The father, having sought to suspend the charge & warrant, the mother contended that his offer of maintenance should not be entertained, in respect that, under the decree for alimony which was still current, his obligation could only be discharged by money payments:—Held: (1) a father's option at common law to maintain his illegitimate child in his home, if a boy after the age of seven, & if a girl after the age of ten, was not excluded by the fact that at the date of such an offer of maintenance a decree against him for alimony was still current; (2) in view of the bona fide offer of maintenance here made, the complainant was not a person wilfully refusing to pay alimony within Civil Imprisonment (Scotland) Act, 1882, s. 4, & charge & warrant suspended.—MACDONALD v. DENOUN [1929] S. C. 172.—SCOT.

PART VI. SECT. 7, SUB-SECT. 2.

400 ii. ———— Irregularity or illegality in proceedings.]—Illegitimate Children's Act, R. S. S. 1920 (c. 156), s. 10, gives the ct. power at the instance of a putative father to rescind or vary an order. He thus has a means of relief, & certiorari may in the discretion of the superior ct. be refused.—DWYER v. BULBECK, [1923] 1 D. L. R. 597; 39 Can. Crim. Cas. 162; 16 Sask. L. R. 13; [1922] 3 W. W. R. 391.—CAN.

vi. ———— Refusal to vary or rescind order.]—The magistrate has no discretion to refuse to hear an application, but after hearing it he may refuse to rescind or vary his order. If the magistrate refuses to hear the application, applt. is entitled to a prerogative writ of mandamus to compel him to do so.—WHEATLEY v. HOWARD, [1923] 3 D. L. R. 288; 2 W. W. R. 942.—CAN.

vi. ———— Grounds for allowing appeal.]—On appeal to a county ct. judge from an order of filiation made against deft. in a bastardy case by a stipendiary magistrate, the judge, after rehearing the case, disbelieved the evidence of the mother, who was contradicted in important particulars by independent witnesses, & contradicted her evidence before the magistrate, as to the paternity of the child:—Held: the appeal from the county ct. judge must be dismissed.—MULGRAVE v. CLANCEY (1925), 58 N. S. R. 105.—CAN.

vi. ———— At what place.]—In a complaint under Children of Unmarried Parents Act, R. S. B. C., 1924 (c. 34), s. 7 (1), "the cause" of the complaint within Summary Convictions Act, R. S. B. C., 1924 (c. 245), s. 77, is the seduction & not the birth of the child; & an appeal from the dismissal of the complaint is properly taken to the county ct. nearest the place where the seduction occurred.—FERGUSON v. TAYLOR (B. C.), [1926] 3 W. W. R. 203; 46 Can. Crim. Cas. 149.—CAN.

di. ———— Under Illegitimate Children's Act, R. S. S., 1920 (c. 156).]—An order made by a magistrate under s. 5 of the above Act may be varied by him on the application of either of the parties under s. 9, & may be rescinded or varied by him on the application of the putative father under s. 10.—WHEATLEY v. HOWARD, [1923] 3 D. L. R. 288; 2 W. W. R. 942.—CAN.

ix. Compliance with order—Whether condition precedent to appeal.]—It is not a condition precedent to the bringing of an appeal by a deft. from an order under Children of Unmarried Parents Act, 1924 (c. 34), as amended, that proof be furnished that he has complied with the terms of the order.—HYNES v. ALTON (B. C.), [1928] 3 W. W. R. 261.—CAN.

sy. To Supreme Court—What court may consider.]—In an appeal on a point of law under Destitute Persons Act, 1910, from an affiliation order, on the ground that complainant's evidence was not corroborated in a material particular as required by sect. 10 of that Act, the magistrate's notes of evidence should be incorporated in & form part of the case on appeal, & the discretion to admit evidence under sect. 68 of the Act not strictly legally admissible belongs solely to the magistrate & is not controllable by the Supreme Ct. The latter ct., however, is entitled to have regard to the nature of such evidence, once admitted, when considering whether the evidence submitted as corroborative may be regarded as such, its proper function on an appeal on a point of law being to determine whether there was evidence which was corroborative; & if there was such evidence, it is not for the Appellate Ct. but for the magistrate to determine whether or not the evidence satisfied him. Qv.: whether the Appellate Ct. on appeal on a point of law is entitled to treat as corroborative evidence not relied on by the magistrate as corroborative.—ANSON v. PARKER, [1928] N. Z. L. R. 490.—N.Z.

complainant's husband that he had cohabited with complainant at the material date & could have been the father of the child :—Held : the question of access or non-access was a question of fact for the justices, from which they were entitled to find that M. was the child's father ; the ct. would not, in support of a rule for a certiorari, rehear a case upon further evidence on a disputed question of fact, & perform the functions of quarter sessions, to which, owing to lapse of time, an appeal could not be made.—R. v. MARKHAM, Ex p. MARSH (1923), 67 Sol. Jo. 518.

403b. ——— Sufficiency of corroboration.—
On a bastardy summons justices, having heard the evidence of the mother & such other evidence as was produced by her & other evidence tendered by the person alleged to be the father, made an order in these terms :

“ On hearing the complaint & the evidence of complainant & other evidence satisfactorily corroborating in a material particular her evidence & also the evidence tendered by deft., & being satisfied of the truth of the complaint, it is adjudged that deft. is the putative father of the child ” :—Held : the question whether the evidence of the mother was corroborated in some material particular by other evidence to the satisfaction of the justices, was a matter to be decided by the justices &, even if the other evidence did not corroborate the evidence of the mother, the justices had acted within their jurisdiction, & a writ of certiorari should not issue to quash their order.—*R. v. - 454a. ————]—By indenture dated Feb. 21, 1921, made between bkpt., a retired produce broker, of the first part, & B., his solr., of the second part, & S. of the third part, after reciting that a receiving order had been made against bkpt. on Oct. 7, 1920, & B. had lodged a proof for £470 9s. 2d. for moneys expended & advanced as bkpt.'s solr. up to the date of the receiving order, & that since that date B. had continued to act as bkpt.'s solr., & his bill of costs amounted to £217 10s. 1d., & that B. had undertaken to pay to a bank certain moneys due to them by bkpt. on realising his securities, & that there was lodged on behalf of bkpt. the sum of £1,350 with the official receiver to enable him to discharge the provable debts in the bkpcy., debtor assigned to B. so much of the £1,350 as should be payable to bkpt. & £2,050 payable to bkpt. under a certain agreement. B. was to hold the sums assigned to him upon trust, in the first place to pay & discharge all moneys due, or thenceforth becoming due to himself for costs, advances or otherwise, & in the next place to pay & discharge certain alleged debts of bkpt. at X., & lastly to apply the balance for the benefit of S. & her children. On Feb. 3, 1921, the above-mentioned receiving order was rescinded. At the date of the assignment bkpt. was living apart from his wife, to whom he had agreed to pay maintenance at the rate of £10 per week, & judgment had been recovered by H. for £58 6s. 11d. for the board & lodging of bkpt.'s wife. On Feb. 8, 1921, a writ had been issued by bkpt.'s wife for arrears of maintenance due to her from bkpt. On Feb. 11, 1921, H. issued a bkpcy. notice in respect of her judgment & a petition was filed on Apr. 30, 1921. A receiving order was made on June 3, 1921, & debtor was adjudged bkpt. on June 20, 1921:—Held: on the facts the assignment was executed with the intent to defeat & delay creditors, & was therefore fraudulent & void as an act of bkpcy. under 1914 Act, s. 1 (1) (b).—*Re PRIOR, Ex p. q. i. ————]—In a judgment by default recovered against a husband & wife it was declared plff. should be entitled to recover against defts. jointly & severally the sums therein specified: but it was ordered that execution be limited to the free separate property of the wife. Notwithstanding the precise & restricted terms of the judgment, a præcipe was lodged for a writ of sale directed against the real & personal property of both defts. The writ of sale followed the language of the præcipe, & a return of nulla bona was later made against both defts. Act, 1908, s. 26 (j):—Held: the writ of sale & the return thereto were irregular & ineffectual as against the husband, the ct. had no power in the present proceedings to amend the judgment as entered, & no act of bkpcy. had been established as against the husband upon which an order of adjudication could properly be made.—Re GREEN, A DEBTOR, [1928] N. 797a. Creditor who has assented to deed of arrangement—Deed void for want of registration.—On June 11, 1921, applt. co. recovered judgment against debtor for a certain sum & costs. On Apr. 18, 1922, debtor executed a document in the form of a memorandum of agreement by which he assigned his property to trustees for the benefit of his creditors. The agreement provided (inter alia) that it should not be registered either as a composition or deed of arrangement or otherwise & contained a schedule of creditors & their debts. At the date of the agreement there were five bkpcy. petitions pending against debtor by creditors other than applt. co. As a result of negotiations between debtor & the five creditors & in consideration of his entering into the agreement of Apr. 18, 1922, the five creditors agreed to the dismissal of their petitions & signed letters dated Apr. 17, 1922, which were all in the same form, & contained a statement that it was understood that it was not intended to register the agreement as a deed of arrangement, by which they respectively agreed that so long as debtor complied with the terms of the agreement of Apr. 18, 1922, they would not bring any action against him in respect of their scheduled debts or attempt to set aside the agreement. On July 18, 1922, applt. co. signed a letter of assent in the same terms, which was also dated Apr. 17, 1922, & agreed to hand it over to debtor on receiving from him a promissory note or bill of exchange of a third party for £300. This condition debtor performed. The letter was not, however, handed over to debtor owing to the refusal by him to pay to applt. co. an agreed sum for costs, a term which the ct. held formed no part of the original bargain.

Applt. co. subsequently issued a bkpcy. notice against debtor founded on its judgment debt. The registrar set the bkpcy. notice aside on the ground that applt. co. was bound by the agreement contained in the letter signed by it. On appeal:—Held: (1) the agreement of Apr. 18, 1922, being a deed of arrangement, was void for want of registration under 1914 (Deeds) Act, & the letter of assent, being an assent to a void instrument, was also itself void; (2) as debtor & all the creditors who assented to the agreement knew from the terms of the instrument itself & from the statement contained in the letters signed by them that the agreement was void, & there was no representation that the agreement was valid, there was no question of estoppel, & applt. co. was not estopped from issuing the bkpcy. notice.—Re A BANKRUPTCY NOTICE, [1924] 2 Ch. 76; 93 L. Debtors paid a sum of £100, including £5 for costs, nine days later, but in the belief that the notice would be disputed the creditors issued & served a fresh bkpcy. notice about two months later for £857, & that notice not having been complied with within seven days, a petition based on the fresh bkpcy. notice was presented & served. Debtors gave notice of an application to set aside service of the petition, but the registrar refused to do so, & made a receiving order on the fresh bkpcy. notice:—Held: (1) debtors could not refuse to comply with the fresh bkpcy. notice on the ground that as the previous notice had resulted in an act of bkpcy. this had put it out of the power of debtors to make any payment in compliance with the fresh notice or otherwise deal with their property; (2) if they did make a payment in compliance with the fresh notice it might be that if a trustee were appointed under the previous bkpcy. notice the payment might be set aside, & the money made available for the general body of creditors.—Re Debtors (No. 771 of 1926) (1926), 43 T. The creditors proceeded against the debtor, alleging that he had committed an act of bkpcy. under 1914 Act, s. 1 (1) (h). A receiving order having been made, the debtor appealed:—Held: (1) the statements made by the debtor were not a mere discussion of his affairs, but a "notice" to his creditors that he had suspended or was about to suspend payment within the sect.; (2) the debtor being in England, there being creditors in England, & the jurisdiction here being undoubted, it was not necessary to suspend the making of a receiving order here. Tender before bankruptcy notice—Whether creditor bound to accept.—On Jan. 3, 1928, a creditor obtained judgment for £47, in respect of two overdue instalments of a debt, leaving the remaining £23 instalment, which only became due between the date of the writ & the judgment, untouched by the judgment. On Jan. 9, in response to the creditor's invitation, debtor tendered the £23 in cash, but the tender was refused. On Jan. 27 the creditor filed a bkpcy. notice in respect of the £47 judgment debt, & on Feb. 16 he filed a petition based on the two debts, & on non-compliance with the bkpcy. notice:—Held: though the two debts were still owing & amounted to over £50, so that the creditor was formally entitled to present a petition under 1914 Act, s. 4 (1), nevertheless the refusal before the bkpcy. notice of the £23 offered at his invitation, & refused only in order to keep the total debt over £50, was "sufficient cause" within sect. 5 (3) for making no order on the petition.—Re DEBTOR, Ex p. LAWRENCE (No. 21 OF 1928), [1928] Ch. 665; sub nom. Re DEBTOR (No. 21 OF 1928), Ex p. PETITIONING CREDITOR v. DEBTOR, 97 L. His trading was not prosperous & new debts were incurred. On Feb. 21, 1924, he executed a deed of assignment for the benefit of his creditors generally & a circular letter with a form of assent was sent to & received by petitioning creditors, who were new creditors. On Feb. 25, 1924, their director with their accountant attended the office of one of the trustees under the deed & suggested that they or some other new creditor should be represented on the committee of inspection. Petitioning creditors were then invited to attend the meeting of the committee on Mar. 26, 1924, & their director & their solr. attended accordingly, discussing & advising on certain matters. Petitioning creditors, however, refused to assent to the deed & presented a petition in bkpcy. grounded upon the execution of the deed as an act of bkpcy.:—Held: on the facts, petitioning creditors had so far recognised the deed as to preclude them from availing themselves of its execution as an act of bkpcy.—Re A DEBTOR, Ex p. PETITIONING CREDITORS (No. 24 OF 1924), (1924), 94 L. Vouchers, admittedly sufficient to substantiate the creditor's debt, were exhibited to the Lord Ordinary before he granted sequestration, & were subsequently lodged in process, but these particular vouchers had not been produced when the creditor was sisted. Thereafter the debtor presented a petition for recall of the sequestration on the ground that the proceedings were ab initio void, in respect that the sisted creditor had not fulfilled the statutory procedure for obtaining sequestration laid down in Bkpcy. (Scotland) Act, 1913, s. 20, in that he had failed timeously to lodge in process the necessary evidence of his debt :—Held : a creditor craving to be sisted in terms of Bkpcy. - 1491a. ———.]—Debtor furnished a friend with a cheque for £500 as a deposit in connection with the underwriting of shares by a co. in which the friend was interested. The cheque was dishonoured & judgment obtained against debtor for £500 & £14 6s. costs. In Dec. 1926, the judgment creditors petitioned for a receiving order against debtor in respect of the judgment debt. From time to time arrangements were made for adjourning the petition, but in Mar. 1927, the petitioning creditors intimated that the conditions on which they would agree to the petition being dismissed were that debtor should pay £100 & provide a guarantee for payment of the balance of the debt & also agree to pay to them the costs of their proceedings against the underwriters as between solr. & client, & the costs of their proceedings against debtor, also as between solr. & client. Payment of the costs of proceedings against the underwriters was refused, but payment by debtor of solr. & client costs was agreed to, & sums of £50 & £144 were paid & the petition dismissed. In July petitioners again commenced proceedings for a receiving order in respect of a sum ascertained by deducting from the original debt & interest & costs as between solr. & client the payments of £50 & £144. A receiving order having been made:—Held: the acts of petitioners in seeking to obtain payment of their costs in the proceedings against the underwriters & in obtaining payment by debtor of their solr. & client costs amounted to extortion & an abuse of the process of the ct., & the case fell within 1914 Act, s. 5 (3), as being one where the ct. was satisfied that for sufficient cause no receiving order ought to be made, & the receiving order must be discharged.—Re DEBTOR (No. 883 of 1927), [1928] Ch. 199; 97 L. 1552a. — Receiving order discharged subject to condition—Condition not fulfilled—Rescission of discharging order.—Debtor, a barrister, was entitled on the death of his mother to a vested remainder in tail of considerable value. His mother was seventy-five. The petition was filed on July 19, 1923. His present indebtedness amounted to about £6,000 & negotiations for a loan for that amount with an insurance co. had been going on since July 16, 1923. Owing to a delay in raising this loan, the registrar had made a receiving order on Nov. 21, 1923, from which debtor appealed; & upon debtor undertaking during the interval necessary to raise the loan, to insure his life immediately, i.e. from Dec. 1, 1923, to Jan. 1, 1924, in order that, in the event of his death during that period, the unsecured creditors might be safeguarded, the Ct. of Appeal allowed the appeal, discharged the receiving order & dismissed the petition without prejudice to another petition being presented if the loan was not carried through & petitioning creditors' debt not paid on or before Jan. 1, 1924. Up to Dec. 20, debtor had not insured his life pursuant to his undertaking & petitioning creditors then moved to commit debtor for contempt. The Ct. of Appeal allowed debtor three hours within which to insure his life, & a certificate being produced showing that this had been done, the ct. made no order except that debtor should pay the creditors' costs. Subsequently debtor having again broken his undertaking by not completing the insurance on his life, the Ct. of Appeal rescinded their order, with the result that the receiving order stood as originally made by the registrar.—Re A DEBTOR, Ex p. THE DEBTOR (No. 1088 of 1923), [1924] B. & C. 1893a. — Duty not to take advantage of mistake of fact.]—A receiving order was made against a debtor, who thereupon applied for & obtained a stay of the advertisement of the receiving order & all proceedings thereunder pending an appeal therefrom. The appeal was subsequently dismissed & an order was made adjudicating him bkpt. At the date of the receiving order bkpt. had an account at a bank. After the making of the receiving order & pending the hearing of the appeal bkpt. paid into the bank £105 which he had collected from his debtors. & drew out of his account £199. The bank acted in good faith & received & paid those sums in the ordinary course of business without knowing that a receiving order had been made against bkpt. The trustee in bkpy. claimed a declaration that the sums paid into the bank after the date of the receiving order vested in him as trustee:—Held: (1) the sums paid into the bank by bkpt. after the date of the receiving order became by virtue of 1914 Act, ss. 18 (1), 37 (1), 38 (a), the property of his trustee in bkpy.; (2) the bank were not entitled to credit themselves with the payments out to bkpt., as those transactions took place after the date of the receiving order & were therefore not protected by sects. 45 & 46; (3) there was nothing dishonest in the trustee enforcing the rights given to him by the Act, & the action of the ct. in staying the advertisement & proceedings could not operate in any way in derogation of the rights of the trustee.—*Re WIGZELL, Ex p. his trustee in bkpcy. by the direction of his committee of inspection, commenced an action to recover £955, the amount admitted to be due, if recoverable. The action was transferred to the judge in bkpcy. under Bkpcy. Rules, 1915, r. 123. Deft. took the point that such an action ought not to be brought by an officer of the ct., as the claim, however legal, was practically dishonest, & that all ct.s. must apply the rule in Re Condon, Ex p. James, No. 60, ante:—Held: the claim the trustee in bkpcy. was seeking to enforce was in respect of a debt which under Gaming Act, 1835 (c. 41), s. 2, & the decision of the House of Lords in Sutlers v. Briggs (see GAMING & WAGERING, Vol. XXV., p. 418, No. 213), was a statutory debt, & there was nothing in Re Condon, Ex p. James, or in any of the cases in which the rule in that case had been followed, which entitled the ct. to say that if & when a right of action in respect of such a debt vested in a trustee in bkpcy., it was a dishonest or dishonourable thing for him as an officer of the ct. to enforce it, & judgment for the trustee in bkpcy. must be entered in the action for the amount claimed.—*SCRANTON'S TRUSTEE v. 1894b. — Duty to act equitably—Recovery of money paid to bankrupt with approval of official receiver.—On June 26, 1924, a receiving order was made against W. on a petition presented on May 25, 1924, in respect of an act of bkpcy. on May 1, 1924. W. was a promoter of boxing contests & had in view at the date of the presentation of the petition boxing competitions, one of which was held at the Stadium, Wembley, on Aug. 9, 1924. He appealed against the receiving order, & pending that appeal the receiving order was not gazetted. His appeal having failed it was then gazetted on July 29, 1924. At an interview between W., his solr., the solr. for the Wembley authorities & A., the assistant official receiver, who under Bkpcy. Rules, 1915, r. 310, represented the official receiver, A. was told of the proposed boxing contest & the judge held on the evidence that at the interview W. told A. he desired notwithstanding the receiving order to be allowed to stage the contest as the only hope of providing assets to meet the claims of his creditors, & that it was arranged he could do so without any interference by the official receiver, on W. undertaking not to use the proceeds of the sale of tickets for his private purposes but only for discharging the expenses of the staging of the contest & to hand over any balance to the official receiver. On that arrangement being made W. proceeded with the negotiations for the contest & an agreement was executed by which he gave the Wembley authorities the right to collect all moneys paid for tickets at the turnstiles, & they were to have those moneys as a security for the payment by W. for the use of the Stadium. Various ticket agents paid W. for blocks of tickets to be sold by them to the public. The contest, which was held at the Stadium on Aug. 9, 1924, only realised after payment of all expenses £730 which W. paid to the official receiver. On Sept. 6, 1924, W. was adjudicated bkpt., & on Sept. 9, S. was appointed trustee in the bkpcy. On a motion by S. to recover from the various ticket agents all sums paid by them since the date of the receiving order to W. for tickets they had bought from him & to recover the money collected by the Wembley authorities at the turnstiles:—Held: A. had power to give his sanction to W.'s receipt of the proceeds of the sale of tickets to be applied by him in discharging expenses & the trustee in bkpcy. was bound by the sanction so given, but even if he were not so bound & even if A. exceeded his powers the trustee could not take the benefit of W.'s activities without accepting their burden, & the payment to W. of the moneys which the trustee claimed, being the direct result of the leave obtained by W. from A. to stage the boxing contests, it would be inequitable & unjust to make resps. pay these moneys over again for the benefit of W.'s creditors & to hold that the charge given to the Wembley authorities was nugatory.—*Re WILSON, Ex p. 2514a. — Payments received from other sureties.—In Aug. 1921, two borrowers with three sureties borrowed £20,000 from an insurance co. The loan was secured by the joint & several covenant of the borrowers & the sureties & by a mtge. & further charge on the borrowers' life policies. The loan was repayable by instalments spread over five years, but, if a borrower or surety became bkpt., it was immediately repayable. On Jan. 10, 1924, a receiving order was made against one surety, H., on his own petition, & on Jan. 25 he was adjudicated bkpt. At the date of the receiving order the amount due to the insurance co. as creditors was £8,000 principal & £249 interest, & on Jan. 13, 1926, they put in a proof for that amount in H.'s bkpcy. Between the date of the receiving order & the proof, however, the creditors had received some £5,372 made up of £4,910 payments of principal & interest by the other sureties & £462 credited ex gratia as the surrender value of the policies which had really lapsed. The trustee in bkpcy. applied to reduce the proof by £5372:—Held: as each surety was liable for the whole debt due at the date of the receiving order, the creditors were entitled to prove for the full amount in the surety H.'s bkpcy. without giving credit for any sums received from the other co-sureties since that date, provided that they did not in the whole recover more than 20s. in the pound.—Re HOULDER, [1929] 1 Ch. 205; *sub nom. as the spouses should nominate; & that in the meantime until the execution of the settlement the persons in whom such property should be vested should hold the same upon the trusts of the settlement. The marriage was solemnised on the day of the execution of the articles. On the death of his father on Feb. 22, 1918, the husband, under his will, became entitled in reversion, subject to the life interest of testator's widow, to a share in his residuary estate. On June 13, 1919, the trustees of the articles gave notice to the will trustees of the execution of the articles. On Oct. 21, 1920, the husband, in pursuance of his contract contained in the articles, executed a settlement by which he assigned to the trustees thereof, of whom there were three & of whom one was also a trustee under the articles, but the other two were not, his interest under his father's will upon trusts for the benefit of his wife & children. On Dec. 5, 1921, the settlor was adjudicated bkpt. The trustee in bkpcy. moved for a declaration that the settlement & the transfer of the property purported to be made thereunder were void as against him:—Held: (1) the acquisition by bkpt. on his father's death of the property which was non-existent at the date of the articles did not operate under the well settled doctrine as a complete equitable assignment of that property, as the persons to whom the property was contracted to be assigned & the trusts upon which such persons were to hold it were not ascertained at the date of such acquisition; (2) even if there had been an equitable assignment within that doctrine, it would not have operated as a transfer of property within the true meaning of 1914 Act, s. 42 (3); (3) the assignment contained in the settlement of Oct. 1920, operated as a transfer of property within that sub-sect. & was void by reason of its execution within two years of the commencement of the bkpcy.—*Re DENT, Ex p. 2978a. Proof by plaintiff against bankrupt defendant—Stay of action after bankruptcy—Proof in bankruptcy for amount claimed in action.—On Oct. 25, 1920, resp., a mtge. broker, hereinafter called pltf., issued a writ against debtor in the K. B. Div. to recover a sum of £650 for commission earned. On June 20, 1921, the action was set down for trial. On July 19, 1921, a receiving order was made against debtor. On Feb. 2, 1922, on the application of pltf. made in the action the action was stayed with liberty to pltf. to restore. On Mar. 6, 1922, pltf., instead of applying to restore the action, lodged his proof in the bkpcy. of debtor for £650. The official receiver rejected his proof, but on Jan. 17, 1923, the county ct. judge reversed the decision of the official receiver & admitted the proof. On Sept. 29, 1923, pltf. lodged a further proof for £46 17s. 9d. for his untaxed costs of the action, all of which were incurred before the date of the receiving order. On Oct. 31, 1923, the official receiver rejected that proof. Pltf. appealed, & on Feb. 11, 1924, the county ct. judge reversed his decision & ordered that the proof of the costs, amounting to £46 17s. 9d., should be admitted subject to taxation. On the appeal of the official receiver:—Held: (1) as pltf. had obtained no judgment dealing either with his claim in the action or the costs thereof, but had elected to stay his action & to prove in bkpcy. for the amount claimed in the action, he was not entitled to prove for his untaxed costs of the action; (2) (ASTBURY, J.) the sum for which pltf. sought to prove in respect of his costs was not a debt or liability certain or contingent to which debtor was subject at the date of the receiving order or to which he might become subject before his discharge by reason of any obligation incurred before that date, within 1914 Act, s. 30 (3), & therefore was not provable.—Re PITCHFORD, [1924] 2 Ch. 260; *sub nom. 3210a. —J—Where, after the admission by the trustee of a creditor's proof against bkpt.'s estate & that creditor's participation in a first dividend, it was ascertained that he had proved for & received more than he was entitled to, & upon an application to the ct. his proof was reduced:—Held: in the absence of any rule in bkpcy., the well-known principle of equity, that a beneficiary who has been overpaid is not entitled to receive any further payment out of the common fund, until the payments to the other beneficiaries are levelled up to the amount received by the overpaid beneficiary, was applicable with the result that the overpaid creditor was not entitled to participate in any future dividends in respect of his reduced proof without giving credit for the overpayment in respect of his original proof.

The mere fact that the trustee cannot recover either payments made to a creditor whose proof is subsequently expunged or overpayments made to a creditor whose proof is subsequently reduced, does not prevent the operation of that equitable principle in the case of a proof in bkpcy. Nor does the judgment of JESSEL, M.R., in Re Tail, Ex p. Harper (see No. 3210), contain any statement inconsistent with that application of the principle.—Re SEARLE, HOARE & Co., [1924] 2 Ch. 325; 68 Sol. Jo. 755; *sub nom. Re SEARLE, HOARE & Co., Ex p. 4353a. ——— Debt left on deposit with debtors.]—A creditor for a sum of £100,000 of a firm of merchant bankers in May, 1918, agreed with the debtors to leave the debt on deposit with them until Jan. 1932, at interest, with commission to be paid to nominees of the creditor—namely, O. & his family; & it was further agreed that O. should be credited with a share of the firm's profits, which in fact he subsequently drew from the firm. In July, 1920, the debt was, by the direction of the creditor, transferred in the books of the debtors to F., who agreed with the debtors to leave the debt on deposit with them until Jan. 1932, upon the conditions expressed in the former agreement, as if F.'s name had been inserted therein instead of the name of the original creditor. On Feb. 24, 1926, F. transferred the debt in equity to O., & on Mar. 2, 1926, the debtors had notice of that assignment. On Mar. 15, 1926, a receiving order was made against the debtors on their own petition, & shortly afterwards they were adjudicated bkpts. Between Mar. 2, 1926, & the date of that order F. became indebted to the firm in the sum of £15,000 for moneys expended by the firm between those dates in taking up accommodation bills drawn by F. on & accepted by the firm for which, as between F. & the firm, F. through not having supplied the necessary funds, was liable, F.'s liability arising in every case from contractual liabilities undertaken by F. towards the firm at dates earlier than Mar. 2, 1926:—Held: upon the proper construction of the agreement of May, 1918, the creditor did not advance money to the debtors on a contract that she should receive a share of the profits of their business within Partnership Act, 1890 (c. 39), s. 2 (3) (d), with the result that O.'s proof for the £100,000 was not liable to be postponed to the claims of the other creditors.—*Re PINTO LEITE & NEPHEWS, Ex p. - 4637a. Admission at preliminary examination — On criminal charge of misappropriating funds.]

 —The accused, who was a trustee under a will, was charged with having in Mar. 1916, fraudulently converted to his own use certain shares deposited with him by a co-trustee. In an affidavit filed by the accused in defence to proceedings for an account commenced against him by the co-trustee in the Ch. Div. the accused swore that he had, with the approval of his co-trustee, invested the capital in his own business. Subsequently, in his preliminary examination in bkpcy., he made admissions to the Official Receiver in regard to the disposition of the capital by him. He was indicted for fraudulent conversion as a trustee under Larceny Act, 1916 (c. 50), s. 21, but the judge, on his notice being brought to the fact that that Act was not in force at the time when the offence was alleged to have been committed, allowed the indictment to be amended by the substitution of Larceny Act, 1861 (c. 96), s. 80, for the later statute. The two statutes define the offence in almost precisely the same

4665a. — Necessary before other side entitled to refer to contents.—On June 29, 1923, resps., having received from bkpt. an order for goods, on the same day delivered them to bkpt. together with an invoice bearing the same date, which subsequently at bkpt.'s request was post-dated to July 10. On July 20, bkpt., although fully realising his insolvency, sent to resps. & to 107 other creditors cheques which were all post-dated to July 31 in settlement of their several accounts. On July 31 bkpt. gave notice to his creditors that he was about to suspend payment. Not one of those post-dated cheques was paid on presentation; but on July 30, the day preceding the act of bkpcy., bkpt. paid in cash to resps., who had no knowledge of bkpt.'s financial difficulties, the amount he owed them less discount. On Aug. 30, 1923, on a creditor's petition presented on Aug. 3, an order of adjudication was made against bkpt. Upon a motion by the trustee in bkpcy. for a declaration that the payment to resps. was a fraudulent preference under 1914 Act, s. 44 (1), resps. filed an affidavit in opposition, which contained statements which revealed a voluntary offer on July 30 on the part of bkpt. to resps. to pay the amount due to them in cash; & the question was then raised whether the trustee had the right, which he claimed, to read those statements as admissions by resps. of the absence of pressure & of the entirely voluntary nature of the payment:—Held: (1) the practice in the Bkpcy. Ct., differing in this respect from the practice in the Ch. Div., was that where an affidavit had been filed by a resp. to an application, applt. was only entitled to refer to the contents thereof after resp. on opening his case had elected to read it; (2) where a bkpt. in imminent expectation of bkpcy. voluntarily pays a particular creditor with the result of giving him a preference in fact, & the reason for such payment is unexplained, a prima facie case of fraudulent preference is established; therefore, the trustee having proved a prima facie case of fraudulent preference & the creditors having withdrawn their affidavit in opposition, & there being therefore no evidence to the contrary, the trustee was entitled to succeed on his application.—*Re COHEN, Ex p. - 5902a. “On bankruptcy or until he suffered any act or thing or any event happened whereby he would be deprived of right to receive income”—Order of Probate Court setting apart whole income for children of beneficiary.]—In 1887, C. settled the proceeds of property as to the income upon himself for life determinable on his bkpcy. or until he suffered any act or thing or any event happened whereby, if payable to him absolutely, he would be deprived of the right to receive the income or any part thereof. By an order in 1895 after the dissolution of C.’s marriage, it was ordered that the trustees should set apart the whole of the income of the settled funds which was then payable to him, & apply it for the children of the marriage until majority. C. became bkpt. in 1904, & his youngest child attained twenty-one in 1910:—Held: the above order was an act or event antecedent to his bkpcy. by which C.’s interest in the whole income was determined for a substantial period, & a forfeiture took place at the time the order was made, & nothing passed to the trustee in bkpcy.—Re CAREW’S TRUSTS, GELLIBRAND v. - 5909a. “Shall do some act” whereby income would be assigned—Authority to pay income to trustee of composition scheme—No notification of authority to trustee.]—B. was entitled to the income of one-third share of the residuary estate of testatrix unless & until he should be or become bkpt. or should do or suffer some act or thing whereby such share of income should be wholly or partially assigned, charged or incumbered or until he should die, whichever event should first happen, & from & after his death or bkpcy. or the doing or suffering such act as aforesaid such share & the income thereof should be held upon trust for his issue. Shortly after the death of testatrix B. entered into a scheme for composition with his creditors, & he then signed an authority to the trustees of testatrix’s will “until further notice” to pay to the trustee under the scheme “the income now due or to accrue due” to B. from her estate. It appeared that there had been no communication by B. to the trustee of the scheme for composition concerning the authority given to the trustees of the will until after these proceedings had been taken in the matter:—Held: in these circumstances the authority given to the trustees of the will did not operate as a good equitable assignment of B.’s interest in testatrix’s estate & did not work a forfeiture thereof, inasmuch as in the absence of communication concerning the authority, the same remained simply a bare authority which was revocable.—Re HAMILTON, FITZGEORGE v. - 5935a. — Bankruptcy at & after determination of prior life interest—Annulled after income payable.]—B. was bequeathed an interest during his life in the income of testator’s residuary estate, & by his will testator directed that, if any beneficiary thereunder should become bkpt., such beneficiary should forfeit his share which should thereupon devolve as provided for in the event of his death. Testator died in 1910 & on Apr. 16, 1914, B. was adjudicated bkpt. On Dec. 14, 1925, B.’s life interest fell into possession, & on Apr. 7, 1926, he procured the annulment of his bkpcy. Between Dec. 14, 1925, & the date of the annulment the trustees received income in respect of the residuary estate, but dealt only with such part as did not include the income in respect of B.’s interest, no payment being made in respect of that by them:—Held: as after Dec. 14, 1925, the trustees received sums in respect of the income of testator's estate which they could have been asked to hand over to the trustee in the bkpcy. of B. before the annulment of his bkpcy., there existed something upon which the forfeiture could operate, the test being whether there was any actual income of the share which could be treated by the trustees as payable to, or retained for, or appropriated for, the residuary legatee, & the annulment was not in time to prevent the operation of the forfeiture clause.—Re FORDER, FORDER v. FORDER, [1927] 2 Ch. 291; 96 L. J. Ch. 314; 137 L. T. 538; [1927] B. & C. R. 84, C. A.

5936a. “Unless he attempts to become bankrupt”—Whether applicable to bankruptcy in invitum or generally.—Testator, by his will dated Dec. 21, 1911, devised & bequeathed his real & personal estate to his trustees upon trust to sell & convert with power to postpone, & proceeded: “Out of my estate I desire my trustees to pay to my son H. an annuity of £156 to be paid monthly, unless he attempts to assign it or to become bkpt. In these events it shall be entirely optional with my trustees to pay him the annuity, my wish & intention being that the money is to be for his personal use to keep him from want. If they think his conduct or circumstances deserves or requires it, I authorise them to increase the annuity to £260 per annum, payable as & on the condition stated.” Testator then directed that the residue of the income of his estate should be paid to his wife during her life or widowhood, & that after her death or remarriage it should be applied for the maintenance of his daughter until she attained the age of twenty-five years, & that upon her attaining that age the whole of the residue of his property should be given to her. By a codicil to his will, dated Sept. 10, 1918, testator devised two freehold farms to his son H. for the term of his life or “until he shall do some act to effectuate a sale or mtge. thereof or which shall forfeit the same in the case of bkpcy.,” in either of which events the farms were to fall back into & form part of his residuary estate. Testator died on Sept. 13, 1918, leaving his widow, his daughter, & his son H. surviving. On Nov. 3, 1911, a receiving order had been made against H. on a creditor's petition, the act of bkpcy. being the failure to comply with a bkpcy. notice, & on Nov. 24, 1911, he was adjudged bkpt. Testator made his will & codicil with knowledge of these facts. On Jan. 22, 1919, H. obtained his discharge, but his creditors had not been paid in full, & the bkpcy. had not been annulled. On a summons taken out by the trustees for the determination of the questions whether the legacy given to H. by the will had become forfeited by his bkpcy., & whether the freeholds devised to him by the codicil belonged to him or formed part of the residuary estate:—Held: (1) the words “unless he attempts to become bkpt.” in the will must be read in their strict grammatical sense & as so read did not apply to a bkpcy. in invitum or bkpcy. generally, & therefore no forfeiture of the annuity had occurred on which the discretionary trust arose, & consequently the annuity was payable to the trustee in H.'s bkpcy.; (2) the words of devise in the codicil though phrased in words of futurity applied under the doctrine of Trappes v. Meredith, No. 5932, ante, to the past bkpcy. of H., & there was no principle upon which the ct. would be justified in holding that the doctrine was not applicable to legal estates, & consequently the devised freeholds had ever since the death of testator formed part of his residuary estate.—*Re EVANS, PUBLIC TRUSTEE v. 5958a. —[H., who had taken out a policy of insurance in deft. co. against third party risks, was involved in an accident whereby C. was seriously injured by H.'s motor car. C. commenced proceedings against H. for damages, but before obtaining judgment H. was adjudicated bkpt. & the official receiver was appointed the trustee in the bkpcy. The trustee informed the co., in reply to a question put by them, that he did not propose to take any part in C.'s action against H. H. subsequently purported for an agreed sum to release the co. from their liability under the policy to indemnify him in respect of any judgment obtained against him by C. Shortly afterwards C. obtained judgment against H. for damages for the injuries sustained by him. Subsequently H. committed a second act of bkpcy. & was adjudicated bkpt. for the second time, & a trustee was appointed. In an action brought by the two trustees jointly for a declaration (inter alia) that deft. co. were liable to indemnify H. & or plffs. against the damages awarded to C. & that the agreement by which H. purported to release the co. was null & void:—Held: (1) the benefit of the indemnity vested in the trustee under the first bkpcy., notwithstanding that C.'s claim, being one in respect of a tort for which judgment was not obtained till after the commencement of the first bkpcy., was not provable in such bkpcy.; (2) the benefit of the indemnity having vested in the trustee in the first bkpcy., his right thereto could not be affected by any subsequent agreement between deft. co. & H.; (3) the trustee in the first bkpcy. was not estopped by his refusal to take part in C.'s action against H. from asserting his claim against deft. co.—*HOOD'S TRUSTEES v. He subsequently resided in Algiers & carried on business as a coal merchant there until his death. On a petition presented by him in his lifetime to the ct. in Algiers he was declared bkpt. by the French ct. after his death, & a “syndic” was appointed there to whom creditors’ claims might be sent. The effect of the order on the evidence was to vest in the French “syndic” the whole of bkpt.’s estate, including assets accruing after the commencement of the bkpcy. In a subsequent creditor’s administration action in England, K., an English creditor, was appointed administrator & after a grant of administration with the will annexed, proceeded to advertise for creditors. The French “syndic” now claimed that the assets in this country should be transferred to him, admitting that if his application was successful the costs of administration here would have to be deducted :—Held : a bkpcy. order having been made by a French ct. of competent jurisdiction the “syndic” was entitled to the whole of the assets wheresoever situate, & these must be handed to him after deducting the costs, charges & expenses of the administration proceedings here.—Re BURKE, KING v. TERRY (1919), 54 L. Pltf., trustee in the bkpcy., brought an action in England alleging that deft. was possessed of assets within the jurisdiction of the English cts. & claiming a declaration that all deft.’s assets had become vested in pltf. as trustee :—Held : (1) the decree of the Belgian ct. was valid inasmuch as deft. had submitted to the jurisdiction, (2) the proceedings were not contrary to natural justice, inasmuch as deft. had been afforded an opportunity of being heard; (3) subject to the decision of r i. ———.—Although a foreign Bkpcy. Act cannot, of its own force, operate beyond the country which enacted it, yet private international law & the comity of nations operating on the general principles relating to movable property will recognise its extra-territorial effect, so far at least as it deals with personal property, especially where, as in the case of the U.S. Bkpcy. Act, the Act does not expressly confine itself to property within the United States, but extends to "all property" of bkpt.; & the fact that the U.S. Bkpcy. Act is given effect in Canada only by comity of nations is not a ground for holding that it should be given no greater effect in Canada than would be given to the Canadian Bkpcy. Act in the United States.—WILLIAMS v. RICE (Man.), [1926] 3 D. L. R. 225; [1926] 2 W. W. R. 192.—CAN.

sa. Insolvency in South Africa—Property in Ireland.—By an order of the Supreme Ct. of the Union of South Africa the estate of an insolvent was sequestrated for the benefit of his creditors; subsequently a trustee of the estate was elected, & was declared entitled to administer the estate in accordance with Insolvency Act, 1916. The insolvent was entitled to certain freehold & leasehold property in Ireland. Under the law of the Union of South Africa the trustee was entitled to the immovable property of the insolvent situate in Ireland, so far as such right did not conflict with the law in Ireland. The Supreme Ct. of South Africa having requested the Irish ct. to act in its aid, the trustee applied for an order vesting the property in him:—Held: he was entitled to such order.—Re BOLTON, [1920] 2 I. The bills of lading in respect of the goods were made out "to order" & the charges were paid by S., a forwarding agent employed by bkpt. The goods on arrival were stored at a wharf in the name, & for the account, of S. When a sale had taken place S. signed a delivery order which bkpt. handed to the buyers against payment for the goods. Between Aug. 3 & Sept. 7, 1927, pltf. purchased a number of cases of vacuum flasks & paid bkpt. for them prior to the commencement of the bkpcy., the receiving order being made on Sept. 24. Bkpt., upon payment being made for the goods, handed to pltf. delivery orders for the goods signed by S. & addressed to the wharfingers. These delivery orders had not been presented at the wharf at the date of the bkpcy., & when they were presented shortly afterwards the wharfingers, acting on S.'s instructions, refused to deliver the goods. The trustee in bkpcy. claimed that the goods were in the possession, order or disposition of bkpt. at the date of the receiving order & formed part of bkpt.'s estate under 1914 Act, s. 38 (c):—Held: pltf. had not by their conduct in any way induced a belief that the goods were in the possession, order or disposition of bkpt. in such circumstances that he was the reputed owner thereof, & the trustee was not entitled to the goods as forming part of bkpt.'s estate.—*SIMEONS (C.) & Co. v. - 6659a. ———.]—For some years before his bkpcy. a surveyor & assessment specialist with a staff of clerks had entered into contracts with clients for personal service in the latter capacity. Under these contracts he had to value his clients' properties for rating purposes & give expert evidence on their appeals, his remuneration being a percentage of the reduction of their assessments when obtained. He mortgaged these contracts & the sums to become due on completion thereof to a mtgee., who by special arrangement with the mtgor. gave no notice to the clients so as not to imperil the mtgor.'s business position, the mtgor. being allowed to collect the fees when due in his own name & hand them over to the mtgee. At the date of the mtgor.'s bkpcy., some fees (a) were due on completed contracts, but some fees (b) were still unearned. The trustee employed bkpt. & some of his staff to carry out the uncompleted contracts & earn fees (b):—Held: (1) though the work to be done under the contracts required a certain amount of technical skill on which bkpt.'s clients relied, it was nevertheless part of bkpt.'s business, so that the fees (a) due at the date of the bkpcy. were due to him "in the course of his trade or business" & being in his order & disposition by the consent of the mtgee. belonged to the trustee under 1914 Act, s. 38 (c); (2) the mtge. of fees (b) earned since the bkpcy. was inoperative against the trustee.—Re COLLINS, [1925] 1 Ch. 556; 133 L. In 1920 the assignees surrendered the policy to the insurance co., & received its surrender value, & B. applied for pay-

6802a. — — — — —.]—In Jan. 1922, G. purchased from bkpts. certain chattels used by them in their business as clothiers, & subsequently in consideration of the option to purchase & the hire-rent agreed upon let them on hire to bkpts. at a monthly rental. The chattels consisted of cutting tables, work tables, machines, stools, etc. The agreement was determinable in the event (inter alia) of a receiving order in bkpcy. being made against the hirers, upon which all payments made by the hirers were forfeitable & the chattels were to be delivered to the owner. On Sept. 6, 1922, a receiving order was made against the hirers; on Sept. 21 they were adjudicated bkpt., & on Sept. 25 a trustee in the bkpcy. was appointed. On motion by the trustee for a declaration that the chattels formed part of the estate of bkpts. as being in their order & disposition with the consent of the true owner:—Held: there was no proof of a general custom of hiring out chattels such as were specified in the agreement, nor was such a custom recognised by the cts. The inference of ownership was inevitable that by reason of the possession & user of the goods in the trade or business of the trader they "must" be the property of bkpts.—*Re KAUFMAN SEGAL & DOMB, Ex p. 6858a. Judgment debt.]—S., a customer of bkpt., a stockbroker, became indebted to him in respect of Stock Exchange transactions in a sum for which bkpt., on Dec. 18, 1923, recovered judgment. Later, S. became similarly indebted to bkpt. in a further sum. On Jan. 15, 1924, bkpt. assigned both debts to W. to secure £500, & covenanted with him that, in the event of his refraining from giving notice of the assignment to S., he, bkpt., would, on payment of the debts or any part thereof, hand the cheque or other form of payment to W. On Feb. 27, 1924, bkpt. committed an act of bkpcy. In Mar. 1924, J., who acted as solr. for both bkpt. & W. in the matter of the assignment, on the instructions of both & without disclosing same, made an agreement with S. for the liquidation of the two debts, whereby S. undertook to pay the aggregate amount thereof by monthly instalments, the first instalments being allocated to the payment of the later of the two debts & the subsequent ones to the payment of the judgment debt; & S. further agreed to deliver promissory notes payable to bkpt. or order to cover the instalments allocated to the later debt. J. received the notes from S. & as agent of W., collected the amounts as they fell due on the notes & paid part thereof to W. & retained the balance. After payment J. returned the notes to S. to be cancelled. At that time neither J. nor W. nor S. had notice of any available act of bkpcy. On Sept. 18, 1924, a receiving order was made, at which date S. had paid & W. had received from J. sums amounting to £90 in respect of the later debt. Upon receiving notice of the receiving order, J. gave notice to S. of the assignment. On Sept. 25, 1924, an order of adjudication was made, & on Oct. 7, 1924, appct. was appointed trustee. In Apr. 1925, W. died, & his exor. was made resp. to the motion by which a declaration was sought that the two debts were at the commencement of the bkpcy. in the order & disposition of bkpt. & property of bkpt. divisible amongst his creditors:—Held: (1) the earlier debt, which, admittedly, arose in the course of bkpt.'s business, was, notwithstanding its conversion into a judgment debt, none the less at the commencement of the bkpcy. a debt due in the course of his business & in the order & disposition of bkpt. & divisible amongst his creditors; (2) the agreement between bkpt. & S. & the deposit of the notes by bkpt. with W. having been effected after the commencement of the bkpcy., in the absence of knowledge on the part of either S. or W. of an available act of bkpcy., & the ct. inferring an agreement by W. with bkpt., in consideration of the deposit of the notes, not to enforce payment of the advance so long as S. paid the amounts as & when they fell due, constituted valid transactions for valuable consideration within 1914 Act, s. 45, & apart from such inference, the forbearance of W. on the strength of the deposit of the notes to sue & his acceptance of the instalments constituted sufficient consideration for the deposit of the notes: (3) even if the trustee was entitled to recover the instalments paid after the date of the receiving order, the amount paid before that date was a payment protected by sect. 45 (b); & the judgment debt formed part of the property of bkpt. divisible amongst his creditors, while the claim in respect of the other debt should be dismissed.—*Re WETHERED, Ex p. 6965a. "Any other petition"—Notice not given within fourteen days.]—A sheriff, on behalf of an execution creditor, levied an execution against debtor for more than £20, & received the money from debtor to avoid a sale. Within fourteen days of the payment the sheriff received notice of a bkpcy. petition on which an order would have been made had not debtor in the meanwhile filed his own petition on which a receiving order was made as a matter of course. Notice of this second petition was given to the sheriff more than fourteen days after the payment, but while the money was still in his hands pending the result of the first petition. The trustee in bkpcy. & the execution creditor both claimed the money:—Held: the words in 1914 Act, s. 41 (2), "or on any other petition of which the sheriff has notice," were not to be qualified by the addition of the words "within the said fourteen days" so as to permit the sheriff to pay the proceeds of the execution to the execution creditor because notice of the second petition on which the receiving order was made was not given within fourteen days of the receipt of such proceeds. The sheriff must hold, in the first instance, to see whether a receiving order would be made, & if he had notice of another petition, even after the lapse of fourteen days, then he must hold to see whether an order would be made on that other petition, or on any petition.—*LATTER v. sk. Settlement on creditor.—On Jan. 29, 1925, J., being in embarrassed circumstances & indebted, amongst others, to M. for £1,200, settled certain land on M., & another upon trust for herself & her only child during her life & after her death for her child absolutely. A private meeting of J.'s creditors was held on Apr. 22, 1925, & a committee appointed to investigate her affairs, & it was agreed to accept £200 from M. to be distributed among the creditors in full payment of their debts. Some of the creditors, including the R. Co., refused to carry out this arrangement, but on the faith that it would be carried out, J., on Apr. 28, paid M. £100 on account of his debt. On June 5 the debtor filed a petition for liquidation, but before the meeting on June 24 the R. Co. served a debtor's summons. The R. Co. had notice of the meeting for June 24, but did not attend. This meeting was attended by creditors whose indebtedness was about two-thirds of the total sum. They unanimously passed a resolution for liquidation by arrangement, & appointed a trustee. On the hearing of an application by the debtor & the trustee to dismiss the debtor's summons it was held that the application must be dismissed, but as the creditors who absented themselves from the liquidation meeting should have & could have attended it, they must pay the costs. The bkpey. proceedings were continued, & a trustee appointed. The trustee then applied to have the settlement to M. delivered up to be cancelled & for repayment of the £100 paid to M. on Apr. 28, 1925.—Held : the settlement was not made in good faith & must be delivered up. The payment of £100 to M. was a fraudulent preference, & it must be repaid to the trustee.—Re JEFFREYS (1925), 21 Tas. L. R. 31.—AUS.

7113a. — Gift by brother to sister.—By a deed of gift dated Oct. 7, 1919, debtor, who was adjudged bkpt. on Nov. 23, 1920, "in consideration of his natural love & affection for the donee" purported to assign & convey to his sister, resp., "the business carried on by him at 58a, Old Compton Street, Soho, & the stock-in-trade, wine & produce in & about the premises." At the date of the deed petitioning creditors were proceeding to enforce judgment under R. S. C., Ord. 14, & on Mar. 18, 1920, obtained final judgment against debtor for £527 7s. 4d. for goods sold & costs. On Mar. 20, 1920, execution was levied. Upon such levy being made, resp. claimed under the deed of gift the whole of the furniture & stock seized by the sheriff. An interpleader summons was taken out by the sheriff, & upon the hearing thereof, on Mar. 26, 1920, the master ordered claimant to pay into ct. £600 or give security for such amount, & in default the sheriff was authorised to sell the property seized & pay the proceeds into ct. to abide the result of an issue directed to be tried between claimant & the execution creditors. Pursuant to the order the sheriff sold the goods on Apr. 28, 1920. & on May 20, 1920, paid the sum of £202 12s. 2d. into ct. On Nov. 3, 1920, the parties to the interpleader summons agreed to divide the money between them & to withdraw the record; these terms were embodied in an order of the master of that date. In the meantime, however, a receiving order was made on Nov. 1, 1920, & petitioning creditors, the execution creditors, informed the official receiver of the sum of money being in ct. & of the terms of settlement so agreed as aforesaid. Thereupon the official receiver intervened, & on Nov. 1, 1920, gave notice in writing to the Paymaster-General of the Supreme Ct. of the receiving order, & this notice had the effect of preventing the order being acted upon. The trustee moved for a declaration that the deed of gift was void as against him:—Held: (1) the deed of gift was a voluntary settlement & being made within two years of the bkpcy., was void; (2) the execution having been completed & the proceeds held by the sheriff for fourteen days, the trustee's title was barred, because, although the execution was not completed before the sheriff had been in possession for twenty-one days, the act of bkpcy. thereby created had not occurred within three months of the presentation of the petition & was not therefore available to establish the trustee's title.—*Re CHIANDETTI, Ex p. the husband against his liability under the mtge. The husband was adjudged bkpt. on June 20, 1922, within two years of the assignment. On motion by the trustee in the bkpcy. for a declaration that the assignment was void against him as being a voluntary settlement under 1914 Act. s. 42:—Held: there was ample consideration in the assignment, & the wife was a "purchaser" for valuable consideration within the sect.—*Re CHARTERS, Ex p. In 1910, A. on his marriage had executed an ante-nuptial settlement, by which he (inter alia) covenanted with the trustees of the settlement to keep up a life policy on his life then existing & to pay the premiums, etc. On the bkpcy. of the two partners the trustees of the settlement lodged a proof in the bkpcy. of A. with regard to the covenant to keep up the policy, for a sum that was arrived at by commuting in a single payment the annual premiums payable to keep up the policy & to make it fully paid. The trustee in bkpcy. rejected the proof on the ground that under 1914 Act. s. 42 (2), their claim was postponed until all the other creditors for valuable consideration in money or money's worth had been satisfied, & he alleged that the assets available would not be sufficient:—Held: the covenant fell within 1914 Act. s. 42 (2), & the trustee was right in rejecting the proof, as being a claim for something which was only provable after the other creditors for valuable consideration in money or money's worth had been satisfied; & also having regard to 1914 Act, ss. 33 (6), 42 (2), & 63 (1), the right of the trustees to put in a proof must depend on all the creditors of the partnership between A. & B., the joint creditors of the partnership, as well as the separate creditors of A., being first satisfied.—*Re CUMMING & WEST, Ex p. Upon a motion by the trustees of bkpt. for an order on C. & B. as agents, neither of their principals having been made resps., to repay the £1,500 on the ground that the payment was void against the trustees as a fraudulent preference:—Held: (1) C. & B. received the money merely as agents of & for the use of the creditors in the ordinary course of their employment, & not as "persons in trust for any creditor" within 1914 Act, s. 44; (2) the circumstances under which the money was received & paid over precluded appcts. from recovering the money, even though it were proved that the payment, in fact, constituted a fraudulent preference, as to which the ct. did not consider it to be necessary to decide. Semble: (3) the personal liability of a person to whom payment has been made "in trust for any creditor" under 1914 Act, s. 44, must depend upon the facts of each case; in particular, whether the trustee had acted in good faith & whether he still held the money or had paid it over to the creditor before having received notice that the payment constituted a fraudulent preference.—*Re MORANT, Ex p. An order was subsequently made by a registrar, under 1914 Act, s. 51 (2), that £300 out of a sum of £416 13s. 4d. due under the agreement from the co. &/or its managing director to bkpt. be forthwith paid by them to the trustee of the estate of bkpt. When the registrar made that order the only parties before the ct. were the trustee & bkpt. Neither the co. nor its managing director paid the £300, but alleged that nothing was due to bkpt. upon the ground that he had broken the agreement by absenting himself from his employment. The trustee then served a notice of motion in the High Ct. upon the co. & its managing director asking for a declaration that he was entitled to the £300 from resps. as forming part of the property of bkpt., & for an order for payment of that amount. The judge found that no dismissal had taken place nor had bkpt., by his conduct, given notice of his intention not to perform the contract which could be treated by resps. as an anticipatory breach. He had bought the interest from a trust in which he was sole trustee, but he had never had the title transferred from himself as trustee to himself as an individual. The borrower offered to repay the loan on receipt of a valid discharge, but he would not accept a discharge signed by the trustee in bkpcy. The trustee, therefore, prepared an assignation of the bond by bkpt. to himself, but bkpt. refused to sign it, & persisted in his refusal in spite of an order pronounced upon him in the Sheriff Ct. No pains could follow, as bkpt. was already in prison. The trustee then presented a petition craving the ct. to authorise the clerk of ct. to sign the assignation on bkpt.'s behalf. The parties interested in the execution of the assignation in the manner proposed having lodged in process letters of consent thereto, the ct., in view of the small sum involved, granted the prayer of the petition.—Pennell's Trustee, [1928] S. Presidency Towns Insolvency Act.—

Presidency Towns Insolvency Act,
 s. 7, is not limited in its scope to matters in which the official assignee, by the operation of the insolvency law, claims a higher title than what the insolvent himself would have had, & the official assignee is entitled to proceed by way of motion under sect. 7 in cases where he has a money claim against strangers to the insolvency, the only limitation placed on the jurisdiction of the Insolvency Ct. being that, when, once the official assignee has summoned a witness, under sect. 36 of the Act, and that witness disputes his indebtedness, the official assignee has no option but to proceed by way of suit. Where the official assignee, standing in no higher position by reason of the special provisions of the insolvency law than the bkpt. himself, seeks to recover a debt which is not admitted, it is a matter of discretion for the judge sitting in insolvency whether in any given case he should deal with such a claim in the Insolvency Ct. or refer it to the machinery of the ordinary ct.—OFFICIAL ASSIGNEE v. In 1924 debtor executed a deed of arrangement for the benefit of his creditors generally. The deed was expressed to be made between debtor of the first, the trustee of the second part, three named creditors of the third part, & "the several persons, companies, & partnership firms, being creditors of debtor, whose names & seals are set out & affixed to the schedule hereto, or who shall otherwise in writing assent to these presents, herein-after called 'the creditors' " of the fourth part. Applt., who refused to consent to the deed, applied under the above sect. for a declaration that she was entitled as against the trustee of the deed to a charge on all the share & interest, with the exception of chattels, of debtor in his business, & for an order that the trustee should hand over & execute such documents as might be necessary for the purpose of transferring the share & interest to applt. The registrar in bkpcy. dismissed the application on the ground that he had no jurisdiction under the sect. to entertain it. On appeal:—Held: (1) the object of the sect. was to provide a trustee or cestui que trust under a deed of arrangement with a summary means of obtaining a determination of questions arising in the administration of the trusts of the deed similar to that provided by originating summons in the Ch. Div. under R. S. C. Ord. 55, r. 3; (2) applt. was not a creditor entitled to the benefit of the deed; creditors so entitled were those defined as such by the deed, & applt., not having assented to the deed, did not come within that category; (3) applt.'s claim was not for the enforcement of the trusts or the determination of any questions arising under the deed within the above sect., but was a claim to enforce a right adverse & paramount to the deed.—Re ELLIS, [1925] Ch. 564; 41 T. 8778a. ———.]—In 1904 debtor who was heavily indebted, & against whom bkpcy. proceedings were pending, signed an instrument under which a trustee was to receive the whole of debtor's income &, after making certain deductions, to distribute the balance among the creditors, & in consideration of the arrangement the creditors agreed that all proceedings in bkpcy. or otherwise were to be stayed & to accept payment of their debts by instalments & to release debtor from all claims or demands in respect of their debts. The instrument provided that no document executed by debtor should be registered under the above Act. A number of the then creditors including appct. assented to the instrument, which was never registered under the Act. The arrangement was carried out until the death of debtor, which occurred in Nov. 1918, appct. receiving pro rata amounts on his debt between Aug. 1905 & July 1917. The debt carried interest at 4 per cent. & the payments under the arrangement to appct. were not sufficient to cover the interest so that an amount exceeding the original debt was still owing to appct. In Feb. 1919, an administration order under 1914 Act, s. 130, was made upon a creditor's petition for the administration of deceased debtor's estate as being a person who had died insolvent, & the estate was being administered by the official receiver. At the time of debtor's death there was in the hands of the trustee under the instrument a sum of £465 8s. 3d. which the official receiver claimed on the ground that it formed part of the general estate of debtor, & the trustee paid the amount to him upon the terms that the official receiver was to be in the same position as he would have been if the money had remained in the trustee's hands. On a motion by appct. for a declaration that the £465 8s. 3d. was held by the trustee on behalf of the assenting creditors, including appct., was divisible amongst them, & that appct. was entitled to prove in the administration of the estate for the balance due to him from debtor after giving credit for all sums received or receivable under the arrangement :—Held : (1) the instrument was a deed of arrangement within 1887 Act, s. 4 (2), upon the ground that it was an assignment of property by debtor for the benefit of his creditors generally & also upon the ground that it was an agreement for a composition; (2) not having been registered it was void under sect. 5 of the Act; (3) as the instrument was void it created no trust for the benefit of the creditors, & the trustee under the instrument held the £465 8s. 3d. to the use of the official receiver as the representative of debtor, & was bound to repay it to him; (4) as the only direction to apply the money received by the trustee was contained in the void instrument & all parties knew & acted upon the assumption that it was invalid, deceased debtor would not have been, nor was the official receiver as his representative, estopped from setting up its invalidity & claiming from the trustee any money still in his hands; (5) equally there was no estoppel which prevented appct. from setting up the invalidity of the instrument & proving in the administration for the balance due to him from debtor; (6) as the instrument was void the release of the debts it contained was of no effect; (7) as is a claim for unliquidated damages, they must be assessed before the claimant can have any right to vote.—Re Andrew Motherwell Estate, [1923] 4 D. L. R. 986; affd. 25 O. W. N. 359.—CAN.

Some of his creditors, whose claims amounted to £150 were not parties to the scheme or deed, &, acting under legal advice, debtor did not register the deed. After paying his trade creditors, including pltfs., a small portion of the composition, debtor sold his business & entered into another scheme of arrangement with his creditors, to which pltfs. refused to be parties, & they sued for the original debt owing to them, less the amount which they had received under the composition:—Held: (1) the deed came within Deeds of Arrangement Act, 1914 (c. 47), s. 1 (1) (b), &, not being registered, was void; (2) pltfs., who had assented to the deed, were not estopped by such assent from denying the validity of the deed; (3) assuming that they were so estopped, debtor, by selling his business before Apr. 30, 1926, had not fulfilled the conditions of the deed under which he would be released from his original liability, & therefore pltfs. were relegated to their original rights & were entitled to succeed on their claim. sy. Assignment to creditor to secure advances—Retention of amount by assignee in excess of amount paid to other creditors].—Pltf. having become insolvent, made an assignment for the benefit of creditors, whereupon one of the creditors was appointed assignee. The business was reconveyed to pltf. on his undertaking to pay a composition on the amount of his indebtedness for the payment of which another of defts. became surety, & pltf. subsequently executed several assignments to defts. to secure advances. Defts. having taken possession under the last-mentioned assignments, the matters in difference between pltf. & defts. were referred to a master, with instructions to "take an account & report the sum due from either party to the other of them." The master having reported (inter alia) that defts., after paying the other creditors of pltf. their respective claims at the rate of sixty-two & a half cents on the dollar, had paid to themselves the full amount of their claim, & that being of opinion that defts. were not entitled to any greater rate of dividend on their claim than that paid to the other creditors, he had disallowed the surplus with interest, & had credited the same to pltf.:—Held: the decision of the Supreme Ct. of Nova Scotia, confirming the report of the master on the reference must be reversed on the ground that the master had exceeded his authority & reported on matters not referred to him.—DOUGL. v. McLEITH (1886), 19 N. S. R. (7 R. & G.) 341; 7 C. L. T. 106; reversd. (1887), 14 S. C. R. 73.—CAN.

9213 ii. —Out of assets in schedule.]—Under a document signed by one A. & three of his creditors, applt. was appointed to take control on A.'s behalf of certain of his assets enumerated in an annexed schedule & to dispose of them for the benefit of the three creditors. The latter portion of the document was as follows: "and we the undersigned creditors of the said A. do hereby agree to accept as full settlement of the claims we have against him such pro rata share as may be found due in respect of the sale of the said assets, & we agree to pay the said applt. the usual commission on all assets realised: applt. having taken possession of the assets & having sold some of them, resp., one of the creditors who had signed the document, in an action against applt., complained that applt. had awarded a preference to one M. a creditor who had signed the document in respect of his claim which was based on two mtgs. bonds referred to in the schedule of assets, & that applt. had failed to award resp. a pro rata share of the proceeds of the assets realised. It was common cause that if M. was entitled to the preference, resp., an unsecured creditor, would get nothing. The C. P. D. ordered applt. to amend his account by striking out the preference awarded to M. & distributing the proceeds of the assets among the creditors pro rata according to the respective amounts of their claims. Extrinsic evidence showing that the parties never intended that the secured creditors should abandon their preference had been led subject to subsequent decision as to its admissibility, but was held by the cts. below to be inadmissible, on the ground that the document was not ambiguous:—Held: the words "pro rata share" meant that the three creditors were to look to the proceeds of the assets in the schedule alone for the settlement of their claims, if the assets did not realise the full amount of their debts, & that they had reference not to the respective claims of the creditors but to the proportion that the proceeds bore to the total amount of the debts & that there was nothing in the document to show that preferences were to be given up.—SWANEPOEL v. 508a. ——— ——— ———.] — Defts., merchants in London, were in the habit of purchasing goods for G., a merchant at Petersburg, which they consigned to plff., his agent at Hamburg, & they drew bills to the amount, pursuant to the credit established for them. In such course of business, they consigned Brazil sugars & indigo to plff. for G. & other merchants at Petersburg, & transmitted the bills of lading, & drew bills to the amount; upon which plff. informed them, that he protected their drafts to the amount of all the goods consigned to the merchants at Petersburg, except those consigned to G.; that he accepted the draft for the amount of such goods provisionally, under the guarantee of defts., inasmuch as the sugars against which the bill was drawn were not, as ordered by his principal, Havannah, to the amount of which he was authorised to accept, but

Brazil, respecting which he had no directions; that he would communicate with his principal on the subject, & inform defts. of the result. Such communication being made, G. at Petersburg, confirmed the order for the Brazil sugars, & directed plff. to accept to their amount, & release defts. from their guarantee. Plff. also informed defts. of their drafts, drawn on him against goods, being confirmed & acknowledged by other merchants at Petersburg, for whose account they were drawn. Upon the bkpey. of G. & an action by plff. against defts., for the amount of the bill which he had paid :—Held : plff. was to be considered as having accepted the bill, not for the account of defts. until he, the acceptor, was in funds, but in reference to the confirmation of the order for the Brazil, instead of the Havannah sugars; which confirmation being given, his claim was upon the bkpt. at Petersburg, not upon defts., against whom, consequently, no action could be maintained.—*LOHMANN v. 567b. —.]—MCDONALD (GERALD) & Co. v. NASH & Co., No. 2096b, post.

568a. — Effect of 1882 Act, s. 12.—F., a financier, L., a distiller, D. & M., a firm of shipbrokers, & one A. were minded to load a ship with a cargo of whisky to be carried across the Atlantic & sold in the U.S. or at some point from which it could easily be smuggled into the U.S., in violation of the laws of that country. D. & M. entered into a contract to buy a steamer for £2,565; F. advanced £256 as a deposit on the purchase. On Oct. 26, 1927, an agreement was entered into between F., L. & D. & M., whereby L. agreed to sell to D. & M. 7,500 cases of whisky at 27s. 6d. a case free on board at Leith or Glasgow to be delivered ex warehouse not later than Nov. 26. D. & M. were to take delivery on board a vessel of a regular line of steamers. Payment was to be made by a bill for £5,500 drawn by F., accepted by A. & indorsed to L. & a second bill for £1,812 accepted by A. & D. & M., both bills to be payable ninety days from Nov. 26, & to be drawn & accepted on Oct. 26 & handed to L. to hold as security until he should hand the shipping documents or delivery order from bond on or before Nov. 26. L. agreed to lend D. & M. £2,500 (£1,000 at 8 per cent. per annum & £1,500 at 10 per cent. per annum interest) for the purchase of the steamer, the loan to be secured by a first mtge. on the steamer. F. agreed to lend D. & M. £1,000 at 40 per cent. per annum interest to be secured by a second mtge. on the steamer. D. & M. agreed to insure the steamer for £1,000 against all risks including seizure or confiscation & £2,500 against marine risks & deliver to L. cover notes for £1,500 & £1,000 to F. a cover note for £1,000. F. & L. agreed jointly to underwrite the insurance for £1,000 against confiscation at a figure to be agreed in the event of the ordinary market rate exceeding thirty guineas per cent. D. & M. agreed to provide £1,600, the estimated balance required for the equipment of the steamer for the voyage. In intended pursuance of the agreement two documents undated, & purporting to be bills of exchange, though written upon unstamped paper, were sent to L.; both were headed "London"; one was drawn by F., accepted by A., & indorsed by F., & was for £5,500, payable ninety days after date; the other not signed by any one as drawer; it was accepted by A. & by D. & M., & was for £1,812 payable ninety days after date. Delay having occurred in naming a liner to take delivery of the whisky & in equipping the steamer for the adventure, L. gave to D. & M. a delivery order addressed to the keepers of the bonded warehouse where the whisky was in store. D. & M. immediately pledged the whisky for £500. F. hearing of this paid off the loan & took a transfer of the delivery order. The so-called bills of exchange for £5,500 & £4,812 were sent to L., who was at Lausanne. He struck out "London" & substituted "Lausanne," added Dec. 3 as the date of each, & signed his name as the drawer of the second, & stamped them both as foreign bills:—Held: (1) the so-called bill for £5,500, being drawn, accepted & indorsed in this country on unstamped paper, was void by Stamp Act, 1891 (c. 39), ss. 2, 37 (2), 38 (1); (2) the so-called bill for £4,812 though valid in other respects, as a foreign bill, notwithstanding 1882 Act, s. 64, was invalidated by L. having added a date not in accordance with the contract, & was not protected by 1882 Act, s. 12.—FOSTER v. DRISCOLL, LINDSAY v. ATTEFIELD, LINDSAY v. DRISCOLL, [1929] 1 K. B. 470; 98 L. J. K. B. 282; 110 L. T. 479; 45 T. L. R. 185, C. A.

588a. — Particular purpose—Fraudulent use for another purpose.—A cheque was signed in blank by one of the partners in a syndicate, in the belief that the stamp of the syndicate would be subsequently affixed & the cheque used for the ordinary business of the syndicate. It was made payable to another partner, & was indorsed by a third partner, who believed the same as the drawer, as well as by the payee. The payee, in fraud of the other two partners, did not affix the stamp of the syndicate & used the cheque for the purpose of raising a loan from money-lenders, for which he gave a promissory note binding him to repay an agreed sum by monthly instalments. When one of the instalments fell due, the cheque was tendered in payment & was dishonoured upon presentation, the money-lenders then sued the drawer & the indorser:—Held: the drawer & indorser were liable on the cheque, as there had been nothing to put ptfs. on inquiry whether a fraud was being perpetrated by the payee, & as both defts., when signing the document, had intended that the document should be negotiated as a cheque, the cheque could not be regarded as a document given in escrow.—GUILDFORD TRUST, LTD. v. payable at the W. Bank—A.B. & C.D., directors—Fashions Fair Exhibition, Ltd.” The drawer when sending the bill to the co. for acceptance stated in his letter that as a condition of his doing the work for which the bill was drawn he should require it to be indorsed by the directors as well as accepted by the co. Accordingly the same two directors signed the bill also on the back, “Fashions Fair Exhibition, Ltd. A.B. & C.D., directors,” & one of them when returning the accepted bill drew attention in his letter to the fact that it was “duly indorsed by two directors of the co. as requested by you.” In an action against A.B. & C.D. as indorsers of the bill:—Held: (1) they were personally liable, upon the ground that if the indorsement was to be treated as that of the co. it gave no greater validity to the bill than was already contained in the acceptance, & therefore under 1882 Act, s. 26 (2), the construction that it was the personal indorsement of debts. was to be adopted; (2) even if the indorsement stood by itself, as debts’ signature did not in terms say that they were signing on behalf of the co., the addition to their names of the word “directors” must be treated as a word of description only & not as excluding their liability; (3) the ct. were entitled to look at the surrounding circumstances under which the bill was signed, including the letters which passed between the parties on the subject of the indorsement, from which it was to be inferred that debts, by indorsing intended to guarantee the payment of the bill.—ELLIOTT v. BAX-IRONSIDE, [1925] 2 K. B. 301; 94 L. J. K. B. 807; 133 L. T. 624; 41 T. L. R. 631, C. A.

Ltd.” as drawer. They had been accepted in respect of goods supplied by the co. to debts., & pltf. had stated that it must be “clearly understood that I am in no way accepting any liability or responsibility whatever in respect of the orders themselves”:—Held: (1) the above were not “surrounding circumstances” from which the intention of the parties could be inferred, & such intention must be gathered from the terms of the document alone; (2) the words “Receiver, F. Ltd.” were words of description only, & the bills did not purport to have been drawn on behalf of the co.; (3) pltf. was entitled to recover against debts. upon the bills.—*KETTLE v. st. Giving credit.—In an action upon promissory notes made by debts, husband & wife, in favour of pltf., wholesale merchants, it appeared that in Mar. 1921, the wife debt, who had been carrying on a retail business, made an assignment under the Bkpy. Act, & shortly afterwards made a proposal to compound her debts at 35 cents in the dollar, to be paid in ten equal monthly instalments. The composition was duly approved by the ct. Pltf. were among the creditors. The debtor did not complete the composition payments within the times proposed, & the final payment was not made until Aug. 1923. After the composition was approved, the debtor continued to do business, & made some purchases from pltf. In Sept. 1922, the debtor proposed to buy a large quantity from pltf. on credit, but pltf. refused to give credit for the quantity desired unless debts. would make some settlement of the old debt, i.e. the unpaid balance of pltf.’ compound claim. Debts. thereupon signed the promissory notes now sued upon, delivered them to pltf., & received a new supply of goods upon the credit they desired:—Held: the notes were not made for the accommodation of pltf.; but, though representing a compromised debt, were in fact made in consideration of the giving of credit in respect of the new sale, & that was sufficient consideration to support the notes & to render debts. liable.—*CHAMANDY BROTHERS, LTD. v. 2096a. ————]—J. sold certain goods to C., Ltd., of which G. was managing director & in which he was largely interested. In payment for these goods J. drew a bill of exchange to his own order at three months for £450 upon C., Ltd., who accepted it, & it was indorsed by G. before J. had indorsed it as payee, & his name appeared below that of G. The bill was indorsed by G. in order to enable J. to discount it, & for no consideration moving from J. to G., who was to be under no liability to J. The bill was discounted by J.'s bank & was not met at maturity. An arrangement was subsequently made by which C., Ltd., paid £100 in cash to the bank in part satisfaction & the bank received two bills drawn by J. to his own order & accepted by C., Ltd., for £175 each at one month & two months respectively. These bills were indorsed by G. before they were signed by J. either as drawer or payee. They were afterwards indorsed by J., whose name appeared on the bills below that of G. The first bill not having been met at maturity, J. took it up & sued C., Ltd., & G. upon the bill & recovered judgment, & afterwards presented a petition in bkpy. in the county ct. against G., founded on the judgment debt, upon which a receiving order was made against him. On appeal:—Held: (1) J. had authority under 1882 Act, s. 20, to fill in his own name as drawer & payee; (2) there was sufficient consideration passing from J. to G. to entitle J. to sue G. on the bill notwithstanding the order in which the signatures appeared on the bill; (3) by reason of the agreement between J. & G., G. could not have set up any defence against J. arising out of his own prior indorsement; (4) the judgment debt was a good petitioning creditor's debt & the receiving order was rightly made.—Re GOOCH, Ex p. JUDD, 2096b. ————]—In May, 1920, appls. sold to A. & Co. 19,000 cases of tinned soup at the price of 10s. per case, cash against delivery order. A. & Co., being unable to find the money, applied for financial assistance to resps., who undertook as between themselves & A. & Co. to find 75 per cent. of the money, there being then about 16,000 cases which had not been taken up. On Aug. 10, 1920, at a meeting between appls., resps. & A. & Co., it was agreed that resps. should indorse a series of eight bills of exchange, seven for £1,000 each & one for £117 odd, to be drawn by appls. on A. & Co. payable six months after date to appls.' order, & that appls., in consideration of the bills being duly indorsed by resps., should hand to resps. delivery orders for the balance of the cases. These bills were at once drawn by appls. on A. & Co. expressed to be payable to appls.' order, & were accepted by A. & Co. & indorsed by resps. Room was left above the name of resps. for the indorsement of the name of any person to whom appls. should direct payment. Resps. then handed the bills to appls. in exchange for the delivery orders. One bill having been discharged, appls. shortly before the remaining bills became due indorsed their name as payee on the bills above resps.' signature. Appls. duly presented the bills to A. & Co., who dishonoured them. They then gave notice of dishonour & claimed payment from resps., who denied liability. In an action by appls. to recover the amount of the bills against resps. as indorsers:—Held: (1) on the facts resps. must be taken to have intended to make themselves liable to appls. on the bills; (2) the bills, when handed to appls., were wanting in a material particular within 1882 Act, s. 20, by reason of the absence of any indorsement by appls. above the signature of resps., & appls. had implied authority to fill in their name as payees, as they did, over the name of resps.; & when so filled up, the bills became retrospectively enforceable.—McDONALD (GERALD) & Co. v. After the death of testator & probate of the will the exor. brought an action on the promissory note against one of the other makers thereof:—Held: the action was not maintainable, inasmuch as the effect of pltf.'s appointment as exor. was at common law that the debt was discharged by release at the date of the death of testator, & in equity that it was discharged by payment at the date of probate, so that in either case the debt had ceased to exist before the action.—JENKINS v. Before the bill became due deft. had made a verbal offer to his creditors to pay a composition in discharge of his liabilities. At a meeting of the creditors, which was attended by pltf.'s agent, the creditors passed a resolution accepting deft.'s offer. The resolution was reduced to writing & was signed by a number of the creditors, including pltf.'s agent, but not by deft. The creditors subsequently executed a deed assigning their debts to deft.'s solr. in consideration of deft.'s solr. paying the amounts owing to them under the composition. Pltf. was not a party to that deed. In an action by the holder of the bill against the acceptor, for the amount of the bill:—Held: upholding a contention of pltf., which was not raised in the cts. below, 1882 Act, s. 62, had not been complied with, as pltf. had neither renounced his rights under the bill in writing, nor delivered the bill up to the acceptor & therefore, pltf. was entitled to recover the full amount of the bill.—RIMALT v. for presentation. The parties to the bills having mutually agreed that the dates of payment should be postponed, resps. altered the dates so noted, but without making any alteration in the bills as originally drawn. On presentation for payment at the extended dates the bills were dishonoured by applts. — Held: there had been no discharge of the bills by material alteration, nor was a new stamping necessary under Indian Stamp Act, 1899, ss. 14, 35; & applts. remained liable.—PESTONJI (H.) & Co. v. It was sent to London, was accepted by resps. payable at a London bank, & returned to France, where it was indorsed by E. in his own name, on behalf, & with the authority, of M., to applts. On presentation for payment, resps. refused to meet it on the ground that it did not bear the indorsement of M., the payee, but merely the indorsement of E. In an action on the bill against resps. as acceptors evidence was given that by French law an indorsement might be validly made by a duly authorised agent signing his own name:—Held: applts. as indorsees obtained a good title to the bill by virtue of 1882 Act, s. 72, & were entitled to recover the amount thereof from resps. as acceptors.—*Koechlin et Cie v. 2876 ii. ———.—Held: Pltf. who owned thirty-one debentures of the Bombay Improvement Trust entrusted them to his agent, deft. No. 1, for collection of interest. Deft. No. 1 forged pltf.'s signature on the debentures, & indorsed them in his own favour. Subsequently deft. No. 1 pledged them with a bank, deft. No. 2, to secure an overdraft to himself. The bank surrendered the debentures to the Bombay Improvement Trust for renewal. New debentures were issued payable to the bank or order. These new debentures were subsequently indorsed to another bank (deft. No. 3) for value. Pltf. filed a suit against defts. for a return of the debentures, or in the alternative for their value. —Held: the debentures promissory notes, & therefore negotiable instruments within Negotiable Instruments Act, ss. 4 & 13. —MERCANTILE BANK OF INDIA v. letter written before the keys were handed over, & the second letter subsequently. The second letter contained the words: "The goods to be locked up, the keys in your possession, & you to have the right to remove same as desired." The co. went into liquidation & the liquidator claimed that the transaction was invalid under Companies Act, 1908 (c. 69), s. 93 (1) (c), as being a charge created or evidenced by an instrument which if executed by an individual would require registration as a bill of sale. Pltf. brought an action claiming a declaration that the goods were in his possession, & that he was entitled to remove them:—Held: possession of the goods passed to pltf. by the delivery of the keys of the rooms in which they were locked up, notwithstanding that those rooms were on defts.' premises, inasmuch as defts. had conferred upon pltf. a licence to make the necessary entry in order to use the keys, which licence could not be revoked, & therefore the transaction was valid as against the liquidator, & pltf. was entitled to remove the goods.—*WRIGHTSON v. 98a. Letter assigning chattel in hands of third party—Or proceeds of sale—As security for overdraft.—The owner of a motor car which was in the hands of deft., a motor engineer, for the purpose of repairs, & which he had instructed deft. to sell on his behalf when repaired, had an account at pltf.' bank, which was overdrawn. Being requested by pltf. to give security for the overdraft he wrote to deft. a letter authorising him "to hold the car to the order of" the bank "or the proceeds when sold," & sent a copy of that letter to pltf. The letter was not registered as a bill of sale. The car having been sold & the price received by deft., pltf. claimed the proceeds:—Held: the letter in question created one entire charge upon the car & the proceeds which represented it, & the equitable assignment of the proceeds could not be severed from the assignment of the car itself; the letter was consequently a bill of sale & void for want of registration & for non-compliance with the statutory form.—*NATIONAL PROVINCIAL & UNION BANK OF ENGLAND v. 228a. — — — & grantor's creditors paid by grantee.]—(1) On June 24, 1925, the parties to a bill of sale for £1,000 entered into an agreement that the grantee should pay, as he then did, £600 to creditors of the grantor in satisfaction of their debt, that the existing bill of sale should be cancelled, & that the grantor should give to the grantee a new bill of sale for £1,600. The new bill of sale provided that "in consideration of £1,600 paid to" the grantor "by" the grantee "on June 24, 1925," the grantor assigned the chattels to the grantee:—Held: the new bill of sale truly set forth the consideration for which it was given, as required by 1882 Act, s. 8.

(2) A bill of sale provided that the grantor would pay the grantee the principal sum of £1,600 with the interest then due "on Dec. 24, 1925." A contemporaneous mtge. of other property, given as part of the same transaction & as a collateral security for the principal sum, provided as follows: "The mtgor." (the grantor of the bill of sale) "hereby covenants with the mtgee." (the grantee) "to pay to him on Dec. 24 next £1,600 with interest thereon, & it is hereby agreed & declared that (subject to the right of the mtgee. to require repayment of the principal on Dec. 24 next according to the foregoing covenant by the mtgor. or at any time thereafter) the principal money hereby secured shall be repaid by instalments of not less than £20" on specified dates; these provisions not being contained in the bill of sale:—Held: the bill of sale by being made contemporaneously with, & as part of the same transaction as, the mtge. containing that clause for repayment of the principal by instalments, was not made or given subject to a "defeasance or condition" within 1878 Act, s. 10 (3), & the fact that that clause was not contained in the body of the bill of sale or written on the same paper or parchment therewith did not avoid the registration of the bill of sale under that sub-sect.—*STOTT v. He won other bets for which he was paid by various cheques. Eventually, pltf. obtained judgment against deft. for £692 10s. Execution was levied at the instance of the judgment creditor where-upon deft.'s wife, claimant in the interpleader proceedings which followed, claimed the goods seized, alleging that they belonged to her because her husband, the judgment debtor, had given her a bill of sale covering them to secure the repayment of a sum of £600 which she had advanced to him. The judgment creditor contended that the bill of sale was bad because it did not truly state the consideration. The bill of sale contained

& to secure the purchase price pltf. took from A. a seed grain mtge. on the crop to be grown:—Held: as A. did not require the whole of the wheat for seed, & as the price fixed had no relation to the value of the wheat but was fixed with reference to the debt owing by A. to pltf., the actual value being much less than the price agreed on, the transaction could not be considered a bond fide sale to A., & pltf.'s mtge. was invalid.—*LYNCH v. the words "In consideration of a sum of £600 now paid . . ." & the judgment creditor said that the £600 was not paid at the time of making the bill of sale, & therefore was not "now paid," as therein stated, but was paid some time later. It was therefore contended that the bill of sale was not a good bill of sale because the statement that the money was "now paid" was untrue. According to the evidence, deft.'s wife had borrowed the £600 from her mother to help her husband, & she handed the £600 over to her husband to pay his debts at 6 p.m., on the same day that the bill of sale was executed:—Held: there was evidence in the present case on which the county ct. judge could find that the £600 was "now paid" within the meaning of the statement in the bill; the bill of sale was executed, & the money was paid over by claimant at substantially the same time; the bill was therefore valid & the appeal must be dismissed.—*HENSHALL v. pi. ——— Rights of grantor.—The covenant implied in instruments by way of security over stock which, while forbidding the removal of stock without the grantee's consent, permits a sale by the grantor in the ordinary course of business, provided that the number of stock is not thereby reduced below the number stated in the security, does not require as a condition of a valid sale that the proceeds be paid to the grantee.—NATIONAL BANK OF NEW thereto as his own, though, in fact, the true owner was pltf., his wife. The bill of sale was given as security for a loan to the grantor from deft., & at the time of its execution the wife made a statutory declaration that the goods were those of her husband. One firm of solrs. acted for all the parties in this transaction. On a claim by the wife to the goods:—Held: she was estopped from denying that the goods were those of her husband, & thus showing that the bill of sale was void as against deft. under 1882 Act, s. 5.—*WESTEN v. Subsequently the deed of gift was declared void under 13 Eliz. c. 5 as being in fraud of creditors. The furniture having been taken in execution by a judgment creditor the bill of sale holder claimed the furniture under the bill of sale. Interpleader proceedings were instituted in which the execution creditor alleged that the bill of sale was void under 1882 Act, s. 5, on the ground that the grantor was not the "true owner" of the furniture at the time of the execution of the bill of sale:—Held: until the deed of gift was set aside the donee thereunder was the "true owner" of the furniture, & as she had conveyed the furniture to a purchaser for value without notice before the deed of gift was set aside, claimant obtained a good title under the bill of sale.—*HARRODS, LTD. v. 830a. ———.]—In June, 1921, a bill of sale, which was duly registered, was given to secure £400 with interest at 24 per cent. per annum. An agreement was afterwards made by which the present claimant agreed with the grantor of the bill of sale to pay to the grantee £450 then owing thereon & to lend to the grantor a further sum of £550 upon having the payment of these sums, making together £1,000 with interest thereon, secured by a transfer of the £450 then owing on the bill of sale & the securities for the same. Subsequently, in Nov. 1921, a deed was made between the parties to the bill of sale & claimant, by which, in pursuance of the agreement & in consideration of £450 then paid to the grantee of the bill of sale by claimant, the grantee assigned to claimant the principal & interest secured by the bill of sale & all securities therefor, & the grantee also at the request of the grantor assigned to claimant the goods comprised in the bill of sale free from all equity of redemption under the bill of sale, but subject to a proviso for redemption in the deed, & the grantor covenanted with claimant to pay to her on a specified date the £1,000 with interest at 6 per cent. per annum. The latter deed was not registered as a bill of sale under the Bills of Sale Acts:—Held: the deed was not a “transfer or assignment” of the registered bill of sale within 1878 Act, s. 10, but was a new bill of sale which itself required to be registered &, therefore, claimant was not entitled to rely upon the registered bill of sale as assignee thereof.—*MARSHALL & SNELGROVE, LTD. v. 810 ia. ———.]—By bill of sale.]—D. executed a bill of sale, duly registered, assigning to the Crown (inter alia) all after-acquired chattels. D. subsequently executed in favour of deft. another bill of sale over certain farm implements acquired since the first bill of sale. Upon the sale of these implements the Crown claimed the proceeds on the ground that upon their acquisition they became subject to the security of the Crown. Dft. was aware that the Crown held a chattel security, but believed it comprised other chattels than those contained in his security:—Held: the title acquired by the Crown was equitable only, & since deft. acquired a good title at law for value & without notice of the special provision in the Crown's security, the legal title prevailed over the equitable title; & deft.'s knowledge of the existence of the former bill of sale did not amount to constructive notice of its contents.—*R. v. sa Boundary in plan running in straight line—Deviation for convenience.]—Lands owned by pldt. & deft. were described as bounded in the one case on the north & in the other on the south side of the "C. Rd." The road in the original grant & the plan attached thereto, was shown to run in a straight line between the lands of the two opposite proprietors. The line as laid out ran through a deep gully & for convenience the road at that point was directed to one side, returning to the described straight line further on.—Held: the line as shown upon the plan controlled the line by which the parties bounding upon the road had held. BANKS v. - 171a. ————]—Pltfs. were incorporated, under Canvey Island (Sea Defences) Act, 1883, for protecting Canvey Island from inundation by the sea. They succeeded former comrs. appointed by an Act of 1729 (32 Geo. 3, c. 31), which contained a power for these comrs. under s. 13 to erect a new sea wall further inward, on giving compensation to the owner whose land was taken for this purpose. In 1813 the new wall was built, & £150 given as compensation to the owner of the land taken. Under the Act of 1883 the property & rights of the former comrs. were vested in pltfs. who had power under that Act to hold lands. Pltfs. claimed to be owners in possession of the foreshore between the new & the old wall. Deft. claimed under a conveyance of Apr. 1919 to be the freeholder in possession of a strip of land comprising part of this foreshore, & to be entitled as of right to excavate & remove shells & other drift even although, as pltfs. alleged, it deprived the new wall of protection & support, & exposed it to injury by the action of wind & water. The greater risk to the wall in consequence of deft.'s action was established by the evidence. In an action by pltfs. to restrain deft. from so removing the drift, & from trespassing on their land:—Held: (1) assuming the strip in question to be deft.'s freehold, pltfs. were still entitled to an injunction restraining him from so removing drift from the strip as to expose their wall & works & the lands protected thereby to greater risk of inundations of the sea; (2) pltfs. had established their statutory title under the Acts of 1792 & 1883 to the whole of the land taken & set out pursuant to s. 13 of the first Act, & had exercised specific acts of ownership over the foreshore; the possession of pltfs. & of deft. being at most doubtful or equivocal the law attached possession to the title; deft., therefore, was a trespasser, & must be restrained from excavating or removing stones, shingle, shell or soil from the particular strip of foreshore & from otherwise trespassing on same.—CANVEY ISLAND COMRS. v. - 58a. — Contract for supply between employer & third party.]—A. co. carrying on the business of builders & decorators entered into a contract with a corpn. for the erection of two lodges & a park entrance. With the assent of the builders, the corpn. conducted the negotiations with a stone firm for the supply of the stone which was required for the work & fixed the quantity & price. The contract between the builders & the corpn. provided that the corpn. should pay the stone firm the price of the stone, to be deducted from the contract price. Owing to delay in delivering the stone the builders were unable to complete the work until some months after the date fixed for completion by the contract. In an action by the builders against the corpn. in respect of the loss arising to the builders by reason of such delay:—Held: there was no implied obligation on the corpn. under the contract between them & the builders to supply the stone; at the highest there was only an obligation on them to hold the benefit of the contract with the stone firm for the builders; & that "business efficacy" did not require that there should be implied an obligation on the corpn. to make good to the builders any loss which they might suffer by reason of the failure of the stone firm to deliver in time. Accordingly the corpn. were not liable to the builders for such loss.—GAZE (W. H.) & SONS, LTD. v. PORT TALBOT CORPN. (1929), 93 J. P. 89; 27 L. G. R. 200.

- 230a. — Excess of cost of completion over contract price.—By a contract in writing dated May 12, 1916, deft. agreed to build for pltf. a house, subject to the conditions set forth in the schedule thereto, for the sum of £1,900. The conditions provided (inter alia) that deft. should begin the works immediately after possession of the site was given to him, & should regularly proceed with & complete the same within six months after the date of the plans being passed by the local authority, & that if deft. should suspend the works or should not proceed with them with due diligence, pltf. by his architect should have power to give notice to deft. requiring him to proceed, & on failure of deft. to comply with such notice for thirty days pltf. should be entitled to enter upon & take possession of the works & site & employ any other person to complete the works. On July 10, 1916, the plans were duly passed. On July 14, 1916, an order was made by the Minister of Munitions under the powers of the Defence of the Realm (Consolidation) Regulations, 1914, which provided that on & after July 20, 1916, no person should without licence from the Minister of Munitions commence or carry on any building or construction work. On July 21 deft. applied for a licence to proceed, & continued to work fairly well until Aug. 12, when he ceased to proceed with due diligence with the deliberate intention, as the ct. held, of ensuring that the licence should be refused & that he should thereby be enabled to put an end to the contract. On Sept. 9 pltf.'s architect gave him thirty days' notice to proceed with the works. On Sept. 30, before the expiration of the notice, the Minister of Munitions

The builder finished his work, & the owner accepted possession of the house & paid two instalments of the account. Afterwards the outside walls began to crack, & it was discovered that the walls were off the plumb. In an action by the builder for the balance of his account, the owner averred that the defect in the walls was occasioned by the use of faulty materials in the construction of the concrete floors by the builder. The builder averred that the damage to the walls was caused by the use of unseasoned timber in the construction of the roof by the other contractor. Neither of these averments was established at the proof, but either of them might have been the cause of the cracking of the walls:—Held: breach of contract had not been established against pursuer, & he was entitled to decree for the balance of the contract price.—CARRUTHERS v. 342a. —.]—Pltfs. claimed £1,000 being retention moneys due from defts. to a firm of contractors. Pltfs. claimed under an assignment dated Apr. 7, 1924. On Nov. 21, 1922, defts. entered into a building contract for a lump sum with S., the contractors, for the construction of a number of cottages under a housing scheme. The contract provided for interim payments, but no money was to become payable to the contractors except on the architect's certificate in writing, & certificates were to be issued when work to the value of £1,000 had been executed & thereafter at monthly intervals as certified by the architect in writing. He was to certify the amount from time to time payable to the contractors under the contract. The amount to be certified by the architect on his first & monthly certificates as due to the contractors was to be at the rate of 90 per cent. of the value of the work, including extras. The balance of 10 per cent. of the value of the work was to be retained until the sum so retained, called a retention fund, should amount to £2472 after which the contractors were to be paid monthly to the full value of the work done & the materials supplied. The retention fund was to be deposited in a bank until the final adjustment of accounts. The contract was varied by consent, & in the events which happened

the retention fund amounted to £1,000 at the beginning of 1924. This was never deposited at the bank & remained a merely notional fund, but both parties treated it as a separate sum capable of being earmarked. It was included without distinction in the architect's final certificate for £1,848 10s. 2d. —.]—Meanwhile pltfs., who were supplying cement to the contractors, found that the latter were getting into arrears with their payments & to obtain further credit the contractors, being then indebted to pltfs. in the sum of £671 on Apr. 7, 1924, assigned to them the retention fund by a document dated Apr. 7, 1924, in the following terms: "In part reduction of the amount now, or to be, owing from us to you for goods supplied by you, we hereby assign to you all moneys now or hereafter to become due to us from the Hemsworth R. D. C. for retention moneys in respect of the G. housing scheme, & for which your receipt shall be a sufficient discharge. It is understood that we are only to be credited with the amount actually paid to you under this assignment as & when the same is received by you." Due notice of that assignment was given by pltfs. to defts. on the following day. This was acknowledged by defts. on May 26, 1924. By that time the contractors had issued a number of debentures to the M. & C. Bank. These debentures were dated at various periods from Feb. 1, 1900, to Feb. 2, 1924, & they charged the undertaking & property, both present & future, of the contractors, the charge being a specific charge on their freehold & leasehold property, machinery, goodwill, & uncalled capital & a floating charge on all the co.'s other assets, subject to a proviso that the contractors were not to be at liberty to create any mtge. or charge on any of the assets in priority to the debentures. A receiver for the debenture holders was appointed in Oct. 1924, & he duly entered into possession. Seven days after the appointment of the receiver a resolution was passed for the voluntary winding-up of the co. The receiver refused to recognise the right of plffs. to payment under their assignment in priority to the debenture holders, & on the architect's certificate being given in Jan. 1927, defts. declined to interplead & paid the retention moneys to the receiver for the debenture holders:—Held: the assignment in question was a good legal assignment & plffs. were entitled to sue on it. The retention fund in this case arose out of an existing contract, & although it did not become payable until a date later than that of the assignment, it was a debt or other legal thing in action which could be assigned. The assignment was within Jud. Act, 1873, s. 25, & Law of Property Act, 1925 (c. 20), s. 136. It could be sued on by the assignee without joining the assignor as a party. Plffs. were therefore entitled to recover on the assignment.—EARLE (G. & T.) (1925), LTD. v. HEMSWORTH RURAL DISTRICT COUNCIL (1928), 140 L. T. 69; 44 T. L. R. 758, C. A.

345a. Effect of—On contractor's rights under arbitration clause.—Building contractors assigned to a bank all money due & to become due to them under a building contract, which contained an arbn. clause, & the proper notice of the assignment was served on the building owners. Disputes having arisen regarding a claim by the contractors for compensation & extra payment, recourse was had to arbn.:—Held: (1) the arbitrator had jurisdiction to entertain the arbn., since the contractors' rights under the arbn. clause did not constitute a "legal" or "other remedy" for the debt within Law of Property Act, 1925 (c. 20), s. 136 (1), & were not passed & transferred to the bank by the assignment; (2) the arbitrator had to consider not merely the terms of the contract within the limits of the document, but also the application & enforcement of those terms, having regard to the whole legal position which the parties had created, including the relinquishment by the contractors themselves by the assignment of their right to claim the debt, & he must make his award in favour of the building owners.—*COTTAGE CLUB ESTATES v. 388a. Clause restricting time for opening reference—"Until after completion of works"—Meaning of.—The form of building contract issued by the Royal Institute of British Architects provides, by condition 31 in the schedule thereto, that should the building owner not pay the builder any sum certified by the architect within the time limited by the contract, the builder is to be at liberty to determine the contract & recover from the building owner payment for all work executed. Condition 32 provides that in case any difference shall arise between the building owner & the builder as to the construction of the contract or as to any matter arising thereunder, such difference is to be referred to arbn., but that not be opened until after the completion of the works." During the progress of certain works which were being carried out under a building contract in the above form the building owner neglected to pay the builder a sum certified by the architect within the stipulated time, & thereupon the builder determined the contract under condition 31. The builder commenced arbn. proceedings while the contract works were still uncompleted, & the arbitrator made an award in his favour for the money due to him under the contract:—Held: the words "until after the completion of the works" in condition 32 meant until after completion of the whole of the works contracted for, & not merely until after completion of so much of the works as the builder was under — — — — — A contract for the construction of a covered way from the mainland to a lighthouse contained an arbn. clause, the first part of which referred all disputes, whenever arising, as to the contract & its execution to the employers' engineer, while the second part referred any dispute or claim arising after, or consequent on, the completion of the contract to another engineer. A dispute having arisen as to the rate payable for the removal of certain rock, the contractors

refused to continue the work, & the employers took the work out of their hands. An action having been brought by the contractors for payment of sums alleged to be due under the contract & for damages—Held: as the work was still in progress, the first part of the arbn. clause applied, it being immaterial that the work had been taken out of the hands of the pursuers, & action sisted to allow the arbn. to proceed.—*CRAWFORD v. 425a. ——— Interim certificates.—Pltfs., a local authority, made a contract with builders under which deft. was the architect. The Ministry of Health had the right to re-require the use of materials which the Disposals Board had for sale. While the houses were in course of erection deft. gave interim certificates, & he also gave documents under which pltfs. paid the Board for articles supplied by the Board. Under these certificates & documents pltfs. had to pay both the builders & the Board for the same material. In an action by pltfs. to recover the amount from deft. on the ground of negligence:—Held: as the certificates were only interim certificates, & as deft. on going into the figures with pltfs. had indicated to them that the amount paid to the Disposals Board was to be deducted from the final balance due to the contractors, deft. had not been guilty of negligence, & the action failed.—WISBECH RURAL DISTRICT COUNCIL v. - 230a. ——— Insufficient surplus funds to carry out purchase.—Although a building society may transfer its mtges. either to an individual or to another building society, yet if it agrees to sell those securities to a purchaser & makes no stipulation as to what it is that the purchaser is to take under such agreement for sale, the only conclusion that can be drawn is that it agrees to transfer such benefits as it itself enjoys, & that it cannot do. Pltf. society was in liquidation, & in May, 1919, its liquidators entered into a contract with deft. society for the sale to deft. society of thirty-seven of the freehold & leasehold mtges. of pltf. society for £6,400. Deft. society having declined to complete, pltf. society issued a writ for specific performance. Subsequently the parties by agreement stated a special case for the opinion of the ct. as to, amongst other things, whether the contract was ultra vires deft. society, because it had not at the date of the contract surplus funds properly available for investment, & whether pltf. society could transfer the mtges. without the consent of the mtgors. Both these points were decided in favour of pltf. society:—Held: (1) although the contract might be intra vires in its inception, notwithstanding that deft. society had not sufficient surplus funds to carry it out, yet if at the time when an order was made for its specific performance deft. society had not sufficient surplus funds the effect of the order would be to require the society, which was not an investing society, to invest moneys which were not its surplus funds in a security

(2) a further effect of the order, if made, would be to require deft. society to borrow money to pay for the mtges.; & as its borrowing powers could not be resorted to except for borrowing for the purposes of the society, & as the purchase of the mtges. was not one of those purposes, the order would be an order requiring deft. society to do an ultra vires act; therefore no order for specific performance ought in the circumstances to be made; (3) having regard to the fact that the mtges. in question were building society mtges., pltf. society was not in a position to transfer to deft. society all the rights & benefits to which under them it was itself entitled, pltf. society was not ready & willing to perform its part of the contract, & consequently it could not enforce the contract.—SUN BUILDING SOCIETY v. Part XII.—Amalgamation and Transfer.

- 285a. Amalgamation—Effect of 1874 Act, s. 33—Dissolution of constituent societies unnecessary.—By a contract dated Sept. 15,

1928, applt. agreed to sell to resp. two freehold plots of land & a dwelling-house. On Nov. 30, 1925, the property so contracted to be sold was mtgd. to the H. Equitable B.B. Society, & on Jan. 31, 1928, that society was united in accordance with the provisions of the Building Societies Acts with the H. Permanent B.B. Society under the name of the H. Building Society. On June 28, 1928, the money due on the mtge. was repaid to the H. Building Society, which society gave a receipt endorsed on the mtge. A note was also endorsed that on Jan. 31, 1928, the H. Equitable B.B. Society & the H. Permanent B.B. Society were united & became one society under the name of the H. Building Society, & that the transaction was duly registered as required by the Building Society Acts. The purchaser required an abstract of the documents effecting the transfer of the mtge. to the H. Building Society from the H. Equitable B.B. Society & asserted that resolutions as to union, the notice to the registrar, & consents in writing of the shareholders in the two societies must be abstracted. The purchaser also claimed to be entitled to see the instrument of union to ascertain that the provisions of the Building Societies Acts had been complied with. The vendor contended that this was not necessary as under 1877 Act, s. 5, the registration operated as a conveyance of the property which was then vested in the H. Equitable B.B. Society. The judge held that under the Building Societies Acts the possibility was contemplated of a union without a dissolution of the uniting societies, & 1877 Act, s. 5, which provided that the registration of the union should operate as a conveyance, must be read as subject to 1874 Act, s. 33, under which the instrument of union might provide that certain properties should be excepted & not transferred, & it was therefore necessary for the purchaser to be furnished with an abstract of the instrument of union to enable him to see whether 1877 Act, s. 5, could operate without any qualification:—Held: 1874 Act, s. 33, & 1877 Act, s. 5, contemplated that a union of two societies might be made without a dissolution of each society, & it was putting too much on 1874 Act, s. 33, to say it gave complete union so that no inquiry could be made as to the terms of union, & 1877 Act, s. 5, made it clear that only such properties vested in the united society as the instrument of union provided, therefore it was necessary that the vendor should abstract & verify the resolution of union, the notice to be given to the registrar of the union, & the other instrument of union if any, & until he had done so he had not produced to the purchaser a proper title.—Re FRYER & HAMPSON'S CONTRACT (1929), 110 L. - 237a. Allotment of unconsecrated part—For parishioners of particular denomination—Extent of rights.]—1853 Act, s. 7, upon its true construction, authorised the allotment by a burial board of portions of the unconsecrated part of a new burial ground for burials exclusively of parishioners belonging to the particular religious denomination for whom an allotment is made.

Under the provisions of the Burial Acts such an allotment was in 1854 made by plffs., as the burial board, of a portion of the unconsecrated ground for the burial of the Roman Catholic parishioners. Upon an originating summons under R. S. C., Ord. 54, r. 1, taken out by plffs. to have it determined whether, by virtue of that allotment for the Roman Catholic parishioners, a deceased parishioner not a member of the Roman Catholic denomination could be buried in such allotted portion; & if he could, whether he could be so buried with the rites or ceremonies of any denomination other than those of the Roman Catholic:—Held: (1) the portion so allotted for the Roman Catholics was by virtue of its allotment appropriated exclusively for the burial of the Roman Catholics; (2) a Roman Catholic parishioner had, under the Burial Acts, no greater rights in the portion so allotted for their burial than a parishioner, as such, had, before those Acts, in his old parish burial ground; &, consequently, although he still had, under those Acts, a right of interment in that allotted portion, he had no individual right, as a parishioner, to interfere with the burial therein of a parishioner of a different denomination; (3) the A.-G. was entitled in properly constituted proceedings, if he should think fit to institute them, to an order restraining plffs. from permitting the burial of persons other than Roman Catholics in the portion allotted to Roman Catholics; (4) nothing in 1853 Act enabled any particular rites or ceremonies to be enforced in regard to burials within the portion allotted to Roman Catholics or rendered the performance in regard to such burials of any particular rites or ceremonies unlawful.—PRESTON CORPN. v. PYKE, [1929] 2 Ch. 338; 98 L. J. Ch. 388; 141 L. T. 252; 93 J. P. 181; 45 T. L. R. 398; 27 L. G. R. 740.

291a. ———.]—A parish council being the duly constituted burial authority for the parish took from pltf., in consideration of a covenant to redeem the tithe rentcharges charged on the land being conveyed & on adjoining land retained by pltf., a conveyance of land "to hold the same . . . according to the true intent & meaning" of the Burial Acts. The land proved unfit & was never used for interments, & it was never fenced off or consecrated, nor did it adjoin any burial ground. The council agreed with pltf., with the approval of the parish meeting, to exchange the land for other land suitable for use as a burial ground:—Held: (1) the land first acquired by the council had never been "set apart for the purposes of interment" & was not therefore a "disused burial ground," so as to be subject to the restriction imposed by 1884 Act, s. 3; (2) the council had power to effect the exchange by virtue of the powers to sell land not required for interments & to buy land for the purposes of 294a. Land set apart for interment—Interments abandoned as to part—Continued as to other part.—(1) Where a piece of land has been effectually set apart for the purposes of interment it becomes a “burial ground” within the aggregate definition of Metropolitan Open Spaces Act, 1881 (c. 34), 1884 Act, & Open Spaces Act, 1887 (c. 32), & any portion for which the purposes of interment are subsequently abandoned becomes a “disused burial ground” within the similar definition, although interments still go on in other parts of the cemetery.

(2) A sale of a “disused burial ground” by the Admiralty under the general powers of Admiralty Lands & Works Act, 1861 (c. 57), s. 15, is not a sale under the authority of an Act of Parliament within 1884 Act, s. 5, & consequently the disused burial ground still remains subject to the building prohibitions of 1884 Act, s. 3.—LONDON COUNTY COUNCIL v. 300a. Urinal.—A borough council petitioned for a faculty to authorise the conversion of a consecrated churchyard, which had been wholly closed for interments by Order in Council, into an open space, & the laying out & maintenance of it as such. Authority was sought for laying out & maintaining part of the churchyard as a playground for children & for the erection upon it of urinals & a small toolshed:—Held: (1) the proposed urinals were “buildings” within 1884 Act, s. 2, & Open Spaces Act, 1887 (c. 32), s. 4, & the ct. had no jurisdiction to authorise their erection; (2) the proposed toolshed was necessary for the laying out & maintaining of the churchyard as an open space, & was not a “building” within the above Acts; (3) the facts proved justified the authorisation of games in the converted churchyard, but organised games, such as cricket & football, the laying out of tennis courts & the erection of swings & other structures should be prohibited. Faculty decreed, but not to issue until the council had made bye-laws embodying the above prohibitions & prescribing the hours during which the churchyard should be open to the public, so as to prevent any nuisance to the occupants of adjoining houses, & had carried a copy thereof into the diocesan registry for approval by the chancellor.—BERMONDSEY BOROUGH COUNCIL v. - 4a. ———.—]—Defts., furniture removers & warehousemen, contracted to carry pltf.'s furniture from L. to H., the contract being subject to a condition that the contractors would not be responsible for loss or damage caused by fire. Part of the furniture, which was loaded on a motor lorry, was destroyed by fire, occasioned by the negligence of defts.' servants, the remaining portion being damaged by the fire. Pltf. sued defts. for the value of the goods damaged & destroyed:—Held: defts. were not liable, inasmuch as the condition that they would not be responsible for fire protected them from liability, since the clause would be of no effect unless it referred to fire caused by the negligence of defts., as, not being common carriers, they would not in any event be liable for loss caused by accidental fire.—*TURNER v. The goods, which were loaded on a motor van, were destroyed while in transit by fire, which was occasioned by the negligence of defts.' servants. Pltf. sued defts. for the value of the goods:—Held: as defts. were bailees only & not common carriers, &, therefore, not liable for an accidental fire, the condition must be construed as exempting them from liability for fire arising from their own negligence, as otherwise the condition would be of no effect.—*FAGAN v. In respect to luggage which did not fulfil these conditions the council were entitled to make such charge as they thought fit. Pltf., wishing to send a parcel of goods weighing some 50 lbs. to a customer, instructed his servant to convey it by one of defts.' tramcars. The servant did so, & in addition to paying his own fare paid 2d. for the parcel. When he arrived at his destination the servant claimed his parcel, but found that it had been lost. In an action brought by pltf. claiming damages:—Held: the provisions of sect. 42 of the private Act being inconsistent with one of the peculiar features of a common carrier, who was bound to carry all goods of the class which he proposed to carry, for all & sundry & irrespective of the fact that the goods were accompanied by a passenger, the London County Council were not common carriers of goods so as to be entitled to the benefit of Carriers Act, 1830 (c. 68).—*ROSENTHAL v. 234a. —.]—A carrier who regularly receives goods for carriage upon terms limiting his liability may be under the obligations & subject to the liabilities of a common carrier in so far as the limitation of liability does not extend. He does not by limiting his liability assume for all purposes the position of a bailee for reward who is liable only for negligence of himself or his servants, unless the limitation of liability is so extensive as to be inconsistent with the profession or contract of a common carrier.

A consignor who tenders to carriers for carriage goods apparently harmless but in fact dangerous, whether the carriers are common carriers bound by the custom of the realm to carry goods provided they are safe & fit for carriage or whether they are a railway co. bound by statute to afford reasonable facilities for the receiving, forwarding & delivering of goods, must give warning of the danger; otherwise he impliedly warrants that the goods are safe & fit for carriage.

Forwarding agents delivered to a railway co. for carriage certain carboys containing a corrosive fluid & also certain bales of felt goods on the terms of consignment notes exempting the co. from liability in certain events & stating that they did not undertake to carry dangerous goods except on special conditions. The carboys were insufficient to contain the fluid, which escaped & injured the felt goods. The co. professed to carry the felt goods as common carriers. The owner of the felt goods claimed damages against the co., & the co. paid £437 in settlement of the claim. In an action by the co.

- 560a. — Warning not heard by passenger—Passenger asleep.—Pltf. was a passenger on defts.' railway to G. by a train which arrived at that station while it was still daylight. Owing to the train being too long for the platform at G., upon its arrival there the hindmost carriage, in which pltf. was, stopped short of the platform. A porter shouted to the passengers to keep their seats, but pltf., who was asleep, did not hear him. On waking pltf. realised that he was at G. station, & fearing that he might be carried on, got out in a hurry without looking to see what he was stepping on. There being a drop of five feet from the carriage floor to the ground, he fell & was injured:—Held: even if in the circumstances defts. were negligent, of which the ct. thought there was no evidence, pltf.'s act in getting out without looking where he was going was contributory negligence, & defts. were not responsible.—*SHARPE v. sd. ———— Doors leading from—Duty of carrier.]—The public cannot assume that access is allowed through all the doors opening into or leading into or leading out of a waiting room. When the doors intended for public use are indicated, failure to put on the other doors notices that ingress through them is forbidden does not amount to negligence; on the contrary, the absence of any notice should put the public upon inquiry whether it should attempt to open these doors & to proceed further into a place where it has no business. But, even if failure to keep such doors locked may amount to negligence, the carrier will not be liable for an accident to a passenger where the cause of the accident was the passenger's own want of caution in proceeding beyond such a door in the dark & in a strange place.—*CANADIAN NATIONAL RYS. 685b. ———— Injury on journey by special train.]—Pltf. was engaged as a workman by contractors to the Ministry of Health for the construction of a road near H., & the Ministry made with deft. railway co. arrangements for a special train to take pltf. & other men from C. to H., a distance of twenty-six miles. Pltf. received from his employers a voucher which was addressed to the booking clerk & which contained these words: "On surrender of this voucher please supply the bearer with a return workman's ticket to H. by any ordinary workman's train without payment. This voucher is only available by workman's train." The voucher, on presentation at the booking office, was exchanged for a ticket. One side of the ticket had on it (inter alia) the words: "See back. Workmen. By special cheap train for the 'working classes.'" On the other side were (inter alia) the words: "This ticket is issued subject to the bye-laws, rules & regulations of the Managing Committee," & "This ticket is issued subject to the conditions mentioned in the Managing Committee's Act (62 & 63 Vict. c. clxviii), & its use by the holder is to be taken as evidence of a special contract upon those conditions. The liability of the co. is limited to a sum not exceeding £100." The above-mentioned Act contained provisions as to the running of workmen's trains on the particular railway within twenty miles of London, & limited the co.'s liability to £100, subject to certain conditions. Pltf. was injured by a collision between his train & another train. In an action for damages defts. admitted negligence, but contended that the issue of the ticket created a special claims for personal injuries sustained while travelling. In an action to recover damages for injuries during transportation, due to the negligence of the ry. co.'s servants:—Held: the fact that the attendant had not paid any fare was due to the fact that the ry. co.'s agent made no attempt to collect the fare, & the ry. co. was responsible for the omission; the attendant was a full-fare passenger & not a trespasser & was entitled to recover damages.—*STEWART v. sm. Passenger standing on platform of moving car.]—A passenger who leaves his seat in a trainway car & goes on to the platform, while the car is in motion, is not necessarily guilty of contributory negligence should he meet with an accident while on the platform, the question depending in each case upon the particular circumstances.—*BUCHANAN v. contract between themselves & pltf. whereby their liability was limited to £100. The ct. found that pltf. must be taken to have been aware of the conditions indorsed on the back of the ticket. On the further question whether the terms of the contract applied to the particular journey:—Held: although the ticket & the conditions on it had been drafted as applicable to a journey by a train coming under the co.'s private Act, & contained no reference to such a journey as pltf.'s by a special train to a destination beyond twenty miles from London, yet, in the case of a passenger in the position of pltf., the conditions were a plain intimation that one condition on which the contract was made was that the co.'s liability should be limited to £100, & pltf. could recover no more than that amount.—HEARN v. SOUTHERN RY. Co. (1925), 41 T. L. R. 305, C. A.

685c. Time limit for making claim.]—Pltf. was received by defts. under a contract to be carried in one of their steamships. The contract contained a clause that the shipowners should not be liable for loss, damage or delay to a passenger or his baggage arising from the act of God, or from causes of any kind beyond the carrier's control, even though the loss, damage or delay might have been caused by the neglect or default of the shipowners' servants. A subsequent clause provided that no claim under the contract should be enforceable against the shipowners unless a written notice thereof was delivered to them within three days after the passenger should be landed from the steamer at the termination of her voyage. In the course of the voyage one of pltf.'s hands was injured by reason of the negligence of defts.' servants, but no written notice of any claim was given by pltf. within the time limited by the contract:—Held: (1) the clause relieving defts. from liability for the negligence of their servants was valid & enforceable, but applying the ejusdem generis rule, the clause did not absolve defts. from liability for pltf.'s injury; (2) as pltf. had failed to give any written notice of his claim within the time prescribed by the contract, he was not entitled to recover.—*JONES v. 851a. ————Pltf., who was a passenger with a ticket from Paris to London via Dover, & thence by the railway of deft. railway co., took an additional ticket from the second defts., the Pullman Car Co., for a Pullman car forming part of the train between Dover & London. The Pullman car ticket stated that the Pullman Car Co. accepted no liability for passengers' luggage, & that co. did all that was reasonably necessary to bring this condition to pltf.'s notice. At Dover pltf. took a seat in the Pullman car, but an official refused to allow her to take her suit-case with her & directed a porter to put it in the luggage vestibule at the end of the car. There was no evidence in whose employment the official was, or as to the exact relationship between the two deft. cos. On the arrival of the train in London the luggage was unloaded by the Pullman car officials, but pltf.'s suit-case could not be found. In an action against both cos.:—Held: as a railway co. contracted as insurers of passengers' luggage except where the loss was caused by the passenger's own default, the railway co. were liable, but as there was no evidence that lack of care, if any, by the Pullman Car Co.'s officials in unloading had contributed to the loss, the Pullman Car Co. were not liable.—*EHINGER v. Where it is sought to restore a former convenience & conditions have changed, there is nothing in the fact that it was afforded before, & the question will be decided on its merits.

Therefore where an application was made for an order for the re-opening of a subsidiary side entrance to the station of the Midland Ry. Co. at N. which had been closed in pursuance of a general policy of "closed" stations adopted by the co., & it was shown that only 16 per cent. of the passengers using the station, who were mainly season & weekly ticket holders, would be likely to use such entrance, & that no general public inconvenience existed, the ct. refused to make any order.—*NOTTINGHAM CORPN. v. - 1043a. Amount fixed so as to allow rebate to be made.—Coal was conveyed from two collieries over the lines of three railway cos. at a charge equal to the rate by an alternative route. A through rate was ultimately fixed at a sum of 2d. per ton in excess of the original charge, in order to allow one of the cos. to make a rebate of that amount in accordance with its practice with respect to other coal traffic. The new rate having been withdrawn, an application was made for a through rate equal to the original charge:—Held: (1) the question of rebate had been rightly excluded in fixing the amount of the through rate; (2) the Railway Comrs. had power to apportion the rate in such a way that part of it would be finally handed over to the trader.—*GLENAYON GARW COLLIERIES, LTD. v. 1219a. — Injunction—Rate quoted but not actually made.—Appets. were owners of a bonded warehouse situated in Trafford Park, Manchester, in close proximity to, but not on, the premises of the Manchester Ship Canal Co. The latter co. also owned a similar warehouse within their dock area at Manchester. A large consignment of cigarettes was conveyed over the Ship Canal to appets.' warehouse, & was thence consigned to London over the railways of resp. cos., who charged a rate of 107s. per ton in two-ton lots, this being the ordinary Manchester town rate, whereas for similar traffic consigned from the warehouse of the Ship Canal Co. they quoted a rate of 54s. 6d., the latter being the Liverpool to London rate, which was governed by competitive shipping rates. Upon a complaint that the Manchester Ship Canal Co. were being unduly preferred the above difference in rates was sought to be justified by the railway cos. on the ground that, the ports of Manchester & Liverpool being in competition, the lower rate was necessary in order to secure for Manchester in the public interest traffic which otherwise would go to Liverpool, & that the only practical way in which to distinguish between goods consigned from Manchester Town & Manchester Port respectively was to draw a line between goods on the premises of the Ship Canal Co. & those which had passed out of the control of that co.:—Held: (1) both rates were properly charged under the circumstances, & the difference between them was justified; (2) where a railway co. quotes a rate constituting an undue preference & asserts a right & intention of charging the same the ct. has jurisdiction to interfere by injunction without waiting till such charge is actually made.—PORT OF MANCHESTER WAREHOUSES, LTD. v. SECT. 6.—EXCEPTIONAL RATES AND FARES (Vol. VIII., p. 207).

1323a. Under 1921 Act—Meaning of "standard" & "exceptional."—The expression "standard" as applied to charges in Part III. of the above Act is the correlative or complementary term to "exceptional," & there being therefore no other alternative, every chargeable rate, fare, or charge for conveyance must necessarily be included in one or other of the above categories. Railway cos. are therefore required, under sect. 30 of the above Act, to submit to the Rates Tribunal forms of schedules for standard season tickets & workmen's fares.—Re STANDARD CHARGES SCHEDULES (1923), 17 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 147.

SECT. 7.—OWNER'S RISK RATES (Vol. VIII., p. 207).

1323b. Conveyance of goods by passenger train at owner's risk—Application for reduction of rate—Difference in risk negligible—Whether ground for two scales.—Appets. were consignors of gramophone records in the form of flat discs by passenger train. Resps. conveyed these discs at full parcels scale, but under owner's risk conditions. Appets. claimed that since the discs were conveyed at owner's risk, a reduction should be made from the full parcels scale. It was admitted that when packed by the manufacturers the risk of breakage in transit was negligible. Resps. contended that in the case of goods carried by passenger train the difference between the owner's risk rate & the co.'s risk rate was not intended as a measure of the difference of risk;—Held: the difference in the risk to the railway cos. under the two sets of conditions being negligible, on the analogy of 1921 Act, s. 46 (3), there was no ground for directing that there should be two scales, but the discs, when properly packed, should be carried at co.'s risk, & when not properly packed, at owner's risk. "Properly packed" means packed according to reasonable regulations made by the railway cos., the question of reasonableness to be settled by the Tribunal in case of difference.—BRITISH MUSIC INDUSTRIES FEDERATION v. CALEDONIAN RY. CO. (1922), 17 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 121.

1323c. ——— Grounds for ordering.—Revised scales of rates based on the "zone" principle for the carriage of parcels by passenger train at co.'s risk & owner's risk respectively were put into force by resp. cos. in Nov. 1918, & were subsequently twice increased in 1920 by uniform percentage additions in accordance with directions of the Minister of Transport. In May, 1923, new & reduced scales for the above traffic were introduced, whereby the above increases of 1920 were reduced in unequal proportions in order to remove what resp. cos. considered to be anomalies between the co.'s risk & owner's risk scales, with the result that the reductions made in the charges under the owner's risk scale were considerably less than those made in the charges under the co.'s risk scale. Upon an application under 1921 Act, s. 60, to reduce the rates for parcels containing sausages, etc., consigned by passenger train at owner's risk:—Held: looking to the circumstances in which the above percentage increases had been recommended & imposed & subsequently continued by 1921 Act, s. 60, the railway cos. were not entreated with them for any purpose connected with the adjustment of relationships between scales of charge but for the purpose of meeting increased expenses, & in the absence of special circumstances the proper practice was to give equal reduction to all; taking the above owner's risk scale of Nov. 1918, & not that of 1914, as sought by appets., as a basis of calculation, the owner's risk rates by passenger train on appets.' above traffic should not exceed those in force in Sept. 1920, as reduced, by 25 per cent.—SAUSAGE MANUFACTURERS' ASSOCN. v. the case of wagons 3s. per day for the first two days after the expiration of the free periods allowed for loading & unloading & thereafter 5s. per day, & in the case of sheets 6d. & 1s. for the like periods. These charges had been imposed on & after Jan. 1, 1920, by an order of the Minister of Transport, made in accordance with a recommendation of the Rates Advisory Committee, with the object of diminishing wagon detention & causing traders to exercise more diligence in loading & unloading them. The charges in force in 1913 had been 1s. 6d. per day for wagons & 3d. per day for sheets after the free periods then given. Appets. also claimed that in reckoning the above periods Saturday should be treated as half a day. Resps. contended that the charges complained of were reasonable, & also that it was not open to the ct. to reverse the policy of the Minister of Transport in making a differentiation between the first two days following the free periods & subsequent days:—Held: (1) the ct. had jurisdiction to modify the charges complained of; (2) having regard to the value of wagons & sheets as compared with 1913, the loss of profit to the railway cos. arising from detention, the standing & overall charges & the extra expenses of shunting & occupation of siding involved, the charges of 3s. per day for wagons & 6d. per day for sheets, while on the high side, were not unreasonable, but the additional charges of 2s. & 6d. per day upon wagons & sheets respectively after the expiration of the first two days beyond the free periods were no longer justified, & should be discontinued, & the existing arrangements with regard to Saturdays should not be interfered with.—*BRITISH HAY TRADERS' ASSOCN. v. 1331a. — Congestion caused by increased traffic—Insufficiency of unloading sidings.]—Pltf. co. had on their railway system at P. a small junction station, where there was a siding with sufficient accommodation for unloading the normal goods traffic consigned to that station. Defts. were contractors who were interested in one of three local building schemes which were started about the same time, involving a large increase in the goods traffic consigned to P. Owing to the congestion brought about in P. station by this increased traffic, & the fact that the unloading siding could only accommodate a limited number of wagons at a time, a number of the wagons arriving with goods at P. on defts.' account had to be put into storage sidings, to await their turn to be taken into the proper siding to be unloaded. Great delay in the discharge of wagons was caused thereby, but all the delay occurred at the storage sidings before the wagons were put into the unloading siding. Pltf. co. claimed from defts. exceptional charges for the detention of wagons in the storage sidings, under an implied contract or for accommodation or services provided or rendered by pltf. to defts. within the scope of pltf.' undertaking by the desire of defts.:—Held: as, on the facts of the case, the wagons were not put into the storage sidings at the desire of defts. they were not liable to pay the exceptional charges claimed.—*GREAT WESTERN RY. 1337b. — Terminal charges not in fact made.]—Appets. carried on business as timber merchants at a private siding about half a mile from resps.' station at R. They made no use of the station for their traffic. On an application to reduce the rates on appets.' traffic on the grounds (1) that they were excessive, inasmuch as they were the same as those charged for similar traffic which made use of the station at R., & (2) that the rates in fact included charges for the use of the station, & resps. were not entitled to make any charge over & above the charge for conveyance:—Held: (1) the conveyance of appets.' traffic started from or ended at a siding in the R. station, & resps. were entitled to charge for any services prior or subsequent to such conveyance, & such services were in fact rendered & the charges were not excessive.

(2) The ct. will not infer that station terminals are being paid simply because a siding rate & a station rate are the same in amount. It is only open to the ct. to do so when comparable traffics are passing from the station & the siding under such rates.—*DIXON (T. & M.) LTD. v. LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH RY. SECT. 12.—REDUCTION OF RATES
(Vol. VIII., p. 217).

1377a. Who may apply for—Trader “interested” —Warehouseman & forwarding agent.]

Appets., who were warehousemen & forwarding agents at Trafford Park, Manchester, & who had unsuccessfully applied to the Railway Comrs. in respect of an alleged undue preference founded on the same facts, applied for a reduction in a rate of 106s. 7d., formerly 107s., charged upon cigarettes consigned in two-ton lots from their Trafford Park warehouse, which was near to, but outside, the Manchester Docks, to King's Cross, London, upon the ground that the corresponding rate from Liverpool was 54s. 6d., provisionally reduced to 50s. The lower rate was also charged on similar traffic consigned from Manchester Docks, while the higher rate was the ordinary Manchester town rate. Appets. contended that where traffic as to which the conditions were in all respects alike is sent from two places A. & B. in the same district to the same destination, the same railway co. shall not charge a higher sum from A. than from B., unless the distance of the destination in the case of A. is greater than the distance in the case of B., provided that the rate in the case of A. is a productive rate. They admitted that conditions could not be treated as in all respects alike, if in the one case there was competition which did not exist in the other. Resps. objected that appets. were not interested traders within 1921 Act, s. 60, & that the rate complained of, which was the ordinary Manchester town rate, was reasonable:—Held: (1) while something in the nature of a direct interest must be shown, the interest of appets. in the above charges was sufficiently direct to entitle them to prosecute these proceedings; (2) in deciding what was a reasonable rate to be charged to appets., regard should be had to the following considerations: (a) that it was not enough for a trader to show that without a reduction in rate he could not carry on a particular branch of his business; (b) that when railway cos. declared that in their own interests they could not grant facilities or reductions in rates, it would not be right for that ct. to compel them to adopt such a course of business unless appets. showed that the railway cos. were mistaken; (c) that it was not intended by 1921 Act to establish the principle of equal mileage rates for all places & the consequent adoption of exceptional rates based on competition by water or road as the standard for all rates whether such competition existed in other places or not, & therefore that the existence of a low exceptional rate, not being in fact an undue preference, while a fact to be considered, was not alone a sufficient ground for ordering the reduction of a rate for goods in competition with those having the benefit of the low rate; (3) applying the above principles & taking all the circumstances into account, appets. should be allowed a rate of 72s. 6d. subject to any general revision of rates.—PORT OF MANCHESTER WAREHOUSES, LTD. v. CHESHIRE LINES COMMITTEE, GREAT CENTRAL RY. CO., & GREAT NORTHERN RY. CO. (1922), 17 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 95.

1377b. Grounds for ordering—Necessity for prima facie case.]

Confectionery in bottles & jars was carried by the railway cos. originally at co.'s risk, & subsequently under certain agreed packing conditions. In 1920 the cos., without making any reduction in rates, refused to carry confectionery packed as above except at owner's risk, owing to the heavy proportion of claims against them for damage. They continued to carry confectionery not contained in bottles & jars at co.'s risk. Upon an application for a reduction in the rates for confectionery when contained in bottles & jars:—Held: (1) an appct. for a reduction in rates must make a prima facie case for the same; (2) such a case had been made upon the above facts; (3) the cos. were not precluded from making special conditions by reason of the fact that they for some time had carried the above goods without conditions; (4) while certain losses in respect of confectionery not contained in bottles & carried at co.'s risk were borne by the cos., which losses did not arise in the case of confectionery in bottles carried at owner's risk, the saving to the cos., e.g. 4 or 5 per cent., was not sufficient to justify a reduction in rate.—MANUFACTURING CONFECTIONERS' ALLIANCE, INCORPORATED v. CALEDONIAN RY. CO. (1922), 17 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 135.

1377d. — Experimental rate.]

Upon an application for an experimental reduced rate of 40s. per ton for flax straw in full train loads for a transit of approximately 200 miles, resp. railway cos. offered for a period of five months a rate of 45s., plus siding haulage charge. The ordinary class rate was 88s. 2d., less 12½ per cent. Similar traffic was being carried to the same destination from places forty or fifty miles away at approximately the same rate as that offered:—Held: the rate should be 45s. Qu.: whether the Tribunal ought to take into account the possibility that an experimental rate will result in bringing a large future traffic.—MARSH v. GREAT EASTERN & GREAT WESTERN RY. COS. (1922), 17 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 129.

1377e. — Removal of flat-rate additions imposed by Minister of Transport.]

Upon applications to remove certain flat-rate additions to the rates on appets.' traffic which had been imposed by the Minister of Transport in exercise of his powers under Ministry of Transport Act, 1919 (c. 50), s. 3 (1) (c):—Held: (1) the ct. would not assume that the Minister was wrong in imposing such flat-rate additions; (2) it was not competent to the ct. to remove such flat-rate additions on the ground that the reasons given in support of their imposition by the former Rates Advisory Committee were not applicable to appets.' traffic; (3) the rates on appcts.' traffic were not excessive, notwithstanding that the percentage increase resulting from such flat-rate additions was greater on traffic carried at low mileage rates than on that carried at higher mileage rates, & that larger reductions in rates had been given to blast furnace than to appcts., i.e., coal, traffic.

(4) A rate is not necessarily excessive because a railway co. are not handing back on balance to the traders all the savings that they are making in reduced expenses.—MONMOUTHSHIRE & SOUTH WALES COAL OWNER'S ASSOCN. v. GREAT WESTERN RY. CO., MONMOUTHSHIRE & SOUTH WALES COKE OVENS & BYE-PRODUCTS WORKS ASSOCN. v. SAME, SOUTH WALES PATENT FUEL MANUFACTURERS' ASSOCN. v. SAME (1923), 18 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 1.

1377f. — Reductions granted to other interests.]

—Upon an application for the removal of a flat-rate increase of 2d. per ton, being part of a larger increase which originally had been imposed on appcts.' traffic in coal, coke & patent fuel in accordance with a second general revision of rates directed by the Minister of Transport which had since been voluntarily reduced by resps., the following grounds were relied upon by appcts. in support of their case: (1) that a greater proportionate reduction in rates had been given to the traffic of certain admittedly necessitous industries than to their traffic; (2) that their traffic, & in particular their short distance traffic, had increased in density since the above increase in rates, thereby producing an exceptional profit for resps.; & (3) that they apprehended in the future an intensive foreign competition which a reduction in railway rates would assist them to meet:—Held: (1) the reductions in rates granted by resps. to the traffic of other industries were justified & did not establish a case of hardship or injustice to appcts.; (2) while it was doubtful as to how far the increase in coal traffic had resulted in increased profit to resp. cos., the period of prosperity in appcts.' trade which was mainly due to the abnormal European political situation was passing away; (3) in an application for a reduction of a rate under 1921 Act, s. 60, the onus lay upon an appct. to show the existence of some element of unfairness or of hardship amounting to unfairness, & appcts. had not discharged that onus by alleging that a reduction in rates would assist.—*MINING ASSOCN. 1377g. — Abolition of free storage facilities.]

Appcts., the owners of a warehouse at Trafford Park, Manchester, claimed that a rate of 10s. 11d. per ton for sugar from Liverpool to their private siding at Trafford Park, being the same amount as the corresponding rate from Liverpool to resp. co.'s Oldham Road station at Manchester, should be reduced by an amount equal to the cost incurred by resps. in providing terminal accommodation & services, including twenty-eight days' free warehousing, at their Manchester

station. No sugar had been consigned by rail to appcts.' warehouse, nor was there any evidence that any trader desired to consign sugar to it. Prior to the war resps. had given fourteen days' free storage at Manchester for sugar in view of similar free accommodation provided by competing water-carriers from Liverpool to Manchester. This facility having been withdrawn by resps., they had lost as a result a large part of their sugar traffic from Liverpool to Manchester, & therefore, as from Nov. 1923, had restored the above free storage for an extended period of twenty-eight days:—Held: the ct. had no jurisdiction to abolish the facility of free storage, there was no evidence that the 10s. 11d. rate to Trafford Park was unreasonable or excessive, & there was no presumption that the rate when compared with the corresponding rate to Oldham Road station was unreasonable, because the latter included free storage at that station.—*PORT OF MANCHESTER WAREHOUSES, LTD. v. On the question whether the residue was validly disposed of by the will or failed in whole or in part for uncertainty:—Held: (1) the objects included under paragraph (a) were charitable since the means of the recipients would necessitate their being unable without the bounty of testator to procure the treatment of which they might stand in need; (2) the objects specified under heading (d) being for such indefinite charitable & non-charitable objects as the exors. should think fit were not exclusively charitable, & therefore though a trust for charitable & non-charitable indefinite purposes indiscriminately failed by reason of uncertainty, this trust being of a part of a fund for charitable purposes & another part for non-charitable indefinite purposes the ct. could ascertain what the parts were.—*Re CLARKE, BRACEY v. - 73a. — Trust to erect national theatre—& revive English classical drama—Valid.—(1) The Shakespeare Memorial Trust was established to erect & endow a Shakespeare Memorial National Theatre, with the object of performing Shakespeare's plays, reviving English classical drama, & stimulating the art of acting:—Held: the trust was a good charitable trust, on the ground either that the objects were for the advancement of education or that they came within the class of purposes beneficial to the community other than by way of the relief of poverty or the advancement of education or religion referred to by LORD MACNAGHTEN in *Income Tax Special Purposes Comrs. v. - (2) At the time when a donation of £70,000 was made to the charity, part of which was applied by the charity in the purchase of a site for the theatre, no annual subscription had been received, but within only nine days of that time the first annual subscription was received. On the subsequent sale of the site, the question arose whether, in those circumstances, the consent of the Charity Comrs. was required to the sale by the charity:—Held: notwithstanding that in the inception of its formation it was contemplated that the charity should be supported by annual subscriptions as well as by income from endowment, & notwithstanding that there was an interval of nine days only between the donation & the first of the annual subscriptions, the charity was not at the time when the donation was received a mixed charity within 1853 Act, s. 62; & as it was, therefore, not exempted from the jurisdiction of the Charity Comrs., their consent to the sale by the charity was required.—*Re SHAKESPEARE MEMORIAL TRUST, LYTON (EARL) v. - 75a. —.]—Testator by his will, wherein he described himself as a Clerk in Holy Orders, gave all his property to the Public Trustee upon trust for investment. He then directed that the income should be paid to the Bishops of the dioceses of St. D. & B., the rector of L. & the vicars of two other parishes & their successors, together with a layman appointed by the conference of each of those dioceses, whom he nominated administrative trustees. After stating that his wife left her interest in certain property to him to be used as he wished, but for preference for Church purposes, testator, in expressed accordance with her wish, by clause 3, devised all he should die possessed of as a fund for assisting the education of candidates for Holy Orders in the Church of England, to be administered by the trustees. Clause 12 contained the following proviso: “If for any sufficient reason, whether disendowment may or may not have taken place, the trustees decide that the interests of the Church could be better served by any changes in the method of administering, or even in the object to which the fund is applied under my will, such change or changes may be made with the several consents expressed by a majority of the Diocesan Conferences of B. & St. D.”:—Held: the objects to which the trustees were, by clause 12, empowered to change the application of the fund were not other than charitable objects & were religious objects in the interests of the Church as an organisation existing for the instruction & edification of the public, & the gift in clause 3 was a valid charitable gift.—*Re WILLIAMS, PUBLIC TRUSTEE v. - 691a. ——— Fund deposited in names of bishop & two archdeacons—Income not drawn upon—Date of deposit coinciding with creation of new diocese.—On June 29, 1888, money was deposited in a bank in the names of the Bishop of Wakefield & two archdeacons. In May, 1888, the Diocese of Wakefield was newly formed, & H. was enthroned on June 25, 1888, as first bishop of that diocese. The income of the fund so deposited was not drawn upon, & the fund with £900 accumulated interest was found intact by the exors. of the archdeacon, who was the survivor of the three persons in whose names the money had been deposited. The fund was not contributed to by those in whose names it was deposited:—Held: in such circumstances the exors. of the archdeacon who was the survivor were not beneficially entitled to the fund, but the fund was one subject to charitable trusts.—PEASE v. 1917, testator gave his residuary estate to trustees upon trust to apply the same & the income thereof in providing or endowing, or assisting in providing or endowing, any hospital wards, beds, or cots, or other like or similar objects, as his trustees should in their absolute discretion think fit, in memory of his late wife, "for, at, or in connection with, any hospital or convalescent home or other charitable or benevolent institution"; & testator expressed the wish, but not so as to impose any legal obligation on his trustees, that such hospital or other charitable or benevolent institution should be in, or connected with, the parish of St. Marylebone, London, or at, or in connection with, the town of Kilmarnock:—*Held: the word "hospital" where it was first used in the will was used in an adjectival sense, & applied to the following words "wards, beds, or cots"; the primary intention of testator was to provide or endow the same, & the places where they could be provided or endowed must be hospitals or convalescent homes or other charitable institutions, & the words "benevolent institution" must be construed as ejusdem generis, with "hospital"; & therefore the bequest constituted a good & valid charitable gift.—Re LUDLOW, BENCE-JONES v. The masonic temple was to be used for masonic ceremonies, & smaller rooms for lodge meetings, business & meetings of a social but not political character. - 1041a. — Condition subsidiary to main charitable object—Performance of condition likely to defeat main charitable object—Condition dispensed with.—Testatrix, who died in 1889, bequeathed £1,500 towards an endowment for a proposed evangelical church at B., provided certain conditions were carried out. An action was commenced for the administration of her estate, & on the further consideration thereof on Nov. 3, 1891, it appeared that amongst other conditions, which mainly related to the conduct of the services, it was made an "abiding condition" that the black gown should be worn in the pulpit, unless there should be an alteration in the law rendering it illegal. It further appeared that in compliance with the conditions a church had been erected at B. & the other conditions laid down by testatrix fulfilled, except the condition as to wearing a black gown, which condition was held by the judge to be a continuing condition, but not an illegal one; & accordingly, the fund was carried over to the credit of the action, the separate account of "the £1,500 endowment fund for the proposed B. church," with liberty for the incumbent & all persons interested to apply as to the capital or income thereof. This petition was presented by the present incumbent asking that under a scheme or otherwise the fund in ct. might be transferred to the Ecclesiastical Comrs. Evidence was adduced that the use of the black gown in the pulpit was practically unknown in the diocese of the new church, & that its use was calculated to alienate the congregation & to defeat the main objects of testatrix, namely, the teaching & practice of evangelical doctrine & services:—Held: the condition requiring the wearing of a black gown in the pulpit was subsidiary to the main charitable object, namely, the endowment of an evangelical church at B., & as the performance thereof had been shown to be impracticable the condition might be dispensed with & the fund be transferred to the Ecclesiastical Comrs. as part of the endowment of the church so erected as aforesaid.—Re ROBINSON, WRIGHT v. But it is a directory provision; & the trustees ought to bear it in mind & generally to use their discretion so as to give effect to it.

- A will, after certain bequests, including a bequest of residue in trust for “the Trustees of the S.M. Charities,” expressed a wish of testator that “the income upon my investments may be allowed to accumulate for a period of twenty-one years or so long as the law will allow,” & then set out various charitable objects in the town of S. which testator desired should thereafter benefit by such income only :—Held : the wish as to accumulation was not binding, but was in the circumstances a directory provision to which regard should be had in settling a scheme.—Re KNAPP, *SPRECKLEY v. —Testatrix by her will appointed an exor., & after giving various pecuniary legacies, including two for charitable purposes, & £100 to her exor., she left in blank the name of her residuary legatee. By a codicil testatrix desired that her residue should be “applied for charitable purposes as I may in writing direct, or to be retained by my exor. for such objects & such purposes as he may in his discretion select, & to be at his own disposal.” She left no written directions as to the charities to be benefited :—Held : (1) no good charitable trust was declared, the exor. having a discretion to devote the residue to objects & purposes other than charitable; (2) the trust for those objects & purposes was too indefinite for the ct. to execute, & there being no direct gift to the exor., the added words “to be at his own disposal” were not sufficient to enable the ct. to hold that the exor. took the residue beneficially, & he held it as trustee for the next of kin.—*Re CHAPMAN, HALES v. Testator constituted one of his exors. residuary legatee & died in 1880. The University accepted the bequest on the terms & for the purpose specified, & published the dictionary in 1892. After all payments had been made in connection with the publication there remained over a surplus of £1,151 14s. 10d. Consols & £230 derived from income & sales of the dictionary. Upon a summons by the University asking how this surplus should be applied :—Held : in the absence of any general charitable intention to be gathered from the terms of the bequest there was no room for the application of the doctrine of cy-près, & there was a resulting trust for testator & those claiming under him of the surplus moneys.—*Re STANFORD, CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY v. c i. ———. [—An association, which had managed an institution for the education & training of destitute boys in an industrial training ship, owing to change of circumstances, whereby it was no longer possible to carry on the institution usefully, was wound up. A petition was presented to the ct. craving approval of a scheme for the funds to be transferred to nine trustees, of whom seven should be nominated by the existing executive committee, & the remaining two by two local shipowners' associations, with power to assume new trustees from time to time, but vacancies among the trustees appointed by the shipowners' associations to be filled by persons nominated by these bodies. The ct. sanctioned the scheme, being satisfied that in the particular circumstances of the case sufficient provision had been made in the constitution of the trust for the due administration of the funds in the future.—CLYDE INDUSTRIAL TRAINING SHIP ASSOCN., [1925] S. C. 676.—SCOT.

sk. Persons eligible to act as administrators no longer available.—Trustees presented a petition in which they stated that the administration of a fund had become unworkable through lack of effective machinery for carrying it on, as owing to a change in local conditions, persons eligible to act as administrators were no longer available, & craved the ct. to authorise a transfer of the fund to a general trust having similar objects. The ct. authorised the transfer.—ROSYTH CANADIAN FUND TRUSTEES, [1924] S. C. 352.—SCOT.

Not exempt—Gift of land to mixed charity at date of determination of question by commissioner—Not mixed charity at time of donation.]—In order that a donation or bequest may come within the provision in 1853 Act, s. 62, exempting from the jurisdiction or control of the Charity Comrs. a donation or bequest made to a "mixed charity"—i.e. a charity maintained partly by voluntary subscriptions & partly by income from endowment—it must be a donation or bequest to a charity which is already, at the date of gift, a mixed charity. It is not sufficient to bring the donation or bequest within the exemption for the charity to become a mixed charity between the date of gift & the determination by the ct. of the question of exemption.

Land within the registered area was conveyed to a charity which at the time, although possessed of other income-bearing land, was not also maintained by any voluntary subscriptions. After the application for registration & pending the determination of the question of exemption by the ct., voluntary subscriptions were received & the charity became a mixed charity:—Held: the land not having been given to a charity which at the date of gift was a mixed charity, was not exempt from the jurisdiction or control of the Charity Comrs., & a restriction must be entered on the register against a disposition of the land without their consent.—*Re CHILD VILLIERS' APPLICATION, VILLIERS v. - 204a. Amount recoverable by assignee limited.—Deft. owed £285 to W., who owed money to pltf. bank, & W. assigned to the bank the debt owed to him by deft. The assignment, which was in writing, provided that "the amount recoverable under these presents shall not at any time exceed £150." Due notice of the assignment was given to deft. In an action upon the assignment:—Held: (1) the assignment was not an assignment of part only of the debt, but an absolute assignment of the whole debt with a proviso that if the bank recovered more than £150 they must hold the balance as trustees for the assignor, & it was a good legal assignment; (2) even if it was an assignment of part only of the debt it would still be a good equitable assignment, & pltf. were entitled to recover.—BANK OF LIVERPOOL & MARTINS, LTD. v. - 601a. ———— Assignment of debt payable in futuro.]—In 1918, C., a creditor of a firm, agreed to leave the sum constituting her debt on deposit with the firm for fifteen years from Jan. 1, 1917, upon the terms (inter alia) that interest & commission thereon should be paid to V. for his own use, & that in certain events, which subsequently happened, V. should receive a share of the firm's profits, which he in fact received during the years 1918–1921. In 1920, by C.'s direction, the debtor firm transferred C.'s debt by a book entry into the name of F., V. continuing to receive interest & commission as before, & on Feb. 24, 1920, made an equitable assignment of the debt to V. Notice of the assignment was given to the debtor firm on Mar. 2, 1926, whereupon the firm transferred the debt by a book entry into the name of V. At the date of the said equitable assignment by F., F. was under a liability to the debtor firm in respect of certain accommodation bills for which, as between F. & the firm, F. was liable, but such liability did not accrue due as a debt until after notice of assignment had been given, namely, when the debtor firm expended £15,000 in taking up the acceptances. On Mar. 15, 1926, the debtor firm presented their petition for a receiving order and were subsequently adjudicated bkpt. In a claim by V. to prove in the firm's bkpty.:—Held: the assignment by F. to V. was subject to all rights of set-off which had accrued due on the part of the firm against F. at the date of the notice of assignment but was not subject to any right of set-off in respect of the £15,000 which had not accrued due at that date; nor did the fact that the debt assigned was a debt payable in futuro, for which the assignor was not at the date of the notice of assignment in a position to sue, affect the general rule governing the assignment of a chose in action.—*Re PINTO & NEPHEWS, Ex p. In 1915 H. granted a lease of premises to the club which was carried on there. In 1918 a subscription of four guineas a year for country members & five guineas for town members was charged, & as from Jan. 1, 1919, an entrance fee of five guineas was imposed. From 1917 to Mar. 25, 1919, a notice stating that the club would be carried on permanently was exhibited by H. On Mar. 11, 1919, H., without notice to the executive committee, issued a writ for arrears of rent, & on recovering summary judgment closed the club. The co. then passed a resolution for voluntary winding up & a liquidator was appointed. A., who was a member of the club, claimed to prove as creditor for general damages & a proportion of her subscription for 1919. B., another member, claimed general damages, the return

He was aware of the details of the charges preferred against him before attending the meeting, but, having attended as requested, & having failed in the opinion of the committee to justify his conduct, was suspended from membership. He took action against the club to have the suspension removed, & for damages, on the ground that the committee's decision, having been arrived at without affording him an opportunity of cross-examining the witnesses against him, was contrary to the principles of natural justice:—Held: the committee was not bound by the formal rules of evidence, & the inquiry having been conducted in accordance with the club's rules & the decision of the committee arrived at in good faith, in pursuance of an honest desire to protect the interests of the institution, after resp. had been given every facility for

- 272a. — — — — —]—An assocn. with four branches was formed to obtain subscriptions from the members of each branch & to lend to members out of the fund so formed money on interest. Each fund, with its accretions of interest, was divided up periodically among the members ratably at a period of the year which differed in each branch. The assocn. & its branches all consisted of more than twenty members. The assocn. was not registered under any Act. Disputes having arisen, a resolution was passed by the members for the dissolution of the assocn., & an action was brought by three members suing on behalf of all members other than defts. against defts., who were the treasurer & secretary of the assocn., claiming administration of the assets of the assocn., an account of the subscriptions received by defts. from members & of their application thereof, payment of the amount found due & other relief. The action was resisted on the ground that the assocn. was illegal & that no relief could therefore be given :—Held : (1) the assocn. was rendered illegal by 1908 Act,

- s. 1 (2), as being an unregistered assocn. of more than twenty persons carrying on a business having for its object the acquisition of gain; (2) the ct. was not debarred from affording relief to the members asking for the return of money paid into the hands of agents for application for an illegal purpose by granting an account.—*GREENBERG v. sd. Striking off register—Effect.—(1) The intention to dissolve a co. should not be read into a statute providing for the striking of the co. off the register because of a short delay in the payment of its annual fee, unless the language of the statute expressly or by necessary implication imposes that penalty. (2) The conduct of deft. shareholders after the co. had been struck off the register held to make them trustees of the co.'s property for the individual shareholders, who made contributions to conserve the property, & not for the co. 439a. "Issued" to the public.—What amounts to.]—A co. being in want of further capital, a document was prepared by applt., who was the managing director, & signed by the other directors, stating the position of the co., that it was proposed to issue 20,000 preference shares, & giving an estimate of the profits after the new capital was available. Attached was an application form for preference shares. A second document was also prepared by the applt., written on the co.'s paper & addressed to a fellow director, marked "strictly private & confidential," which, after setting out the amount of nominal & issued capital, stated the purposes for which the additional capital was required, & concluded thus: "I shall be very happy to discuss this proposition in all its details with any one who is really interested." Attached was a form of application for ordinary shares. Several copies of these documents were given to applt.'s fellow director, who sent a copy to a solr., with a request, in substance, that he should find some client willing to provide the capital required. The solr. sent the documents to resp.'s brother-in-law, & he in turn sent them to resp., who, on the faith of the statements they contained, subscribed for 3,000 ordinary shares in the co. Subsequently ascertaining that a considerable part of the issued capital had been issued otherwise than for cash, a fact that was not stated in either of the documents, he sued applt. for damages for the loss he had sustained through the omission by applt. to comply with the requirements of 1908 Act, s. 81 (1) (e). At the trial the jury found that the two documents were an offer of shares by the co. to the public. In answer to the question, whether they were in fact issued to the public, the jury said: "There is no proof of this." The first-named applts. were directors in W., C., & Co., Ltd.; the second-named applts. carried on business as merchant bankers in the name of S. & Co., who were stated in the prospectus to have purchased the whole of the debenture stock of W., C., & Co., Ltd., but who were alleged by resp. to have issued the prospectus as agents for the other applts. Resp. by his writ claimed "damages for false & fraudulent misrepresentation against all applts., & against such of applts. as were directors of W., C., & Co., Ltd., compensation under 1908 Act, s. 84, alternatively damages for conspiracy to defraud, the damages claimed in respect of the three claims being £178." The trial judge dismissed the action against the first-named applts. with costs. The action then proceeded against the second-named applts. until they amended their defence by leave & paid £130 into ct. with a denial of liability, which amount the resp. accepted in lieu of the £178 claimed, in full satisfaction of the cause of action for fraudulent misrepresentation. The Ct. of Appeal set aside the orders & judgment of the trial judge & ordered a new trial of the action as regards the causes of action under 1908 Act, s. 84, & conspiracy to defraud:—Held: (1) both on the issue of conspiracy to defraud & the issue of deceit, after the money had been taken out in satisfaction there was no cause of action & no head of damage remained unsatisfied of which there was any evidence or which could be ordered to be tried anew; (2) on the question of compensation under 1908 Act, s. 84, although the case should have been left to the jury there was nothing left to be tried after resp. had taken out in satisfaction money paid in on the issue of conspiracy only. Compensation was not, either as to the amount recoverable or the mode of measuring it something different from or even greater than damages.—CLARK v. URQUHART, STRACEY v. URQUHART (1929), 141 L. T. 641, H. L.

It was stated in the prospectus that the notes would be paid off at 105 per cent. by four annual drawings, &, under the heading "Earlier payments," that the Trust retained the right to pay off at 105 per cent. all or any of the outstanding notes at any time on giving three months' previous notice in writing, but that in the event of the sale of the Trusts' R. B. estates, further referred to in that prospectus, which according to the construction placed upon the prospectus by the ct. was not confined to a sale under a certain option of purchase referred to later in the prospectus, but included a sale to anybody whomsoever, the Trust would set aside out of the proceeds of sale a sum sufficient to redeem all the notes then outstanding, & the holders would be given an option of being then paid off in cash at 105 per cent. or of retaining their notes till the date of drawing. Each of the notes, which was in the form of the specimen note referred to in the prospectus, provided that the Trust would, as & when the principal sum of £100 became payable in accordance with the conditions indorsed thereon, pay to pltf. the sum of £105, & was expressed to be subject to & with the benefit of those conditions, which repeated the provisions contained in the prospectus for the redemption of the notes by drawings & the option retained by the Trust to pay off the notes on notice, but did not refer to the promise by the Trust contained in the prospectus as to earlier payments in the event of the sale of the Trusts' R. B. estates. The option to purchase referred to in the prospectus having lapsed & the Trust having contracted to sell the R. B. estates without having given notice to pltf. that his option to be paid off or to retain his notes had thereby become exercisable, & the Trust having repudiated their liability to perform their promise contained in the prospectus, pltf. brought an action to have

B. estates were sold, or (2) that the promise was a binding collateral contract, the consideration for which was the contract by pltf. to take up the notes, & that, as the terms of that promise & an animus contrahendi on the part of pltf. & the Trust had been clearly proved, the test laid down by LORD Moulton in *Heilbut, Symons & Co. v. They claimed damages from defts. for breach of an agreement, whereby defts. undertook to purchase shares in a certain company. The pltf., who was a beneficiary under the settlement, was, in his individual capacity, indebted to the co. & the co. had, under its articles, a lien upon shares in respect of the debts of a member. In a previous action it had been held that whatever equitable interest the co. had in these shares under its lien was postponed to the interests of the beneficiaries under the settlement, other than the debtor-trustee & persons claiming under him. Defts. now contended that, as the co. would lose its lien, which was admittedly good against the debtor-trustee & persons claiming under him, if the trustees were to sell, the trustees were not in a position to sell the shares free from encumbrances, & therefore the defts. were not bound to carry out their agreement to purchase :—Held : the right of the trustees to sell the shares in execution of their trust was not affected by the co.'s lien against the debtor-trustee's personal interest, & the trustees could give an unencumbered title to a purchaser of the shares, although the co. would lose its lien thereby. Defts. were, therefore, bound to carry out their agreement to purchase.—MATHIESON v. GRONOW (1929), 141 L. T. 553; 45 T. L. R. 604.

tract made in Apr. 1922, it was agreed between the persons interested therein that a business forming part of a testator's estate should be converted into a private co. with a capital of £30,000, divided into £20,000 debentures bearing interest at 7 per cent. & 10,000 ordinary shares of £1 each, fully paid, which were to be allotted to the trustees of the will. One of the trustees, F., was appointed manager of the co., & was given the option, so long as he continued to be both trustee & manager, of purchasing the whole of the debentures & shares at par value. In June, 1928, the co. declared a dividend of 57½ per cent. on the ordinary shares for the year ending Mar. 31, 1928, to be paid in three equal instalments on July 1 & Nov. 1, 1928, & Feb. 1, 1929, & the first instalment was paid on July 1, 1928. On July 30, 1928, F. exercised his option to purchase the whole of the shares & debentures for £30,000. At that date there was four months' interest due upon the debentures. The purchase was completed on Nov. 5, 1928. On a summons being taken out to determine the rights of the parties in the unpaid instalments of the dividend, & the debenture interest, as between vendors & purchaser:—Held: (1) the four months' accrued interest on the debentures passed to the purchaser; (2) the declaration of the dividend on the shares having created a debt to the trustees as the then registered shareholders, the postponement of the payment did not operate to deprive them of their rights, & therefore the remaining instalments belonged to them & not to the purchaser.—*Re KIDNER, KIDNER v. Board equally divided.]—Under an art. equivalent to Table A, art. 22, the extrix. of a deceased member of a co. had the right to be registered as a member, subject to the directors' absolute discretionary right to decline such registration. At a board meeting of the two directors to consider the extrix.'s application for registration, one director proposed & the other opposed registration. The board being equally divided, & there being no casting vote, the proposal was not carried, & the secretary was instructed to write to the extrix.'s solrs, accordingly & to return all the documents, namely, a transfer by the extrix. to herself, certificates & registration fee:—Held: the board's right of declining registration required to be actively exercised by a vote of the board ad hoc, & the mere failure to pass the proposed resolution for registration was not a formal active exercise of the right to decline; the extrix.'s absolute right to registration therefore remained intact, & the register must be rectified accordingly. — Re HACKNEY PAVILION, LTD., [1924] 1 Ch. 276; 93 L. 2452a. — — — Transfer to director of over-payments made to vendor by company.]

A partnership business was sold to a co. for a sum of money which was satisfied by an allotment to the vendors of a number of fully paid shares in the co. It was subsequently discovered that, owing to mistake in the valuation, the partners had been overpaid by the co., & in order to adjust the matter, two of them, on behalf of themselves & their co-vendors, voluntarily transferred to the chairman of the board of directors of the co. 3,000 shares upon trust to use or sell them for the benefit of the co. An action was commenced against the chairman of the board of directors & the co. in which the pltf. claimed that he held the shares as trustee for the individual shareholders & in which they sought an injunction restraining him from voting, at any meeting of the co., as the holder of the shares:—Held: (1) on the evidence, the chairman of the board of directors held the shares, not for the benefit of the individual shareholders, but for the benefit of the co., & that he held them on trust, at his discretion, to sell them; (2) the transfer did not offend against any principle laid down by any of the decided cases, & that the transaction was not made invalid by reason of the transfer having been made to a nominee on trusts which involved an obligation on the trustee to vote in respect of the shares as the co. might from time to time direct.—*KIRBY v. sa. Purchase in name of infant—Whether complete gift of shares to infant.]—A father purchased, with his own funds, shares in a co. in name of his son, then a pupil. The son's name was entered in the co.'s register as proprietor of the shares, & dividend warrants in respect of them were issued in name of the son.—Held: the gift of the shares had been completed by the retention of the son's name in the co.'s register after his attainment of minority.—*INLAND REVENUE COMRS. v. son, & as to the remaining two-thirds for the other children of testator alive at testator's death. The residue included shares in the co., some in testator's name, the remainder in the name of another as his nominee or as trustee for him. The will was proved by the widow & the son only. They caused these shares to be registered in their own names without qualification, as the arts. of the co. disqualified transferees from receiving notice of or voting at meetings. Later they appointed an additional trustee of the will; & in order to vest the shares jointly in them & him, all three executed a transfer. This was presented to the co. for registration, but registration was refused on the ground that the restrictions on transfer imposed by the articles applied:—Held: the transfer could be justified under the arts.—Re HOBSON, HOUGHTON & Co., [1929] 1 Ch. 300; 98 L. In May 1925, the bank, which had no notice of the assignment, obtained judgment against the shareholder for money due from him, & seized the shares in execution. 2879a. — — — — ——(1) A private co. was governed partly by special arts. & partly by Table A. Table A, art. 70, fixed the qualification of a director as "the holding of at least one share." Special art. 20 empowered the directors to appoint any other "qualified person" either to fill a casual vacancy or as an addition to the board. At a full board meeting on Saturday, Nov. 14, transfers of shares to two outsiders were duly passed for registration, after which the transferees were forthwith elected directors. The transfers were registered on the following Monday:—Held: though before their appointment the transferees had acquired an absolute right to registration, they were not "qualified persons" before actual registration, & their appointment as directors was invalid.

(a) must act honestly, & (b) must exercise such degree of skill & diligence as would amount to the reasonable care which an ordinary man might be expected to take, in the circumstances, on his own behalf. But, (c) he need not exhibit in the performance of his duties a greater degree of skill than may reasonably be expected from a person of his knowledge & experience; in other words, he is not liable for mere errors of judgment; (d) he is not bound to give continuous attention to the affairs of his co., his duties are of an intermittent nature to be performed at periodical board meetings, & at meetings of any committee to which he is appointed, & though not bound to attend all such meetings he ought to attend them when reasonably able to do so; & (e) in respect of all duties which, having regard to the exigencies of business & the arts. of assocn., may properly be left to some other official, he is, in the absence of grounds for suspicion, justified in trusting that official to perform such duties honestly.

(4) A director who signs a cheque that appears to be drawn for a legitimate purpose is not responsible for seeing that the money is in fact required for that purpose, or that it is subsequently applied for that purpose, assuming, of course, that the cheque comes before him for signature in the regular way, having regard to the usual practice of the co. A director must of necessity trust to the officials of the co. to perform properly honestly the duties allocated to them.

Before any director signs a cheque, or parts with a cheque signed by him, he should satisfy himself that a resolution has been passed by the board, or committee of the board, as the case may be, authorising the signature of the cheque; & where a cheque has to be signed between meetings, he should obtain the confirmation of the board subsequently to his signature.

The authority given by the board or committee should not be for the signing of numerous cheques to an aggregate amount, but a proper list of the individual cheques, mentioning the payee & the amount of each, should be read out at the board or committee meeting & subsequently transcribed into the minutes of the meeting.

(5) It is the duty of each director to see that the co.'s moneys are from time to time in a proper state of investment, except so far as the arts. of assocn. may justify him in delegating that duty to others.

(6) Before presenting their annual report & balance sheet to their shareholders, & before recommending a dividend, directors should have a complete & detailed list of the co.'s assets & investments prepared for their own use & information, & ought not to be satisfied as to the value of their co.'s assets merely by the assurance of their chairman, however apparently distinguished & honourable, nor with the expression of the belief of their auditors, however competent & trustworthy.

(7) It is not the duty of a director of a big insurance co. to supervise personally the safe custody of the securities of the co. It would be impracticable, on every purchase of securities, for actual delivery thereof to be made to the directors, or, on every sale, for the delivery to the brokers of the securities sold to await a meeting of the board or of a committee of directors. The duty of seeing that the securities are in safe custody must of necessity be left to some official of the co. in daily attendance at the office of the co., such as the manager, accountant, or secretary.

(8) A co.'s stockbrokers, however respectable & responsible they may be, are not proper persons to have the custody of its securities except on such occasions when, for short periods, securities must of necessity be left with them; but immediately such necessity ceases the securities should be lodged in the co.'s strong room or with its bank, or placed in other proper & usual safe keeping.

(9) A director is not responsible for declaring a dividend unwisely. He is liable if he pays it out of capital, but the onus of proving that he has done so lies upon the liquidator who alleges it.

Art. 150 of the co.'s arts. of assocn. provided (inter alia) that none of the directors, auditors, secretary or other officers for the time being of the co. should be answerable for any loss, misfortune, or damage which might happen in the execution of their respective offices or trusts, or in relation thereto, unless the same should happen by or through their own wilful neglect or default respectively:—Head: (10) an act, or an omission to do an act, is wilful where the person who acts, or omits to act, knows what he is doing & intends to do what he is doing, but if that act or omission amounts to a breach of that person's duty, & therefore to negligence, he is not guilty of wilful neglect or default unless he knows that he is committing, & intends to commit, a breach of his duty, or is recklessly careless in the sense of not caring whether his act or omission is or is not a breach of his duty; (11) the immunity afforded by art. 150 was one of the terms upon which the directors held office in the co., & availed them as much on a misfeasance summons by the Official Receiver under 1908 Act, s. 215, as it would have done in an action by the co. against them for negligence; (12) upon the evidence & in accordance with the principles enunciated above, none of the resp. directors, other than the managing director, was liable.

(13) The measure of the auditor's responsibility depends upon the terms of his engagement. There may be a special contract defining the duties & liabilities of the auditors. If there is, then that contract governs the question. The arts. will, however, be looked at if there is no special agreement, because the auditors will presumably have taken their duties upon the terms, among others, set out in the arts. That is not to say that auditors can set aside a statutory obligation. No agreement or art. of assocn. can remove an imperative or statutory duty.

(14) Sect. 113 does not lay down a rigid code. The duty imposed on the auditors by it is not absolute, but depends upon the information given & explanations furnished to them, so that there is abundant scope for discretion. Art. 150 is not in conflict with the sect. The onus lies upon the auditors, who would not be excused for total omission to comply with any of the requirements of the sect., or for any consequences of deliberate or reckless indifferent failure to ask for information on matters which call for further explanation.

(15) An auditor is not justified in omitting to make personal inspection of securities that are in the custody of a person or co. with whom it is not proper that they should be left, whenever such personal inspection is practicable.

(16) When an auditor discovers that securities of the co. are not in proper custody, it is his duty to require that the matter be put right at once, or, if his requirement is not complied with, to report the fact to the shareholders, & this whether he can or cannot make a personal inspection.

Auditors should not be content with a certificate that securities are in the possession of a particular co., firm, or person unless the co., etc., is trustworthy, or, as it is sometimes put, respectable, & further is one that in the ordinary course of business keeps securities for its customers. In all these cases the auditor must use his judgment.

Where the auditors did not personally inspect the securities of the co. in the hands of the stockbrokers of the co., & accepted from time to time the certificate of the brokers that they held large blocks of such securities, & did not either insist upon those securities being put in proper custody or report the matter to the shareholders:—Held: (17) they committed a breach of duty, but, inasmuch as throughout the audit the auditors honestly & carefully discharged what they conceived to be the whole of their duty to the co., such negligence was not wilful, & art. 150 applied to exonerate them from liability.

Where the auditors after a full investigation in which they were misled & deceived, & their reports to the board suppressed, by the chairman of the co., (a) described large sums of money left in the hands of the co.'s stockbrokers & lent to the general manager of the co. as "Loans at call or short notice," "Loans" or "Cash at hand & in bank"; (b) failed to discover that the co.'s stockbrokers, in order to reduce their indebtedness to the co. for the purposes of the audit, made purchases, on behalf of the co., immediately before the close of the co.'s financial year, of Treasury Bills which in fact never came into the possession of the co. & were sold immediately the new financial year had opened:—Held: (18) they were not guilty of any breach of duty as auditors.

(19) Sect. 215 is a procedure sect. only & creates no new or additional liability.—Re CITY EQUITABLE FIRE INSURANCE CO., LTD., [1925] 1 Ch. 407; 94 L. J. Ch. 445; 133

3157a. — Presumption of authority.]—Pltfs. were a firm of fruit brokers. Defts. & the P. Co. were two cos. engaged in the fruit trade. M. was a director of both cos. By art. 28 of the arts. of deft. co. the directors were empowered to "delegate any of the powers for the time being vested in the directors." The arts. also incorporated Table A. M. purported to make on behalf of defts. an agreement with pltfs. that in consideration of pltfs. advancing a sum of money to the P. Co., pltfs. should have the right to sell on commission all the fruit imported both by defts. & the P. Co., & that pltfs. should be entitled to retain the proceeds of sale of defts.' fruit as well as of that of the P. Co. as security for the advance. M. had no authority from defts. to make such a contract. Pltfs. requiring confirmation of the agreement by deft. co., the secretary of defts. wrote a letter purporting to confirm the agreement on behalf of defts., & pltfs., treating that as a sufficient confirmation, made the advance. The secretary had no authority to give such confirmation. Defts. subsequently repudiated the agreement as made without their authority. At the time that they made the advance pltfs. had no knowledge of the terms of defts.' arts. or that they incorporated Table A:—Held: whether the agreement was to be treated as having been made by M. as an ordinary "director" of deft. co., or by the secretary as "agent," or by the two combined, pltfs. were not entitled to assume that any authority to make it had been delegated to them by the board, because (1) although a person who contracts with an individual director or servants of a co., knowing that the board of directors has power to delegate its authority to such an individual, may in certain circumstances assume that power of delegation has been exercised & that he may safely deal with the individual in question as representing the co., he cannot rely on the supposed exercise of such power if he did not know of the existence of the power at the time that he made the contract; (2) there was something so unusual in an agreement to apply the money of one

co. in payment of the debt of another that pltfs. were put upon inquiry to ascertain whether the person or persons making the contract had any authority in fact to make it; (3) even if pltfs. had known of the existence of the express power of delegation, they would not have been entitled to assume that it had been exercised in favour of M. or the secretary to any greater extent than was to be inferred from the positions which M. & the secretary respectively occupied or were held out by the co. as occupying.—*HOUGHTON & Co. v. 51. Liability—Investigation into conduct.—Act 46, 1926, s. 184 (1), is not designed for the purpose of enabling the ct. to hold a general investigation into the conduct of an officer of the co. The examination there intended is for the purpose of fixing liability in respect of a particular claim then before the ct. The sect. does not create any new liability or any new right, but only provides a summary mode of enforcing rights which would otherwise have been enforced by the ordinary procedure of the ct. A person cannot therefore be held liable under the sect. unless he is already liable to pay a sum of money by some principle of ordinary law, or by virtue of a special clause of Cos. 4050a. — Under agreement—To repurchase shares—Allotted in consideration of advance to company—Lender requiring repayment of loan.]—Pltf., with the view to assist his son-in-law in obtaining the appointment of business manager of a limited co. of which the two defts. were directors & shareholders, entered into a written agreement with the co. & defts. to advance to the co. a sum of £1,500 by the purchase of 1,500 £1 preference shares of the co., the repayment of that sum being secured by the co.'s undertaking, in the event of pltf. or his son-in-law terminating that agreement, to procure the repurchase of the shares at par & to secure the purchase money therefor by accepting bills drawn by pltf.; & in that arrangement the two defts. joined as sureties guaranteeing the due performance by the co. of its part of the agreement. Pltf., accordingly, advanced £1,500 to the co., & accepted transfers from the co. of the same number of its preference shares. Upon the son-in-law desiring to withdraw from the managership, pltf. in pursuance of a power in that behalf contained therein gave the co. notice to terminate the agreement & required the co. to procure the repurchase of the shares & to accept his bills for £1,500; but the co. refused to comply with those requirements & denied liability under the agreement on the ground that the performance of it would involve a purchase by the co. of its own shares, & would therefore be ultra vires & illegal. In an action against defts. under their guarantees:—Held: the agreement, having been entered into between the parties in good faith & in the honest belief that it was intra vires & legal, the defence that the agreement was, upon the grounds above mentioned, ultra vires the co. & therefore unenforceable could not be maintained; & pltf. was entitled to judgment for £1,500 with interest.—GARRARD v. JAMES, [1925] 1 Ch. 616; 94 L. J. Ch. 234; 133 L. T. 261; 69 Sol. Jo. 622.

The delay in the issue of the debentures was not acquiesced in by the lenders, who when they sent cheques for the advances wrote that the money was in further payment on account of debentures to be issued as arranged. The co. went into liquidation on Jan. 25, 1926. During the period in which the bulk of the advances were made the lenders were unaware that the co. was on the verge of liquidation. The debentures were issued when the co. was unable to pay its debts:—Held: the debentures were valid, the payments being made "at the time of" the creation of the charge & in consideration for the charge within 1908 Act, s. 212, & consequently the debentures were not a fraudulent preference within 1908 Act, s. 210.—Re STANTON (F. & E.), LTD., [1929] 1 Ch. 180; 98 L. A debenture trust deed created a general floating charge over all its undertaking & assets both present & future, but reserved to the co. power to create in priority to that charge such mtges. or charges as the co. should think proper "by the deposit of any dock warrants, bills of lading, or other similar commercial documents, or upon any raw materials, or finished or partly finished products & stock for the purpose of raising money in the ordinary course of the business of the co." Due registration—Particulars of property charged insufficiently entered.—A co. with the object of securing payment of its overdraft at plff. bank “demised” to the bank a certain leasehold factory with all the movable “plant used in or about the premises” for a term of about 996 years. The bank sent the indenture to the registrar of companies for registration under 1908 Act, s. 93. In the particulars required to be filed pursuant to that sect. the instrument was described as a mtge. of the leasehold premises, no mention being made of the chattels. The registrar entered the description of the instrument in the register in similar terms, identifying it by its date, & omitting all mention of any charge on the chattels. Subsequently the sheriff, in execution of a judgment recovered by deft. against the co.,

Act, 1910, of Barbados, as a public co., in order to carry on testator's business & to divide the profits of it between members of his family entitled under his will to share them; the managing director had a preponderating voting power. Upon a petition for winding up by shareholders who were not directors, it appeared that the directors had omitted to hold general meetings, or to submit accounts, or recommend a dividend, & that they had laid themselves open to the suspicion that their object in so omitting was to keep petitioners in ignorance of the co.'s position & affairs & to acquire petitioners' shares at an under-value:—Held: the power to wind up the co. under sect. 127 (vi) of that Act [which was identical with 1908 Act, s. 129] was not confined to cases in which there were grounds analogous to those mentioned earlier in the sect.; & in the circumstances of the case, regard being had to the domestic character of the co., petitioners were entitled under that provision to a winding-up order.—*LOCH v. 6394a. ———.]—The society, under a loan stock trust deed, issued loan stock bearing interest at 7 per cent. with a quinquennial bonus of 2½ per cent. Under the trust deed, entered into by the society with trustees for the stockholders, an amount equal to 7½ per cent. on the par value of the stock was to be paid to the trustees, for apportionment to the interest & to a fund for the bonus. At the date of an order for the winding up of the society, most of the stockholders had received payment in full of interest at 7 per cent. on the amount of loan stock issued, up to & including a date seven months before the order. The trustees lodged with the liquidator a proof stated to be for cash advanced on loan; & this summons asked (i) whether the proof should be rejected to the extent of interest proved for above 7½ per cent. up to the date of the commencement of the winding up; (ii) whether interest should be calculated, at 5 per cent., to the date of the order or to the commencement of the winding up; & (iii) whether Bkpcy. Act, 1914 (c. 59), s. 66 (2) (b), had any application to proof or dividend in respect of the loan stock:—Held: (1) the amounts proved for by the trustees were to be computed only to the date of the commencement of the winding up; (2) Bkpcy. The co. was wound up voluntarily & the liquidator having paid all dividends & debts, & returned the whole of the paid-up capital to the shareholders, there remained surplus assets :—Held : (1) as long as the co. was a going concern the preference shareholders were entitled only to the preferential dividend, but on the voluntary winding up this preference was determined, & thenceforward the preference shares retained no preference or priority over the ordinary shares; (2) according to the constitution of the co. the prima facie presumption in favour of equality of distribution amongst all the shareholders ought to obtain, & the surplus assets, including deposit interest, would be distributed amongst all the shareholders pro rata in proportion to the amount paid up on their shares.—Re MADAME TUSSAUD & SONS, LTD., [1927] 1 Ch. 657; 96 L. — Judgment after winding up—Right of company to recover money from third party based on company's liability to judgment creditor—No ground for not staying execution.]—The manager of a co. fraudulently & without authority accepted bills of exchange in the co.'s name, & upon those bills the co. was sued to judgment by the holders. After the commencement of the action the co. went into voluntary liquidation. The co. subsequently recovered judgment in an action against a third party for damages for having wrongfully facilitated the commission of the above fraud, & for having thereby rendered the co. liable on the bills. The judgment creditors in the first action then sought to attach under a garnishee order the money so payable to the co. by the third party. On an application by the co. to stay the garnishee proceedings:—Held: where a judgment is recovered against a co. which is in voluntary liquidation the invariable practice of the ct. is to stay execution of the judgment unless there are very exceptional reasons for exercising its discretion otherwise, & the fact that the only right of the co. to recover the money claimed from the garnishees was based upon the co.'s liability to the judgment creditors was not such an exceptional circumstance as to take the case out of the

—A Russian insurance co., having its principal office in Petrograd & a branch office in London, in accordance with 1908 Act, s. 274, filed with the registrar the name of C. as its authorised representative to accept service of process on its behalf. By a series of decrees passed in 1918 the Soviet Govt. purported to put all insurance cos. in Russia into liquidation & to appropriate their property. In the spring of 1923 C. sent a notice to the registrar that the co. which he represented had ceased to exist, & at his request this notice was placed upon the file. In the summer of the same year resps. brought an action against the co. by specially indorsed writ for payment of a sum of money claimed to be due to them in respect of certain insurance transactions. The writ was served upon C., who protested that he had no power to act for the co., & judgment was signed in default of appearance:—Held: (1) at the date of the writ the co. had not ceased to exist by virtue of the decrees of the Soviet Govt.; (2) the service of the writ on C. was valid; (3) the co. by putting on the file the name of a person authorised to accept service of process on its behalf agreed to submit to the jurisdiction of the Ct., & it must be assumed that the Russian Govt. would, according to the comity of nations, recognise the judgment as effective.—*EMPLOYERS' LIABILITY ASSURANCE CORPN. v. 903. For the paragraph in the original volume substitute the following paragraph:—

—By the Lancaster Inclosure Act, 1773, the moors & commons of the manor of Lancaster, Durham, were divided & allotted. The Act provided that the lord of the manor & his assigns should have, hold & enjoy all mines & minerals within & under the allotments, with full & free liberty of searching for, draining, winning & working the mines & minerals by any ways or means then in use or thereafter to be invented as fully & freely, as he might or could have had, held, used & enjoyed the same in case that Act had not been made without paying any damages or making any satisfaction for so doing; & also that the annual rental of a certain allotment to the justices should be applied in or towards the compensation of those allottees whose allotments were damaged by the exercise of the lord's mining rights, & that any deficiency should be made up by means of a rate levied upon all the allottees:—Held: (1) the case was governed by the decision of the Ct. of Appeal in Consett Waterworks Co. v. Ritson, No. 901, ante, which was a decision on the identical question arising on the construction of the same Act & in the same circumstances, & although the reasoning upon which that decision was founded had been disapproved of by the House of Lords in Butterknowle Colliery Co. v. Bishop Auckland Industrial Co., No. 905, post, the decision itself had not been overruled & was therefore binding upon the Ct., & defts. had a right to work the mines so as to let down the surface of the land without paying damages or making any compensation to plffs.; (2) (YOUNGER, L.J.) the decision at which the Ct. of Appeal had felt itself compelled to arrive in deference to authority binding upon it might quite well have been reached on the construction of the Act itself apart altogether from the decision by which it was bound.—CONSETT INDUSTRIAL & PROVIDENT SOCIETY, LTD. v. - 62a. —.]—The Board of the Railway Comrs. for Canada made an order directing a railway co. to construct a subway so that, owing to the increased traffic the existing roadway should be lowered & pass under the railway instead of crossing it on the level, & ordering that detailed plans be filed for the approval of the chief engineer of the Board :—Held : (1) the subway was not part of the undertaking of the railway, so as to enable the co. to take possession of land under Expropriation Act, R. S. C., 1906 (c. 143), for the purpose of the railway proper, & the lowered road still remained part of the road belonging to the municipality; (2) detailed plans must be detailed plans of what was actually lodged as the general plan, & it was not within the liberty of the co. to enlarge the scope of the original plan & provide for a new access to the subway & the taking of land. - 116a. — Land not bonâ fide intended to be taken for purpose.]—Applts. had statutory power to acquire compulsorily land required for the purpose of making or extending streets, also land required for "carrying out improvements in or remodelling any portion of the city." In connection with the extension of a street, they resolved to acquire resps.' land for the latter purpose. They had previously been restrained from acquiring the land for the extension, on the ground that it was not really required for that purpose, but that its purchase was desired because of its probable increase in value. No plan for improving or remodelling the area was considered or proposed, & evidence as to proceedings in the council showed that applts. were endeavouring to give a new form to the transaction

- 133a. ——— For pleasure gardens & street widening —Part used for pleasure garden—May be subsequently used for street widening.]—A local authority bought land in 1896 for the purposes of: (1) street widening; (2) making new streets; (3) providing public walks & pleasure gardens. The land was conveyed to the local authority for the purposes authorised by the Public Health Acts. A plan & specifications were submitted to the Local Government Board, & subsequently the scheme was carried out in accordance with the plan & specifications. The pleasure gardens were surrounded by railings, & were not dedicated or open to the public. In 1927 the local authority resolved to utilise one of the pleasure grounds for the purpose of street widening & providing a parking place for motor cars. Objections were raised by some of the occupiers of adjoining premises, & an action was brought to restrain the local authority from carrying out their resolution:—Held: as one of the purposes for which the land was acquired was street widening, the local authority was not acting ultra vires in using part of the pleasure gardens for that purpose.—*A.-G. v. Only after doing so the Govt. notified a declaration under sect. 6 of the Act that the land was required for a public purpose. Applt. was awarded under the Act the value of the land, & interest thereon from the date when possession had been taken:—Held: applt. was not entitled to the value of the buildings, since by the law of India they did not form part of the soil, & even if applt. would have been entitled to compensation for them, if the Govt. had acted as mere trespassers, & without colour of title, the Govt. had not so acted. They had made on the promontories a bathing house & wharf, both of which they used in connection with the school, but no legal right of way across the railway was proved. The Crown took the two promontories for a public purpose, & upon an area wholly to the east of the railway, & including the two small promontories, made a large railway shunting yard. A claim by applts. to compensation for the damage to their property on the west of the railway by reason of the construction of the shunting yard having been rejected:—Held: the possession & control of the two promontories gave an enhanced value to applts. land on the west side of the railway, & in respect of depreciation in value of those lands due to the anticipated legal use of works which might be constructed upon the two promontories, applts. were owners whose lands had been injuriously affected, & accordingly they were entitled to compensation; further, the ct. in assessing the compensation should have regard to the anticipated use of the promontories as part of a shunting yard, not to the actual use at the time of the assessment.—*ROCKINGHAM SISTERS OF CHARITY v. But where a landowner, possessed of a leasehold interest, who has claimed £550 for compensation for disturbance & valued his leasehold interest at nil, subsequently, but before his claim is accepted, assigns his leasehold interest, his assignee stands in the same position as the landowner & can withdraw or amend the claim, either expressly or by sending in a claim in respect of the leasehold interest wholly inconsistent with the original claim, & the undertakers are not then at liberty to disregard the assignee & continue to treat & contract with the original landowner.—*CARDIFF CORPN. v. - 650a. — Acquisition of land & appointment of arbitrator under Public Health Act, 1875 (c. 55).—A land co. was the owner in fee simple of certain land through which a sewerage board, under Public Health Act, 1875 (c. 55), after duly serving on the co. notice of intention to do so, carried a sewer & a rising main. Subsequently an agreement in writing was entered into between the parties regarding what had been done. Differences having arisen regarding the compensation to be paid by the board to the co., recourse was had to arbn. The arbitrator was appointed under Public Health Act, 1875, & before entering on the arbn. made the statutory declaration under that Act. Having considered the disputes he made an alternative award in the form of a special case for the opinion of the ct. If the ct. was of opinion that compensation was to be assessed solely under Public Health Act, 1875, he awarded the co. £5,090; if the arbitration was under Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919 (c. 57), & the basis on which compensation was to be awarded was to be governed by the principles in s. 2 of that Act, he awarded the co. £2,148:—Held: as the land had been acquired under powers conferred by Public Health Act, 1875, before the agreement between the parties was entered into, it had been acquired compulsorily, & as there was nothing in the agreement which affected the primary basis of the value of the land nor any other matter, including the appointment of the arbitrator expressly under Public Health Act, 1875, which was inconsistent with the rules laid down by s. 2 of the Act of 1919, that Act applied to the arbn., & the co. should be awarded £2,148.—THURROCK, GRAYS & TILBURY JOINT SEWERAGE BOARD v. 761a. —Award embodying decision of court on special case.]—An official arbitrator stated a case under Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919 (c. 57), & the Div. Ct. decided adversely to the contention of claimants for compensation. The arbitrator then made his award, embodying therein the decision of the Div. Ct. Claimants applied to another Div. 773a. Award of lump sum—Validity.—Claimant was the owner of certain land with regard to the acquisition of which an arbn. was held under Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919 (c. 57). He claimed £17,302, & before the hearing of the arbn., the President of the Air Council made an unconditional offer of £10,000. The sum awarded to claimant by the official arbitrator in respect of his interest in the land & the consequential damage thereto was £11,415. In dealing with the costs the arbitrator directed the Council "to pay £100 towards the costs of claimant." Claimant applied to the ct. by motion for the award to be remitted to the arbitrator on the ground that he had, in making the above order as to costs, not properly exercised the discretion conferred upon him by sect. 5 (4) of the above Act:—Held: in awarding the lump sum of £100, the arbitrator had in terms awarded to claimant part of his costs of the arbn. within sect. 5, & as it seemed reasonably clear from the Act that, when a sum was awarded by the arbitrator in excess of the amount offered by the authority but less than the sum which claimant had offered to accept, the arbitrator had an absolute discretion as to the costs, the motion to review the award failed.—*BRADSHAW v. 2225a. Under Housing, Town Planning, etc., Act, 1919 (c. 35)—Acquisition of land—Extent of powers.]—Under the above Act, defts. made an order, subsequently confirmed by the Minister of Health, for the compulsory acquisition for the purposes of a scheme under sect. 1 of the Act, of three thousand acres for the erection of working-class houses for the accommodation of one hundred & twenty thousand persons. They also proposed to acquire compulsorily a beerhouse within the area with the objects, (a) of controlling or regulating the traffic in intoxicating liquor on the site, that control to be based on management by some co. or assocn. whose servants were not to have a pecuniary interest in the sale of alcohol, & (b) of providing for the general entertainment & refreshment of the population:—Held: the Act contemplated extensive schemes for the provision of working-class houses by local authorities, involving in many cases the acquisition of considerable areas of land & extending even to the creation of a new town; sect. 12 (1), treated the land within the selected area as a whole, & as something in the nature of a building estate, & as incidental to the complete control of the development of the building scheme, empowered the local authority to acquire any houses or other buildings, whether the same were or were not required for use as, or as a site for, workmen's dwellings, or for roads or other purposes mentioned in the earlier Housing Acts; & that power was not limited to houses which it was proposed to adapt for working-class accommodation under the power to alter contained in the later part of the sub-sect.;

upon the above construction of the Act, subject to confirmation by the Minister of Health, defts. had power under sect. 12 (1) of the Act to acquire compulsorily the beerhouse in question for the attainment of the objects above-mentioned.

Semble: both under sect. 12 (2) of the Act, & under Housing of the Working Classes Act, 1903 (c. 39), s. 11, defts. had a similar power for effecting the like objects.—*CONRON v. of its business was transacted in Russia, & for the purpose of that business pltfs., through their London bankers, deposited moneys & Russian Treasury Bonds with the Petrograd branch of the Banque de Commerce de l'Azoff-Don. Having done so, pltfs. took out two policies of insurance to insure themselves against loss or damage to the insured property "directly caused by fire, rioters, civil commotions, war, civil war, revolutions, rebellions, military or usurped power. . . ." No claim was to attach under the policy (inter alia) "for confiscation or destruction by the Govt. of the country in which the property is situated." In Dec. 1917, during the currency of the policy, the Banque de Commerce was occupied by soldiers & sailors of the Red Guard, & by the Bolsheviks, purporting to act under the authority of an executive committee of the Commissaries of the People. They demanded & obtained control & possession of the bank & everything contained in it, including the insured property. Two actions were brought claiming for losses under the policies, & the question arose with regard to the recognition of the Soviet Govt. as a sovereign power:—Held: on the information then available, the act of the military in seizing the insured property was an act of confiscation by the Govt. of Russia which was in existence at the material time, & had since been recognised by His Majesty's Govt. as the de facto Govt. of Russia, & was not an act of a usurped authority; therefore the claim failed by reason of the clause which provided that no claim was to attach under the policy ". . . for confiscation or destruction by the Govt. of the country in which the property is situated."—WHITE, CHILD & BENEY, LTD. v. In 1901 he married resp., an American lady, & in 1902 they went to Quebec where he carried on the business of manufacturing arms. They lived together there till 1917 with occasional visits to England. In 1917 applt. went to Washington, staying there as an expert adviser *on munitions till Sept. 1918, when he stayed a certain time in Great Britain & in 1918 leased a house in London. In 1922 he took a lease of a flat in New York of which he remained tenant when these proceedings for divorce began in Dec. 1923. Up to the year 1920 there was no statement by applt. of his intention to abandon his Scottish domicile, & as late as Dec. 1920, he stated in an affidavit that he was a domiciled Scotchman. Between Dec. 1920, & the institution of these proceedings he was trying for the purposes of taxation to become a resident alien in the United States, & in Apr. 1923, succeeded. In Jan. 1924, after these proceedings he sought to be naturalised as an American citizen. He spent increasing periods of time at his Scottish estate & referred to it as his home in a letter written to resp. in Nov. 1922. Since 1920, however, he had made statements in documents & verbally that he intended to live permanently in New York, though such statements were never made to his wife, nor, with one exception, to any personal friend:—Held: the evidence of declared intention of change of domicile was not established, as such declarations must be examined by considering the person to whom, the purposes for which, & the circumstances in which they were made, & be carried into effect by conduct & action consistent with the declared intention.—*ROSS v. Bank, as security for moneys due & to become due, two debentures, the one for £10,000, & the other for £50,000 ; both debentures assigned the uncalled capital of the co., & were, as the ct. held, valid according to the law of Queensland. In Dec. 1886 the Q. Co. made a call of £50 a share payable in four instalments, in Feb., Apr., June, & Aug. 1887. The co. had many shareholders domiciled in Scotland & some in England. On Oct. 20, 1887, an order was made for winding up the co. in Queensland, & on June 14, 1888, a similar order was made in England. On Feb. 24, 1887, the A. Co., a co. domiciled in Scotland, commenced proceedings in Scotland to recover from the Q. Co. large sums entrusted to them for investment. Immediately after the institution of the action the call moneys due under the call made by the Q. Co. as above, from shareholders resident in Scotland, were arrested by the Scotch process called arrestment on the dependence of the action. Proceedings in this action were restrained by the High Ct. in England on Feb. 24, 1888, on the motion of the English liquidator of the Q. Co., but the order was expressly made without prejudice to the security, if any, upon the amounts payable by the Scotch shareholders in the Q. Co. which the A. Co. had acquired by their proceedings, & the amounts received from the Scotch shareholders were directed to be carried by the liquidator to a separate account. On Sept. 6, 1889, an order was made in the Queensland winding up allowing the claim of the A. Co. for £12,662 4s. 5d. The U. Bank, whose claim against the Q. Co. had been allowed for £74,000, but who had valued their security at £31,000, took out a summons claiming that the liquidator should pay over to the bank all the moneys in his hands representing proceeds of the said call. The A. Co. claimed to be paid in priority out of the money received from Scotch shareholders. The evidence stated that, according to the law of Scotland, the arrestment had the effect of attaching the fund in favour of the creditor obtaining it, & upon the decree being pronounced in the suit the security would become complete, & that such an arrestment operated as an assignment of the fund duly intimated; that an admission of the sum due in the winding up of a co. was for this purpose equivalent to a decree; & that, according to the law of Scotland, in order to create a competent security over incorporeal personal property, the assignment thereof must be duly intimated to the debtor:—Held: without deciding the point whether the maxim "Mobilia sequuntur personam" made the assignment of the calls by the Q. Co. domiciled in Queensland valid in Scotland, the case was governed by the principle that, if a transfer of personal property is carried out validly according to the law of the country where the property is situated, it cannot be made invalid by anything in the law of the assignor's domicile; & as the evidence proved that the arrestment operated as an assignment by the Q. Co., completed by intimation according to the law of Scotland, that assignment could not be made invalid by the prior assignment, which could only have effect by the law of Queensland.—*Re QUEENSLAND MERCANTILE & AGENCY Co., Ex p. 626a. Over stock representing proceeds of sale of real estate in England—& liable to be laid out in purchase of land.]—An Englishwoman, domiciled in France, having a general power of appointment over a sum of stock, representing a share of proceeds of real estate in England sold under the judgment in a partition action, such proceeds being liable to be laid out in the purchase of land under Settled Estates Act, 1877 (c. 18), s. 31, by her will in the French language gave “all her properties & chattels (tous les biens et droits mobiliers)” to T. absolutely:—Held: the will must be construed as disposing of everything in the form of personal estate over which testatrix had a general power of disposition, & the fund being personal estate in form, it passed by the will.—*Re HARMAN, LLOYD v. Part VII.—Contracts.

639. To the cross-reference before this case add “No. 1981a.”

639a. ————.]—Pltf. was received by defts., a British co., under a contract made in Detroit, to be carried in one of their steamships from New York to Southampton. The contract contained a clause that the shipowners should not be liable for loss, damage or delay to a passenger or his baggage arising from the act of God, or from causes of any kind beyond the carrier's control, even though the loss, damage or delay might have been caused by the neglect or default of the shipowners' servants. It was further provided that all questions arising under the clause should be decided according to English law. A subsequent clause provided that no claim under the contract should be enforceable against the shipowners unless a written notice thereof was delivered to them within three days after the passenger should be landed from the steamer at the termination of her voyage. In the course of the voyage one of pltf.'s hands was injured by reason of the negligence of defts.' servants, but no written notice of any claim was given by pltf. within the time limited by the contract:—Held: the language of the contract showed that it was the intention of the parties that it should be wholly governed by English law; the clause relieving defts. from liability for the negligence of their servants, though void by the law in force in Detroit, was valid & enforceable, by English law, but, applying the ejusdem generis rule, the clause did not absolve defts. from liability for pltf.'s injury.—JONES v. OCEANIC STEAM NAVIGATION CO., LTD., [1924] 2 K. B. 730; 93 L. J. K. B. 1053; 132 L. T. 207; 40 T. L. R. 847; 69 Sol. Jo. 106; 16 Asp. M. L. C. 432.

640a. Agreement for contract to be subject to foreign law—Contract cancelled by decree of foreign Government.]—In May, 1903, pltf. took out a 20 year endowment life insurance policy with defts. for 10,000 roubles payable at defts.' office in St. Petersburg, & by the terms of the policy all premiums were to be paid in Russia. Pltf. paid all the premiums in Russia down to 1917, & then in London down to 1919. By the terms of an Imperial Decree of the Russian Empire, dated July 7, 1889, which were incorporated in the policy, it was provided (inter alia) that all disputes in connection with insurance operations should be settled according to Russian laws & in Russian cts. of justice. By a Monopolisation Decree of the Russian Soviet Govt., dated Dec. 1918, insurance in all its forms was declared a State monopoly, & in Nov. 1919, a Decree of Cancellation abolished life assurance altogether in the Soviet Republic, & all existing contracts were annulled. In those circumstances pltf., who was prevented by the above decrees of 1918 & 1919 from suing on the policy in Russia, brought an action in England for a declaration that defts. were liable to him under the policy:—Held: the proper law of the contract was, according to the policy rules, the law of Russia, & the effect of the Cancellation Decree of Nov. 1919, was that the contract, if in fact there was any contractual nexus left in existence between the parties after the Monopolisation Decree of 1918 came into force, was annulled, & pltf. could not recover on it.—*PERRY v. The charterparty & the bill of lading given under it were in the English language, & it was stipulated that the ship should call at one of three ports of the United Kingdom for orders. The co. had a branch in London & in most of the capitals of Europe, the branch in Paris being its head office for Europe. The general manager of the London branch had no general authority to issue policies in this country. Certain life policies signed by the president & secretary of the co. & countersigned by the general manager for Europe, were issued in London to German nationals before the outbreak of the war. The policies were not under seal. The policy moneys were expressed to be payable in London, but all premiums were payable either at the central office in New York or at the office where the insurance was payable, & proofs of death were to be furnished at the New York office. An indorsement on the policy provided that it should be construed according to English law:—Held: it was permissible & necessary to look at the terms of the contracts & to determine from them at what place the debts would be recoverable; applying that test in the present

there was an attempt to remove her before the security had been given. Security was given in London in accordance with the

& taken to Constantinople for temporary repairs. Before she was ready to leave, L. brought an action against the master in the Turkish ct. on the ground that the ship

having been given. By order of the Turkish
ct. the ship was arrested, &, as the master had no evidence of what had been done in London & L. took an oath that security had not been given, the Turkish ct. awarded L.
£23,890. L. then disposed of the ship, & pltfs. brought an action (1) for damages for breach of contract, (2) for a declaration that 1147a. —[—In an action by buyers against foreign sellers for breach of contract alleging failure to deliver goods in the quantity & of the quality agreed to be sold, the defence was set up that the matter had been litigated

in the French ct., which had given judgment for defts., & that the judgment was a bar to the action. Pltfs. replied that the judgment was obtained by proceedings contrary to natural justice. The action in France was brought by the sellers against the buyers for cancellation of the contract, & for damages, & the ct. made an order appointing an expert to go to London to examine the goods, compare them with the samples delivered, hear & take down in writing all evidence, & make a full report in writing to the French ct. It was proved in the English action that the expert appointed made a hurried & incomplete examination of the goods, refused to look at certain documents or to hear the evidence of pltfs. & their witnesses, & ultimately made a biased & erroneous report to the ct.:—Held: there being evidence that according to French law the ct. was not bound by the expert's report but could reject it, & that pltfs.' case had been properly argued before the French ct., & their evidence heard, there was no defect in the proceedings, &
there being no fraud proved, the judgment in the French action was valid & could not be impeached, & was a complete defence to the English action.—JACOBSON v. FRACHON

1307a. Garnishee proceedings—Payment of debt situate in England—Recognised by international law.]—Judgment having been recovered against a foreign corp., who submitted to the jurisdiction, a garnishee summons was issued to attach a debt due from a London bank to the foreign corp.:—Held: the judgment creditors were entitled to have an order nisi made absolute, inasmuch as payment under a garnishee order operated as a discharge of the amount paid & was recognised by international law as having that effect, & consequently there was no real risk of the garnishees being obliged to pay the debt over again to the foreign corp., & there was, therefore, nothing inequitable in making the order absolute.

The debt in this case is situate in England, & is discharged in whole or in part by payment under a garnishee order in England, which is not mere procedure & is recognised in international law (BANKES, L.J.).—SWISS BANK CORPN. v. 1307b. ————.]—Defts., a co. incorporated in Russia, had a branch office in London, & had registered C. as their agent to accept service of any judicial process that might be issued against them. In 1918 defts.' business & its assets were by revolutionary legislation transferred to the Soviet Govt. In 1923 an action was brought in England to recover a debt alleged to be due from defts. to ptf., the writ being served on C., & in default of appearance judgment was signed against defts. Ptf. having obtained a garnishee order nisi to attach a debt due to defts. from third parties in England:—Held: as the debt owing from the garnishees to defts. was governed by English law, payment by the garnishees of the amount of the judgment debt would be a discharge pro tanto of the debt due from them to defts., & it must be assumed that the Soviet Govt. would follow the ordinary rules of international comity & admit the validity of that payment, & the garnishee order ought to be made absolute.—SEDGWICK COLLINS & CO. v. 1309a. Rights of mortgagee of ship under French hypothèque—Claim for necessities.]—According to French law, the mtgee. of a ship under a French hypothèque, although he has not the same right of property as that given by Merchant Shipping Act, 1894 (c.60), in respect of an English mtge., has a right to arrest the ship in the hands of a subsequent owner. His claim, however, is postponed to that of a necessities man.

On a motion to determine priorities between English claimants, in respect of necessary repairs effected upon a French ship & claimants under a French hypothèque upon the ship:—Held: as the rights under the hypothèque must be determined according to French law, which gave greater rights than those given by English law to a necessities man who had merely the right to sue in rem, the claim of the necessities men, according to the lex fori by which the question of priorities must be determined, was postponed to the claim of the mtgees.—THE COLORADO, [1923] P. 102; 92 L. 1378a. ————.]—In respect of a collision in the Red Sea the owners of the J. issued a writ in the Egyptian cts. against the owners of the M. & obtained bail. Shortly afterwards the owners of the M. instituted a cross-action against the owners of the J., also in Egypt. In Oct. 1927, the owners of the M. issued a writ in personam in England against the owners of the J., who entered appearance under protest & set down a motion to set aside the writ. In Dec. the owners of the M. discontinued their cross-action in Egypt:—Held: if the cross-action had still been pending the owners of the M. might have been put to their election, but as they had already elected there was no justification for staying the action in England, merely because they were defts. to an action in another country in respect of the same subject-matter.—THE JANERA, [1928] P. 55; 97 L. 1379a. — — — — —.]—In 1924 plffs. instituted an action in rem in the United States in respect of damage done by defts.' ship to some pipe lines belonging to plffs. in the bed of the river at Tampico, & the ship was arrested & released on bail being given by defts. Before the action in America had been brought to trial plffs. issued a fresh writ in rem in England, & on Feb. 27, 1926, re-arrested the ship in the Thames. On Mar. 4 defts. served notice of motion to set aside the writ & all subsequent proceedings in the English action. The American action was discontinued on Mar. 8:—Held: having obtained bail & so released the ship from any further claim in respect of the particular damage alleged, plffs.' subsequent discontinuance of the action in America after the re-arrest in England did not cure their breach of good faith in instituting proceedings in England & causing the ship to be arrested again, & the writ & all subsequent proceedings must be set aside.—THE GOLAA, [1926] P. 103; 95 L. 1383a. — — — — —.]—On June 13, 1922, a British steamer & a Finnish steamer were in collision in the river Maas, Holland. After the collision the Finnish owners threatened arrest in a Dutch port. The owners of the British steamer who were anxious that the litigation should take place in England, reluctantly instructed their agents in Holland to provide bail, & although no proceedings were begun, documents in identical terms in the nature of bank guarantees to provide bail if proceedings were commenced within three months were exchanged on July 29 between the owners. On Sept. 6 the Finnish vessel came within the jurisdiction of the English cts., & an action was commenced, & the ship arrested & bail given under protest at the suit of the owners of the British ship. At that time no proceedings had been begun in Holland, but on Sept. 14 an action was commenced in Holland by the Finnish owners. The Finnish owners moved that the writ & all proceedings in the action by the British owners should be stayed, on the ground that their action was oppressive because it required the Finnish owners to give bail in two cts., & was inequitable as a breach of faith of the agreement in Holland:—Held: no legal proceedings having been commenced when the writ was issued in England, & there being no arrest & no bail given prior to the writ now sought to be set aside, there was nothing to debar the British owners from carrying on proceedings in England.—THE JUNO (1922), 128 L. by the order of a competent authority, it is placed at the disposal of the Govt., & a mere negative prohibition, though it involves interference with an owner's enjoyment of property, does not, merely because it is obeyed, carry with it at common law any right to compensation.—*FRANCE FENWICK & Co. v. - 348a. — In proceedings under Patents & Designs Acts.]—Appts. applied by originating summons under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 29, as amended by Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), s. 8, for an inquiry as to the remuneration proper to be paid to them for the user by a Govt. department of the patented invention of which they were the registered owners. In the course of the proceedings, preliminary to hearing of the motion, orders were made in which the litigation was treated, with the acquiescence of both litigants, as subject to the ordinary rule as to costs, & on two occasions orders were made requiring appts. to give security for costs. After the hearing had proceeded for some time appts. withdrew their claim in view of a prior trial of the invention found to have been made on behalf of the Govt. which, by virtue of the proviso to Patents & Designs Act, 1919, s. 8, entitled the Govt. to make use of it thereafter without payment. On the question how the costs ought to be borne:—Held: (1) under that part of Patents & Designs Act, 1919, which authorised proceedings against a Govt. department, there was no express mention of costs, & the authority to deal with them was derived from the general jurisdiction of the ct., & the ct. had, therefore, no authority to depart from the common law rule that the Crown neither paid nor received costs, unless the special circumstances of the particular case justified it in so doing; (2) having regard to the orders that had been made before the hearing of the Electric Tramway Co. v. A-G., and inasmuch as the question in Ceylon was whether any particular part of Roman Dutch law had been recognised there, very clear arguments would be required to induce the Judicial Committee to reverse that decision.—

- 465a. — By order of diplomatic superior.—Deft., who was First Secretary of the Peruvian Legation, took out a policy of insurance against legal liability to members of the public in connection with the driving of his motor car, the policy providing that "the assured . . . shall not in any way act to the detriment or prejudice of the (insurance) co.'s interests," & that "the co. is entitled to take absolute control of all negotiations & proceedings." Pltf. brought an action for personal injuries against deft., & the latter served on the insurance co. a third-party notice claiming an indemnity. An appearance without protest was entered in the action on behalf of deft., & as the Peruvian Minister forbade deft. to raise the plea of diplomatic immunity, no such plea was inserted in the defence. The jury found a verdict for pltf. for damages, & the insurance co. repudiated liability on the ground that deft. had broken the conditions of the policy by insisting that the plea of diplomatic immunity should not be raised :—Held : the privilege of diplomatic immunity was waived by the entry of appearance without protest.—DICKINSON v. DEL SOLAR (1929), 45 T. L. R. 637.

- 499a. ———. Under Indemnity Act, 1920 (c. 48)—"Direct loss or damage"—What is.—Claimants carried on business as motor garage proprietors in Dublin, where they owned & occupied extensive premises peculiarly well suited to their purposes. These premises were taken by the Govt. under powers conferred by statute for the defence of the realm. Claimants, having tried & failed to acquire premises temporarily, took the only reasonable course; they bought other premises, fitted them for use as a garage, & transferred to them all the appliances of their business which they thus continued to carry on as well as they could. When the Govt. retired from possession of the original premises claimants sold the substituted premises. They alleged that the difference between the amount they had expended in acquiring the substituted premises & fitting them for use as a garage on the one hand, & the sum they received on the sale of the substituted premises on the other hand amounted to £3,429. They claimed this sum as an item of "direct loss or damage incurred or sustained by reason of interference with" their "property or business" within sect. 2 (1) (b) of the above Act :—Held : "direct 526a. Power to impose payment for licence to sell ship to foreigner—Recovery of money paid—Indemnity Act, 1920 (c. 48), s. 1 (1).—The Shipping Controller, purporting to act in pursuance of his powers under Defence of the Realm Regulations, imposed upon suppliants as a condition of granting them a licence to sell a steamship to a foreigner the payment to him by suppliants of £30,800. By their petition of right suppliants alleged that the Shipping Controller had no lawful authority to impose a condition or to exact the payment, which suppliants had paid under protest, & that the Shipping Controller thereby became liable to repay the money to suppliants as money had & received to their use. The petition of right was not brought within one year from the termination of the war or within one year from the exaction of the money. The Crown demurred to the petition, on the ground that the case if founded on the alleged tort of the Shipping Controller was barred by the above sub-sect., & if based on an alleged breach of contract, the proceedings not having been brought within the prescribed time failed under proviso (b) of that sub-sect. A further ground of demurrer was that a petition of right would not lie against the Crown for tort, for the King could do no wrong. Suppliants contended that they were entitled to waive the tort & to sue for money had & received by the Shipping Controller & now in the hands of the Crown, & that their claim so grounded was not a proceeding for or in respect or on account of any act of the Shipping Controller, & therefore was not within the terms of the Act:—Held: the allegation that suppliants' money had been extorted from them by the wrongful act of the Shipping Controller was an essential part of suppliants' case, from which the claim for money had & received arose; & as such act was one to which the above sub-sect. applied, the petition of right was barred by that sub-sect.—*BRISTOL CHANNEL STEAMERS, LTD. v. 526b. ————.]—The Shipping Controller, purporting to act under the authority of Defence of the Realm Regulations, required as a condition of a licence to suppliants to sell one of their ships to a foreign firm that they should pay a percentage of the purchase money to the Ministry of Shipping, & suppliants paid the percentage. On a petition of right to recover back the money so paid:—Held: (1) the imposition of the condition was illegal, & the payment was not a voluntary payment; (2) the petition of right was barred by the above sub-sect.; it was not open to suppliants, by waiving the tort of the illegal exaction & suing for money had & received, to bring the case within par. (b) of the proviso to the sub-sect., for the case fell within the exception to the proviso as being one in which a claim for compensation could have been brought under sect. 2 (1) (b); (3) (BANKES & SARGANT, L.J.J.) suppliants failed to bring the case within the proviso upon the further ground that the contracts referred to in paragraph (b) are limited to express contracts, & do not include the fictitious contract to repay money improperly extorted, the implication of which arises upon a waiver of the tort.—*BROCKLEBANK, LTD. v. On a petition of right to recover back the amount from the Crown on the ground that the demand was unlawful:—Held: as the demand was made in the bona fide belief that the Shipping Controller was entitled to make it & as he was purporting to act in the execution of his duty the Crown was protected by the above sub-sect.—MARSHAL SHIPPING CO. (IN LIQUIDATION) v. R. (1925), 41 T. L. R. 285.

526d. ————.]—Transfer of liabilities incurred by Shipping Controller to Board of Trade—Whether action maintainable against Board of Trade.—(1) Pltfs. in 1922 brought an action against the Board of Trade for money had & received. The money which it was sought to recover was alleged to have been wrongfully extorted from pltfs. in 1919 by the Shipping Controller under colour of his office, & it was alleged that, on pltfs. electing to waive the tort, he would have been personally liable to refund the money as having been received to their use. By Ministry of Shipping (Cessation) Order, 1921, it was provided that the office of Shipping Controller should cease to exist, & that “All . . . liabilities . . . incurred by the Shipping Controller . . . shall be transferred to the Board of Trade.” The “Board of Trade” is the name given by statute to an unincorporated committee of the Privy Council. On an application to strike out the writ on the ground that the Board of Trade, as a department of the Crown, could not be sued:—Held: the intention of the Order was to transfer to the Board of Trade as a Govt. department the personal liabilities, if any such there were, of the Shipping Controller for any wrongful acts committed by him in his office, & the Board was liable to be sued in respect of those acts notwithstanding that it was an unincorporated body.

(2) Although the Board of Trade may in the above-mentioned circumstances be sued as a Govt. department, service of the writ must, unless the solr. to the Board accepts service on their behalf, be effected upon the individual constituent members of the Board personally.

534a. ————.]—A British ship lying in a neutral port & laden with a cargo of timber belonging to neutrals of another country was requisitioned during the war by the British Govt. & brought home with her cargo to England without the consent & against the protest of the cargo owners. The timber was then requisitioned by the Controller of Timber Supplies on behalf of the Board of Trade avowedly under Defence of the Realm Regulations, 2B & 2JJ. The owners of the cargo made a claim in the War Compensation Ct. for compensation & contended that it should be assessed under Indemnity Act, 1920 (c. 48), s. 2 (2) (iii.) (a), on the ground that in the circumstances they would but for the Act have had a legal right to compensation:—Held: (1) the regulations did not apply to a seizure of goods of a neutral brought into England against his will; (2) the requisition of the timber was justifiable as an exercise of the royal prerogative right of angary & was, therefore, made “in exercise of” a “prerogative right to His Majesty” within s. 2 (1) (b) of the Act, & inasmuch as that right involved the obligation to pay full compensation to the owner of the property seized, claimants

"would have had apart from" the Act a valid claim for compensation by petition of right, & the Crown admitting that such a claim constituted "a legal right to compensation," compensation was to be assessed according to the principle laid down in s. 2 (2) (iii.) (a) of the Act.—COMMERCIAL & ESTATES CO. OF EGYPT v. BOARD OF TRADE, [1925] 1 K. B. 271; 94 L. J. K. B. 50; 132 L. T. 516, C. A.

Legal effect expressly excluded.]

By successive arrangements made before 1913 between an American firm & an English co. the American firm were constituted sole agents for the sale in the United States & Canada of tissues for carbonising paper supplied by the English co. The greater part of these tissues was manufactured for this English co. by another English co. By an arrangement made between the American firm & both English cos. in 1913 the English cos. expressed their willingness that the existing arrangements with the American firm, which were then for one year only, should be continued on the same lines for three years & so on for further periods of three years, subject to six months' notice. This document, after setting out the understanding between the parties, including several modifications of the previous arrangements, proceeded as follows : " This arrangement is not entered into, nor is this memorandum written, as a formal or legal agreement, & shall not be subject to legal jurisdiction in the law cts. either of the United States or England, but it is only a definite expression & record of the purpose & intention of the three parties concerned, to which they each honourably pledge themselves, with the fullest confidence—based on past business with each other—that it will be carried through by each of the three parties with mutual loyalty & friendly co-operation. This is hereinafter referred to as the ' honourable pledge ' clause." Disputes having arisen between the parties, the English cos. determined this arrangement without notice. Before the relations between the parties were broken off the American firm had given & the first-mentioned English co. had accepted certain orders for goods. In an action by the American firm for breach of contract & for non-delivery of goods :—Held : (1) the arrangement of 1913 was not a legally binding contract ; (2) at the date of the arrangement of 1913 all previous agreements were determined by mutual consent ; (3) the orders given & accepted constituted enforceable contracts of sale.—*ROSE & FRANK CO. v. b i. ———.—[In an action brought against exor. of a farmer who had died intestate, the pursuer averred that deceased, a childless widower & an invalid, proposed to him that, if he gave up a situation which he then had, resided with him at the farm, & looked after him & the farm, he would make the pursuer his heir; that, after consideration & induced by the representations of the deceased, he accepted the proposal, lived with the deceased for sixteen years as his companion & nurse without remuneration, & successfully managed the farm; & that, owing to the failure of deceased, in spite of his representations, to make a will in favour of pursuer, he had suffered material loss. He accordingly claimed to be indemnified for this loss, which he estimated at £8,000, or, alternatively, to be recompensed in so far as the estate had benefited from his services. The ct. dismissed the action as irrelevant, holding that pursuer's averments did not import a legal claim enforceable against the deceased's executors, in respect (a) that nothing more was disclosed than a mere expression of intention on the part of the deceased to make the pursuer his heir; (b) that, even on the assumption that a definite promise of heirship was averred, such a promise could have been proved only by the writ of the deceased, & here admittedly no writ existed; (c) that no prima facie case for indemnification on ground of equity was disclosed, the loss averred by the pursuer as a result of the deceased's representations being based solely on hypothetical calculations & not on actual outlay.—*GRAY v. words "by return" related only to the time within which, & not to the method by which, acknowledgment was to be made, & therefore there was a concluded contract, & pltf. was entitled to recover.—WILLIS v. BAGGS & SALT (1925), 41 T. L. R. 453; 69 Sol. Jo. 543.

It is reasonable, they thought, to imply good faith as a necessary ingredient. On the other hand, it seems to be putting an undue strain on the words to construe them, when used by a layman, as connoting not the approval of his own solr., which is their plain, ordinary meaning, but the decision of a ct. of justice after an unknown delay & at an unascertainable cost (MAUGHAM, J.).—*CURTIS MOFFAT, LTD. v. The order contained a term that it was not to be binding on resp. until received & ratified in writing or by actual delivery of the goods to applt., & that the order might be cancelled by applt. giving notice to resp. by registered letter at least thirty days prior to date for delivery, with a proviso that if prior to that date or six months thereafter applt. ordered a binder from any other person, resp. might by registered notice revive the order, & deliver the binder within thirty days. An agent of resp. was told by applt. that he wished to cancel the order, as he was buying a harvester, & the agent notified resp., but no notice was given by applt. to resp. On Sept. 2 resp. forwarded by rail a binder to applt., & wrote him stating that the binder had been forwarded per rail. The machine arrived, & applt. refused to take delivery, but admitted he had received the letter:—Held: the letter did not amount to a ratification of the order, & a delivery on Sept. 2 did not necessarily imply a delivery pursuant or referable to the stipulation in the contract for delivery on or about Oct. 1, & there was no acceptance of the order.—*BLACKETT v. 845a. — Parol warranty to let for certain purposes.—Pltf., in an action for damages for breach of warranty in connection with the letting to him of certain premises, alleged that as a basis of negotiations which culminated in an agreement in writing whereby defts. agreed to let & pltf. agreed to take the premises in question, defts. verbally warranted to let the premises for dancing purposes. Defts. had no power to let the premises for such purposes without the consent of the superior landlord, & such consent was never in fact obtained. Pltf. took possession under the agreement & expended considerable sums in alterations, & now claimed to recover the amount of such expenses less the sums received by him during his possession of the premises. There was no fraudulent misrepresentation:—Held: pltf. had failed to establish the alleged parol agreement, & even if the evidence had established that before the contract was entered into pltf. had asked whether the premises could be let for dancing & had been answered in the affirmative, it would only have been evidence as to the subject-matter of the contract & could not control, vary, or add to the terms of the written contract.—*CRAWFORD v. 859a. — What amounts to—Reconstitution of action.—Defts. on Jan. 9, 1924, agreed to sell a quantity of wood to a partnership firm. The firm, being in financial difficulties, formed a limited co., & duly notified defts. On July 9 it was orally agreed that the new co. should give defts. a cheque & three bills in respect of the indebtedness of the old firm, & that defts. should supply to the new co. the goods sold under the contract of Jan. 9, & accept the new co. as buyers of the goods. The new co. subsequently gave to defts. the cheque & three bills, but defts. did not deliver the goods under the contract of Jan. 9 to the new co. The two partners in the old firm then brought an action against defts. for breach of the contract of Jan. 9. To that action defts. put in a defence signed by counsel in which they pleaded, in par. 3, that it had been agreed by the contract of July 9 that the new co. should give defts. on the following Monday a cheque &

838 i. Promise to pay debt of another—Subsequent credit given to guarantor as principal debtor—Not entire.—Held: as to goods supplied before the alleged promise, the promise was one to answer for the debt of another & under Stat. Frauds was unenforceable because of the absence of a memorandum in writing to support it; but as to goods supplied subsequently, although the account was continued in the buyer’s name, it was established that the surety became the principal debtor & the goods were supplied on his account, & no memorandum in writing was required to enforce the claim.—*BATEMAN & MATTHEWS v. three drafts, & that debts. would supply to the new co. instead of to the old firm the goods sold under the contract of Jan. 9, & accept that co. as buyers of the goods. The pleadings were then amended & the action was reconstituted, the partners in the old firm being struck out & the new co. substituted as plffs., & the cause of action was stated to be a breach of the agreement of July 9. Defts. then amended their defence & relied upon Sale of Goods Act, 1893 (c. 71), s. 4, as a defence to that amended action:—Held: (1) par. 3 of the original unamended defence which was signed by counsel constituted a sufficient note or memorandum in writing of the contract signed by an agent of the party to be charged to satisfy the above sect., inasmuch as (2) the new departure with regard to the parties & the cause of action when the action was reconstituted must be treated as the commencement of the action within the rule in *Lucas v. This other agreement had been previously made on the same day, but it was not signed till the following day, & it was to remain in force for ten years unless certain payments were sooner made. After observing the agreement with plffs. for five months defts. repudiated it:—Held: the two agreements were sufficiently connected to enable the second to be read with the first, & Stat. Frauds did not prevent plffs. from contending that the first agreement was to last for ten years.—FRANCO-BRITISH SHIP STORE CO., LTD. v. COMPAGNIE DES CHARGEURS FRANCAISE (1926), 42 T. L. R. 735.

90b. Contract not absolutely recognised—Alleged variation of terms.—Def'ts. agents in A., on Oct. 14, 1914, telegraphed to def't. in business in O., that they had sold to plffs. a cargo of apples for shipment on opening of navigation. On Oct. 16, def't. answered accepting. On that day the agents sent def't. a bought note, stating the terms of contract as in the telegram, with additions. On Oct. 20, def't. wrote to the agents: "I will return contract, as I find you have worded contract 'opening of navigation 1915.' I will not accept contract on these terms unless they will pay for the goods when packed".—Held: if the terms of the contract had not sufficiently appeared by the telegrams

& the bought note, the letter of Oct. 20 would have supplied a sufficient memorandum to satisfy Stat. Frauds, although it contained a repudiation of the contract.—CAMPBELL v. MAHLER (1919), 43 O. L. R. 395; 14 O. W. N. 348; affd., 15 O. W. N. 339.—CAN.

Under these circumstances we think it would be possible to reasonably limit the title." The next day purchaser's solr., in acknowledging the letter, stated: "The simple agreement arrived at herein appears in the first part of your letter, & I suggest that we can dispense with any further agreement".—Held: the latter letter constituted a note or memorandum sufficient to satisfy Stat. action against D., claiming damages for breach of contract to purchase bonds, a telegram from D. to his partner was produced saying, "I absolutely bought them yesterday after our phone conversation they agreeing to our terms".—Held: parol evidence was properly received to show that terms had been stated by D., over his signature, that they were the only terms & were those referred to in the telegram, & the two constituted a sufficient memorandum within Stat. Frauds.—DORAN v. MCKINNON (1916), 53 S. C. R. 609.—CAN.

PART IV. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 4.—A. (a).

971 i. General rule.—A writing is not sufficient to make a contract of purchase of land comply with Stat. Frauds unless the parties to the contract are specified in the writing, either nominally or by description or reference, & in such a manner that there can be no fair or reasonable dispute as to their identity. A letter signed by a purchaser, addressed to persons who are the vendor's agents, but not mentioning the vendor, & there being nothing creating a contract binding upon the agents personally, is not sufficient to make a contract enforceable against purchaser under Stat. Frauds.—MAHLER v. BARKER, [1924] 3 D. L. R. 292; 2 W. W. R. 796; 34 B. C. R. 136.—CAN.

- 1178a. —. —. —.]—In cases under Stat. Frauds the general principle has been, not that the legislature has avoided contracts which are not made in accordance with the forms prescribed in the Act, but merely that those contracts shall only be proved in that particular way. In every single case under Stat. Frauds, except in the case of contracts relating to an interest in land, it has been held authoritatively that part performance of a contract which is within the terms of the Act is not sufficient to preclude the party who has made the part performance, or who has received a part performance, from taking advantage of the Act (ATKIN, L.J.).—Re A BANKRUPTCY NOTICE, [1924] 2 Ch. 76; 93 L. 1237 ix. —.]—In order to enforce specific performance of an oral contract, whereby deceased promised to devise land to another in consideration of the latter working for deceased until the latter's death, the acts relied on as part performance excluding Stat. Frauds must be unequivocally referable to the contract asserted.

The fact that a son left his employment & lived & worked on his father's farm for ten years without drawing wages:—Held: not to point unmistakably to a contract by the father to leave his property to the son, & the alleged contract, not being evidenced by writing, was not enforceable.—*Re MERTON, MERTON v. 1459a. —.]—S., a customer of bkpt., a stock-broker, became indebted to him in respect of Stock Exchange transactions in a sum for which bkpt., on Dec. 18, 1923, recovered judgment. Later, S. became similarly indebted to bkpt. in a further sum. On Jan. 15, 1924, bkpt. assigned both debts to W. to secure £500. & covenanted with him that, in the event of his refraining from giving notice of the assignment to S., he, bkpt., would, on payment of the debts or any part thereof, hand the cheque or other form of payment to W. In Mar. 1924, J., who acted as solr. for both bkpt. & W. in the matter of the assignment, on the instructions of both without disclosing same, made an agreement with S. for the liquidation of the two debts, whereby S. undertook to pay the aggregate amount thereof by monthly instalments, the first instalments being allocated to the payment of the later of the two debts & the subsequent ones to the payment of the judgment debt; & S. further agreed to deliver promissory notes payable to bkpt. or order to cover the instalments allocated to the later debt. J. received the notes from S. & as agent of W., collected the amounts as they fell due on the notes & paid part thereof to W. & retained the balance. After payment J. returned the notes to S. to be cancelled:—Held: the forbearance of W. on the strength of the deposit of the notes to sue & his acceptance of the instalments constituted sufficient consideration for the deposit of the notes.—Re WETHERED, Ex p. SALAMAN, [1926] Ch. 167; 70 Sol. the party defrauded, even though the contract is not of a criminal nature.

The secretary of a charity fraudulently represented to P. that he or the charity was in a position to undertake that P. would receive a knighthood if P. made a large donation to the funds of the charity, & undertook that the title would be conferred if the donation was made. P., relying upon those representations & in the belief that the secretary was authorised by the charity to give the undertaking, made a large donation to the funds of the charity. As P. did not receive the knighthood he brought an action against the charity & its secretary to recover back the money he had paid as money had & received or as damages for deceit or breach of contract:—Held: a contract for the purchase of a title, however the money is to be expended, is an improper & illegal contract, as being against public policy, & as I that he was entering into an improper & illegal contract he could not recover back the money he had paid from the charity as money had & received, nor recover damages from the charity or its secretary, nor claim to repudiate the contract as being still executory & recover back the money paid.—PARKINSON v. st. Manufacture of goods with false description.—Pltf. co.'s salesman purported to enter into contracts for the sale to deft. of quantities of "All British" motor tyres & tubes. The goods would be manufactured in Melbourne, but each contract stipulated that the words "English Manufacture" should be branded upon them, & deft. intended to sell the goods, relying upon the brand to imply that they had been manufactured in England:—Held: at common law the proposed brand would be a fraud on the public, & the maxim ex turpi causa non oritur actio applied.—BARNET GLASS RUBBER CO., LTD. v. McDONALD, [1922] N. Z. L. R. 767; Gaz. L. R. 213.—N.Z.

sz. Erasure of revenue laws—False invoice—Claim by vendor—particeps criminis.—Where merchants residing in the United States sold goods to deft., & combined with him in furnishing false invoices to evade the revenue laws of this Province in respect of the amount of duties to be paid on the importation of such goods:—Held: pltf. could not recover their value from deft. in this country.—MULLEN v. KERR (1811), 6 O. S. 171.—CAN.

2084a. — Marine insurance—Not expressed in sea policy.]—No contract for sea insurance is valid unless it is expressed in a sea policy. The contract in this case was a contract for sea insurance &, not being expressed in a policy, was unenforceable.

2089a. Agreement for recovery of betting debt.]—Pltf. carried on business as the "Turf Register," which in a prospectus issued by him was called a "society"; but he was the sole proprietor of the business, though he described himself in the prospectus as secretary. In consideration of a subscription, & of a commission on the amounts recovered, he undertook to collect for the subscribers betting debts which, under the provisions of the Gaming Acts, were not recoverable. It was agreed between him & deft., in the terms of the prospectus, that in consideration of pltf. putting up all the necessary disbursements for the institution & conduct of legal or other proceedings, the net profits accruing directly or indirectly was to be equally divided between claimant & the society. Pltf. brought an action to recover the amount of debts alleged to have been wrongfully collected by deft. in breach of the agreement:—Held: the agreement was illegal & void, being contrary to public policy, & pltf. could not recover.—FORD v. RADFORD (1920), 36 T. L. R. 658; 64 Sol. Jo. 571.

2190a. — Inference of new promise after divorce.]—Pltf., who at the time was a married woman, accepted deft.'s proposal of marriage, provided that she obtained a divorce. Pltf. did obtain a divorce, & deft. then gave her an engagement ring & the date of the wedding was arranged. Ultimately deft. married another woman. In an action for breach of promise of marriage deft. pleaded that the contract was void in law as being contrary to public policy:—Held: although the original promise was void yet a new promise, after pltf. had become a free woman, could be inferred from the giving of the ring & the arrangement of the date of the wedding, & pltf. was entitled to recover.—SKIPPER v. 2086 iii. —.]—Deflt. employed pltf., a land agent & member of a municipal council, to sell his land to the Closer Settlement Board under Discharged Soldiers Settlement Acts. Pltf. submitted the land to the Board, but before the sale he had resigned his position on the council. Under the above Acts pltf., as a member of the council, could be called upon to advise the Board in connection with purchase of land within the municipality. In an action by pltf. to recover from deflt. commission on the sale:—Held: the private interest of pltf. under his agreement with deflt. had a tendency to interfere with the proper discharge by pltf. of his public duty, & the agreement was illegal & void as being against public policy.—WOOD v. It is common knowledge that for several years there has existed in Ontario an industry known as the "liquor export business" or "rum-running," consisting in the exportation of intoxicating liquors to the United States by smuggling & in contravention of the laws of that country. The ct. is bound to take judicial notice of that which is commonly & publicly known. Viewing the evidence before the ct. in the light of that knowledge it clearly indicated that plaintiffs were not only the lessees of a dock & warehouse that were being used by them for "rum-running" purposes, but were the employers or abettors of one of the gang of smugglers that infested the D. river frontier.] WALKERVILLE BREWING CO. v. They were to base their prices on the current prices for Middlesbrough pig iron, free on truck makers' works or f.o.b. makers' wharf, excluding Tees dues, & to pay cash on Mondays for the previous week's shipments. The agreement also contained the following clause: "It is understood that the above agreement is to hold good for the period of twelve months from Apr. 22, 1927, with six months' notice thereafter on either side to terminate, & that should any misunderstanding arise in connection with this agreement, an arbitrator should be appointed by the president for the time being of the London Chamber of Commerce." Disputes having arisen between the parties about the prices which plffs. ought to charge for the pig iron which they sold, defts. notified plffs. that they terminated the agreement as from Apr. 22, 1928. Plffs. acknowledged the notice & accepted it as a notice terminating the agreement at a date six months after Apr. 22, 1928, but defts. insisted that the agreement was terminated on Apr. 22, 1928. Plffs. brought an action for breaches of contract, (a) in terminating the contract before the expiry of the agreed term, & (b) because, as they alleged, defts. refused to supply them at "the current prices for the Middlesbrough pig iron":—Held: defts. were not entitled to terminate it on Apr. 22, 1928. It could only be terminated by a six months' notice, which could not be given before twelve months had elapsed, but could be given at any time after the expiration of the twelve months.—JACKS (WILLIAM) & CO. v. In 1927 the trustees of the will offered to redeem both annuities, & after some negotiations were informed by V.'s solrs. that they would advise her to accept £6,000 for redemption, the annuities to be paid in full up to the date of redemption. The trustees sent the solrs. a draft release for their approval. — Absolute contract.—By a contract dated Aug. 16, 1922, the sellers sold to the purchasers about one thousand boxes of Smyrna sultanas at 60s. a cwt. c.i.f. London, to be shipped from Smyrna by steamer to London during Sept. 1922. Smyrna at the date of the contract was in the occupation of the Greeks. On Sept. 9, 1922, it was taken by Turkish forces & shipment became impossible, with the result that the sellers did not ship any of the goods. The buyers claimed damages, & the dispute went before arbitrators, who stated a case for the opinion of the Ct. under Arbn. Act, 1889 (c. 49), s. 7. The sellers said that they were excused from performance on the grounds (1) that the contract became illegal when the port of shipment came under Turkish control, as a state of war at that time existed between England & Turkey; & (2) that a state of circumstances had arisen which made the contract impossible of performance & that differed totally from the conditions with reference to which the contract was made:—Held: mere impossibility of performance did not discharge a party where performance was not naturally impossible, unless such a state of affairs had arisen as displaced the fundamental basis of the contract; in the absence of any strike, war or force majeure clause, the buyers were entitled to damages for failure of the sellers to deliver.—*SARGANT (W. The ship was requisitioned by the Govt. before Mar. 1, 1917, & was not released until Feb. 1919. The exceptions clause excepted "restraint of princes, rulers & people." The ship arrived at Batoum, & notice of readiness to load was given, the lay days began to run. Owing, however, to a dispute between the Russian & Italian Govts. the ship was ordered by the port authorities to leave Batoum & also Russian waters, & accordingly the ship went to Constantinople. Subsequently permission was obtained to load the ship at Batoum, & she returned after being absent from the port a little over a fortnight. —Pltfs., a London bank, on telegraphic instructions from a bank in Warsaw, which was acting for a Polish co., paid to defts. £2,000 on account of a sum of over £4,000 owed by the Polish co. to defts. The Warsaw bank then wrote a letter of confirmation, but pltfs. mistook the letter for a direction to pay defts. a further sum of £2,000 & did so. Afterwards the Polish co., believing the sum paid off to be £2,000, told the Warsaw bank to arrange for the payment of another £1,000, but the instructions accordingly sent by the Warsaw bank to pltfs. were lost in transmission & were never received. On discovering the facts pltfs. were willing to credit defts. with the above-mentioned £1,000 & brought an action to recover £1,000, the balance of the £2,000, as money paid under a mistake of fact:—Held: (1) there was no such mistake of fact as entitled pltfs. to maintain that the amount claimed was money paid to their use, & the action failed; (2) pltfs. had been negligent as between themselves & defts.—*BARCLAY & CO., LTD. v. - 4358a. Payment of rates on tithe rentcharge by occupier—Demand after Tithe Act, 1891 (c. 8).

—At the date of the passing of the above Act rates upon a tithe rentcharge were due & in arrears, owing to the omission of the overseers to demand payment thereof from the occupiers of the land out of which the tithe rentcharge issued. The tithe rentcharge for the period in respect of which the rates in arrear were due had been paid to the titheowner in full. After the passing of the Act, the overseers, purporting to act under Tithe Act of 1837 (c. 69), s. 8, demanded payment of the arrears of rates from the occupiers of the land, who paid them, & were allowed the amount thereof by their landlord, the owner of the land, out of the half-year's rent next becoming due. Subsequently thereto a half-year's tithe rentcharge became payable by the landowner. The landowner claimed to deduct therefrom the amount which he had allowed to the occupiers out of their rent in respect of the arrears of rates paid by them:—Held: having regard to the Act of 1891, s. 6, the payment of the arrears of rates by the occupiers was a voluntary payment, & they were not entitled to deduct the amount so paid from their rent; consequently the landowner was not entitled to deduct the amount which he had allowed to the occupiers from the tithe rentcharge due by him.—RE TITHE ACT, 1891, *ROBERTS v. - 4534a. ———.—By certain military regulations officers in the Royal Air Force were on demobilisation entitled to a gratuity varying in amount according to circumstances. If their names were on a certain list, called the Emergency List, they were only entitled to a gratuity at a lower rate than if they were not on that list. Deft. was a demobilised officer of the Royal Air Force. Pltfs., who acted as Govt.'s agents for the payment (inter alia) of gratuities to demobilised officers of that force, in ignorance of the fact that deft. was on the Emergency List, but also in forgetfulness of the regulation which provided that the gratuities of officers on the Emergency List should be paid at the lower rate, & not appreciating the materiality of an officer being on that list, paid deft. his gratuity at the higher rate to which he would have been entitled if he had not been on that list. More than a year afterwards, & before notice of the mistake, deft. spent the money. In an action to recover back the excess payment as money paid under a mistake of fact;—Held: pltfs. could not recover on the grounds that pltfs.' mistake was not a mistake of fact causing the payment; & that as deft. had been led by pltfs.' conduct to believe that he might treat the money as his own, & in that belief had altered his position by spending it, pltfs. were estopped from alleging that it was paid under a mistake.—Holt v. This was in accordance with an established practice, by which the councillors superintended the laying out of moneys in their respective divisions. Deft. granted several orders on the treasurer to different persons as for "work done," which were paid, & it appeared that such work, though contracted for, had not been performed. There was no evidence, however, of any fraud or collusion on deft.'s part, or of any gain to himself, except the usual charge to the corp'n. of the commission on such moneys as were 4590a. ——— To bank named by principal—Money returned by bank to agent.]—Plffs. in London sold to a New York co. a quantity of Belgian francs to be delivered to defts. as the purchasers' agents in Brussels on Dec. 31, at a price to be paid in dollars on the same day in New York, & the purchasers instructed defts. to pay the francs when received to the C. Bank. On Dec. 30 bkpey. proceedings were commenced against the purchasers in New York & a receiver was appointed, & on the same day the purchasers cabled to plffs. not to pay the francs to defts., as they, the purchasers, were unable to complete their contract. Before that cable arrived plffs. had already paid the francs to defts., & defts. had paid them to the C. Bank. Plffs. then requested the C. Bank to return them, & the C. Bank returned them to defts., with an explanation that they did so for the purpose of cancelling defts.' payment to them. In these circumstances defts. claimed that the money having been returned to them, they were entitled to hold it on behalf of their principals, & refused to pay it over to plffs., who brought an action to recover the francs as being money had & received by defts. to their use:—Held: (1) as at the time plffs. paid the francs to defts. the purchasers had already repudiated their contract, although plffs. did not know that fact & consequently had not accepted the repudiation, plffs. were under no legal obligation to pay, & having paid under a mistaken belief of legal liability, they would have been entitled to recover the money back if they had discovered their mistake before defts. had paid it to the C. Bank; (2) the effect of the money being returned by the C. Bank was to restore plffs. to the same position as that which they occupied before defts. paid it away, & that position was unaffected by the fact that before redemand of the money by plffs. the trustee in bkpey. of the purchasers had directed defts. not to part with it, & defts. in compliance with that direction had credited the purchasers with it in their books; (3) defts. were bound to repay it to plffs.—*BRITISH AMERICAN CONTINENTAL BANK v. Part X.—Personal Contracts.

4907. Add. Annotation:—Refd. Public Trustee v. Elder, [1926] Ch. 776.
- 4908a. ———.]—The element of personal confidence which renders a contract unassignable is not confined to cases where the purchaser relies on the personal skill of the vendor or manufacturer, or where the manufacturer relies on the personal idiosyncrasies of the buyer with regard to his requirements or with regard to his performance to the covenants other than his obligation to pay. Where the ability of the buyer to pay is the subject-matter of personal confidence, the contract is just as much taken out of assignability as where the manufacturing skill of the seller is the subject-matter of the buyer's personal confidence.
- Defts. entered into a contract with H. to supply him with 10,000 tons of coal, the delivery of which was to be extended over two years. H. had been carrying on the business of a coal merchant for some years, the business consisting of carting coals from defts.' depots round the streets of a certain district & there selling it to the working classes by weight in relatively small quantities, it being a regular practice to give short credit.
- H. assigned the contract to pltf., who up to the time of the assignment had no experience of the coal trade:—Held: there was that degree of difference between H.'s & pltf.'s knowledge of the business, which, having regard to the nature of the business, constituted an element of personal confidence in the matter personal to H. which made the contract unassignable.—COOPER v. Deft. in 1922 put gates across the tramway, removed part of the tramline, & destroyed part of a trestle bridge:—Held: the grant or contract was not a personal one, & pltf. had an equitable interest by assignment from S. in the easement.—MACDONALD v. 5041a. —.—.]—Defts., manufacturers, sold goods to plffs., retailers, upon condition that plffs. should not resell the goods to the public at less than a specified price. After business had been carried on upon this condition for three years defts., without giving plffs. notice of their intention to change their method of business, began to sell goods direct to the public without the intervention of middlemen, at a price very much lower than that which plffs. were obliged to charge under their contract with defts., & as a result plffs. were left with goods which they had bought from defts. & had in stock, & could not dispose of the goods except at a loss. They claimed damages on the ground that a term must be implied in the contract that defts. would not themselves sell the goods to the public at a price below that which plffs. were bound by the contract to charge, or at least that before beginning to sell goods to the public they would give plffs. sufficient notice to enable them to dispose of their stock of goods at a profit:—Held: no such term as plffs. required could be implied in the contract.—*LIVOCK v. There was no special custom of descent in the manor of B. affecting these copyholds:—Held: the use of the expression “heir-at-law” did not exclude the operation of the rule in Shelley's Case, which accordingly applied, & G. was entitled in customary fee simple for an estate to him & his heirs according to the custom of the manor.—*Re HACK, BEADMAN v. 2032b. Equitable joint tenancy in copyholds—Subject to rentcharge—Vesting of legal estate.—On July 5, 1802, Bryan Abbs & another trustee who predeceased him were admitted to certain copyhold plots A., B. & C. upon trust out of the rents & profits to raise & pay an annual rent of £7 10s. to Harrison & his heirs & subject thereto in trust for Wilson & his heirs. Many years after Bryan Abbs' death his customary heir H. C. Abbs, since deceased, was admitted to A. & C., but no one was admitted to B. ; so that on Dec. 31, 1925, the best right to admittance was in the customary heirs of H. C. Abbs & Bryan Abbs. On the same date the equitable title to the land stood vested in Thompson & Collins as joint tenants in fee, subject to the equitable rentcharge then vested in Aylmer, subject to proof of his title.

On Jan. 1, 1926, the Law of Property Acts

came into operation & the copyhold plots were enfranchised. The ct. being asked to determine in whom the legal estates in the land & the rentcharge vested :—Held : (1) under para. 8 (b), vested in the first instance in the personal representative of H. C. Abbs & the customary heir of Bryan Abbs as trustees, Bryan Abbs having no known personal representative ; (2) either under the 1922 Act, Sched. XII., para. 8 (d), or under the 1925 Act, Sched. I., Part II., paras. 4, 6 (d), the rentcharge vested as a legal rentcharge in Aylmer or other the persons entitled thereto ; (3) on the rentcharge becoming a legal rentcharge the trustees became bare trustees with no longer any active duties to perform ; (4) under the 1925 Act, Sched. I., Part II., paras. 3, 6 (d), the initial vesting in the trustees was divested, & the legal estate subject to the legal rentcharge vested in Thompson & Collins as joint tenants in fee simple ; (5) sect. 36 of the 1925 Act did not come into operation until after the vesting provisions had done their work. It then merely attached a trust for sale to the joint legal estate in Thompson & Collins. It did not previously attach a trust for sale to the initial estate in the trustees so as to put the divesting provisions of the 1925 Act, Sched. I., Part II., out of operation. Still less did it bring in the undivided share provisions of the 1925 Act, Sched. I., Part IV. —*Re KING'S THEATRE, SUNDERLAND, DENMAN PICTURE HOUSES v. - 16a. Dramatic work—No “first publication” within 1911 Act, s. 1 (3)—Owner entitled to substituted copyright under 1911 Act, sched. 1.]—Under Dramatic Copyright Act, 1833 (c. 15), a foreign author dwelling outside British territory was entitled to secure dramatic copyright within the British Empire of the first performance of his play given in this country. By an agreement in writing dated June 30, 1898, G., the author & sole proprietor of the right to perform a certain play, granted to pltf. the sole & exclusive right to perform, or have performed, the play in Great Britain & Ireland. On Sept. 22, 1898, G.’s agent wrote to pltf. stating that the play had been first performed in Great Britain on a certain date & at a certain place:—Held: a copy of the letter of Sept. 22, 1898, the original having been lost, was admissible as evidence in a copyright action between pltf. & third parties who claimed a right to produce cinematograph films of the play under an agreement for value with G., dated Sept. 6, 1919, to prove that the first performance of the play took place in this country as stated in the letter since, (1) being written by G.’s agent, it constituted an admission by G., a person who, although not named on the record, had a substantial interest in the result, & (2) it constituted an admission by defts.’ predecessors in title.
- (3) An entry in the register of first performances of dramatic productions at Stationers’ Hall is admissible in evidence as a public register. If such an entry is incorrect, the party producing a certified copy of it may be precluded from relying on it as prima facie proof of a right to produce or reproduce the play to which it relates, but it can be regarded by the ct. as corroboration of other evidence of title.

(4) 1911 Act, s. 1 (1) (a) & s. 1 (3), which provide that copyright shall subsist in every dramatic work if it has been first published in His Majesty’s dominions, but that the performance in public shall not be deemed to be publication, prescribe conditions for the future, but do not inflict them on past events so as to destroy existing rights.

(5) Where the owner of dramatic copyright possessed [by assignment] the sole right to perform, or permit the performance of, a certain play before 1911 Act came into operation he acquired, by sect. 2 (1) (b), coupled with sects. 24 & 35 of the Act, & sched. 1 to the Act, the right to the cinematograph & film rights of that play also.

An American corpn. made a film & sent a negative & two positives of it to an English co., who made further copies of the film & handed them to another English co., who let them to a British exhibitor. The American corpn. & the two British cos. were inter-working organisations linked together by complex agreements, & they all three shared in part of the receipts from the exhibition of the film by the exhibitor. The exhibitor in exhibiting the film, infringed pltf.’s copyright:—Held: (6) the American corpn. & the two British cos. had actively directed, counselled or aided the infringement by the exhibitor, & had infringed pltf.’s rights within 1911 Act, s. 2 (1), the operative effect of which sub-sect. is extended & not limited by sect. 2 (2) & (3).

(7) Where an infringement of copyright is proved under 1911 Act, s. 2 (1), the question of knowledge of infringement by the infringer does not arise except possibly with reference to the exemption from penalties for infringement provided by sect. 8 of the Act.—*FALCON v. - 43b. — Single sentence.—Pltf. had, since 1925, dealt with the treatment of the human face, & had advertised extensively in connection with that treatment. He claimed to have the copyright in a slogan in connection with those advertisements. The phrase was, "Beauty is a social necessity, not a luxury." Sometimes there were variations in the words used. Sometimes the words "youthfulness," or "good looks," or "youthful appearance" were substituted for "beauty." In May 1926 deft. inserted an advertisement containing the phrase "A youthful appearance is a social necessity." Some years before 1925 an advertiser had used a similar phrase, "Beauty is a modern necessity":—Held: (1) the only originality, if any, in pltf.'s phrase consisted in the substitution of the word "social" for the word "modern," & pltf.'s phrase was not an original composition; (2) although copyright might subsist in an advertisement, to quote a piece of a sentence from a literary work was too small a matter to afford ground for an action for infringement of copyright; (3) the doctrine de minimis non lex curat applied, & the matter in which copyright was claimed was too small for the ct. to attach any importance to it.—SINANIDE v. - 77a. — For type—Protected.—Pltf. co., which carried on the business of supplying cutter-crush machines & type & other materials used therewith, issued a catalogue consisting for the most part of a number of words which illustrated the products of the several sizes & shapes of type supplied by the co. & customers ordered a particular class of type by referring to such words. Nearly all the words were selected by the managing director of the co. In 1922 defts., who were carrying on a similar business, circulated price lists which were practically copies of the price lists of pltf. co., the words in pltf. co.'s catalogue & price lists to indicate the style of type being copied in defts.' price lists without alteration. Pltf. co. commenced proceedings for an injunction to restrain infringement of copyright in their catalogue & passing off of goods which were not their goods as being their goods. On the question of copyright defts. contended (inter alia) that pltf.'s catalogue was a design or collection of designs capable of registration under Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), & 1919 (c. 80), & not the subject of protection under 1911 Act:—Held: on the question of copyright the contentions put forward by defts. failed, & an injunction restraining infringement of the copyright of pltf.'s in their catalogue was granted.—MASSON SEELEY & Co., LTD. v. EMBOSOTYPE MANUFACTURING Co. (1924), 41 R. P. C. 160.

- 85a. Programmes.—Pltf's. were a limited co. formed to acquire the Postmaster-General's licence for the establishment & working of broadcasting stations, & to carry on any other business ancillary, incidental, or conducive thereto. Under the terms of their licence & a supplementary agreement pltf's. were required to transmit efficiently every day a programme of broadcast matter to the reasonable satisfaction of the Postmaster-General. They were not allowed to alter their memorandum as to objects without his written consent. He might revoke their licence if they failed to transmit satisfactory programmes, & within one month from their ceasing to hold the licence they were bound to pass a special resolution for voluntary winding up. Their profits from all sources beyond a 7½ per cent. cumulative dividend on their paid-up capital belonged to the Postmaster-General. Nine months after the licence, with the approval of the Postmaster-General pltf's. began publishing the Radio Times every Friday, including therein the advance daily programmes for the ensuing week Sunday to Saturday. These programmes gave the day & hour of each per-

54 i. Immoral works.—There is nothing in the Copyright Act to deny an author a copyright on the grounds that his work is indecent, obscene or immoral. Where his work is of such a character that the law will not permit him to publish it, the cts. will deny him damages, since if he cannot sell it he cannot prove damages. But apart from damages, there is no reason why the pirating of an author's original work should not be restrained by injunction, provided it is honest work, & not a fraud on the public.—PASICK-NIAK v. DOJACEK, [1928] 2 D. L. R.

formance, the artist's name, appropriate headings for items or groups of items, & translations of unfamiliar foreign titles of songs or music. The preparation, arrangement, & editing of the actual programmes involved considerable time, skill, labour & expense, although the preliminary work of fixing the days & hours, engaging the artists, & choosing the items had all been done some time beforehand. Defts. having selected & copied numerous items from a set of advance programmes so published, pl'tis. sued for infringement of copyright:—Held: (1) whether there was or was not copyright in an individual programme, there was undoubtedly copyright in the compilation of the seven advance programmes; (2) although the programmes were subject to the approval or veto of the Postmaster-General, who had power to revoke the licence if they included improper matter, they were not a work "prepared or published by or under" his "direction or control" within 1911 Act, s. 18, & so long as pl'tis. were allowed to trade & publish them, the copyright belonged to pl'tis. & not to the Crown. (3) Seem: there may be copyright in an individual programme.—BRITISH BROADCASTING CO. v. WIRELESS LEAGUE GAZETTE PUBLISHING CO., [1926] Ch. 433; 95 L. J. Ch. 272; 135 L. T. 93; 42 T. L. - 118a. Adaptation of old play—Original musical composition.—1911 Act has extended the protection of copyright, & there is musical copyright in an arrangement of previous music which amounts to a new work.

Pl'tf. composed music for an opera which was an adaptation of an old play. Defts. prepared an orchestral score from the same source, records of which they offered to the trade. Pl'tf. complained that defts. were passing off these records as records of pl'tf.'s music:—Held: defts. had borrowed from pl'tf.'s work in a way which was more than mere coincidence, & had infringed pl'tf.'s copyright.—*AUSTIN v. consideration—Design not registered under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29).—Pltfs. claimed to be the assignees from the author of two sketches for cut-out advertisement show cards representing a pierrot & pierrette respectively with large faces & diminutive bodies. These sketches were shown by the author to defts. with defts.' name upon them with the view of being used by them for advertisement purposes. At the suggestion of defts. the colour of the costumes of the figures was changed from mauve to green & yellow; the colour of the lettering of defts.' name was also changed from red to green & yellow. Defts. ordered a number of the sketches so altered at a price which gave the author a very considerable profit. Subsequently defts. obtained a number of the sketches from sources other than pltfs.' Neither pltfs. nor the author had registered the sketches as designs under the above Act. In an action by pltfs. for infringement of copyright :—Held : (1) under 1911 Act, s. 5 (1) (a), defts. were the first owners of the copyright in the original sketches, as the sketches were ordered by, & were made for, them for valuable consideration & were "engravings" within that sub-sect.; (2) the sketches were designs which were capable of being registered under Patents & Designs Act, 1907, & as they were used or intended to be used as models or patterns to be multiplied by an industrial process, 1911 Act, by reason of sect. 22, did not apply to them, & as the sketches had not been registered as designs under the Act of 1907 pltfs. could not succeed.—*CON PLANCK, LTD. v. By this agreement, made between the composer (the applt.) & the authors of the opera (thereinafter called “the licensors”) of the one part & the proprietor of the theatre (thereinafter called “the licensee”) of the other part, after reciting that the licensors had delivered the play to the licensee, with the score of the music, with a view to its production in London & elsewhere “on the terms hereinafter mentioned,” the licensors granted the licensee the sole & exclusive right of representing the play in the U.K., America, & the British Colonies & Dominions. The agreement further provided that the copyright in the music of the play should remain the property of applt.; that on the failure of the licensee to produce the play in London within a certain time all rights of representation as aforesaid should revert to & become again the absolute property of the licensors; that the licensee should pay to the licensors as royalties certain percentages of the gross profits; that the licensee should keep proper books showing the gross receipts of the theatres at which the play should be represented, & that the licensors should be entitled to inspect the books, so as to enable them to verify the amount of the percentage payable to them. Resps., in pursuance of a permission granted to them by a theatrical co., to whom on the death of the licensee the benefit of the agreement had been assigned by his exors., gave a broadcast performance of the opera at their studio in London. In an by applt. against resps. for infringement of copyright:—Held: upon the construction of the agreement, (1) it operated as an absolute assignment of the performing rights of the opera within the prescribed area & was not a mere licence, & (2) it was not limited to representations on the stage of a theatre, & the action failed.—MESSAGER v. By an agreement dated June 10, 1903, pltf. & her husband, as authors, granted to defts., as theatrical managers, the right of production of the play during a then forthcoming tour, & at a first-class West End London theatre, for two years; & the agreement further provided that if the production took place within that period then “the entire rights for the United Kingdom, the United States of America, & the Dominion of Canada in the play became theirs inalienable, & they shall present it when & where they will within the countries aforesaid,” paying to the authors 5 per cent. on the gross weekly takings. Defts. fulfilled the specified condition. In an action by pltf. claiming a declaration that she had the sole right to perform the work by means of cinematograph films:—Held: the entire performing rights in the play became vested in defts. by virtue of the agreement, & when 1911 Act came into operation the right so vested included the right to the cinematograph reproduction of the play; & therefore pltf.’s action failed.—BARSTOW v. Defts. published & sold a book entitled “Hazlitt’s Selected Essays, Edition Hollingworth” containing twenty of such essays, including the thirteen selected by G. PART XIII. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 4.

482 1. By performance—Permitting place of entertainment to be used.]—Appl. corpn. let its town hall to W. for a series of four vocal concerts. Resp. informed applt. that a song in which resp. had the copyright would be sung without its authority in the town hall at concerts given by W. The song was sung at two concerts. Applt. did nothing beyond acknowledging the receipt of the information:—Held: no inference should be drawn that applt. “permitted” the song to be sung, & therefore there was no infringement of copyright within Copyright Act, 1911 (c. 46) s. 2 (3).—CORPORATION OF CITY OF ADELAIDE v. AUSTRALASIAN PERFORMING RIGHT ASSOCN., LTD. (1928), 40 C. L. R. 481; [1928] Argus L. R. 127.—AUS.

made certain gramophone records in New South Wales of a song in which pltf.’s copyright existed, & which, apart from Copyright Act, 1912, s. 19, would have been an infringement of pltf.’s copyright. Gramophone records of the song in which pltf.’s copyright existed had been made in England, & also in America with the consent of the owner of the copyright before the alleged infringement in New South Wales:—Held: proof of the consent given by pltf. resp. to the manufacture of contrivances in England was sufficient to satisfy the condition imposed by British Copyright Act, 1911, s. 19 (2) (a); Federal Copyright Act, 1912, brings into force in Australia British Copyright Act, 1911, & consequently, the making of contrivances, with the consent of the owners of the copyright, in any part of the area to which the Act applies, releases the work throughout the area of the

so. By broadcasting.]—Defts., who carried on, for reward, the business of broadcasters, included in their programmes, caused to be sung by vocalists in their studio & broadcast, certain musical works, of the copyright in which pltf. was the owner:—Held: defts. had infringed pltf.’s copyright.—CHAPPELL & CO., LTD. v. 483a. — In public—What amounts to.]—The question whether the performance of a musical work was a performance in public, so as to constitute an infringement of copyright, is a question of fact, & in determining that question, the quantum of damage likely to accrue & the number & class of persons having a right to be present at the performance are factors to be noted.—HARMS INCORPORATED & CHAPPELL & CO. v. 489a. By authorising performance—Director of theatrical syndicate with power to prevent performance.]—Pltfs. were the proprietors of the right of performing in public certain musical pieces, & deft. syndicate were producers of plays at a theatre, & the second deft. was their managing director, & had power to prevent the orchestra from playing any particular piece of music. The orchestra, which was paid by the syndicate, played the pieces in question. In an action for infringement:—Held: since on the facts the second deft. had not authorised or permitted the performance within 1911 Act, s. 1 (2), pltf. were not entitled under sect. 2 (1) of the Act to an injunction or damages against him.—PERFORMING RIGHT SOCIETY v. CIRYL THEATRICAL SYNDICATE, [1924] 1 K. B. 1; 92 L. J. K. B. 811; 129 L. T. 653; 39 T. L. R. 460; 68 Sol. Jo. 83, C. A.

489b. — Effect of 1911 Act, s. 1 (2).—The word “authorise” in the above sub-sect. is superfluous, & there is nothing in the sub-sect. which cuts down the liability under sect. 2 (1) of the Act, in respect of an infringement of copyright.

Defts., who were the occupiers of a dancing hall, engaged on the terms of a written agreement a band to provide music therein. The agreement provided that the band should not, in the music played, infringe any copyright, & should be liable for damages & costs caused by any infringement. There was also a notice posted in the hall that “only such music as may be played without fee or licence is allowed to be played in this hall.” On one occasion the band played certain music, the copyright of which belonged to pltf., without pltf.’ licence; but defts. did not know, & had no reasonable ground for suspecting, that this infringement would take place. In an action by pltf. for damages & an injunction:—Held: on its true construction, the agreement between defts. & the band constituted the latter the servant of defts., & not independent contractors; the band on the occasion in question were acting in the course of their employment; defts. were liable under 1911 Act, s. 2, for the infringement of copyright; & pltf. were entitled to damages & an injunction.—PERFORMING RIGHT SOCIETY, LTD. v. 531 ii. — Of performing rights.—An assoc. was the registered owner of the performing rights of two pieces of music, & pltf. in a suit to restrain

def. from permitting the use of his hall for infringing copyrights. Another pltf. was the assignor of those rights, but there was no evidence that he was the legal owner of the remaining part of the copyright:—Held: the assoc., as the legal owner of the performing rights, could maintain the suit.—AUSTRALIAN PERFORMING RIGHT ASSOC. & J. LEIST, INCORPORATED v. TURNER & SON (1927), 27 S. R. N. S. W. 344; 44 N. S. W. W. N. 76.—AUS.

drawings, sold the copyright to defts. Defts. afterwards published & sold two drawings, which were made by alterations of pltf.'s original drawings, but which had titles different from the titles of pltf.'s drawings. Defts. did not in any way expressly represent that the drawings made by such alterations were pltf.'s. Pltf. brought against defts. a passing-off action in which she alleged that her work had a distinctive character & could be recognised without bearing her name, & she claimed an injunction & penalties under sect. 7 of the above Act:—Held: to satisfy the sect. there must be a selling or publishing in conditions under which, to the knowledge of the seller or publisher, there was made either expressly or by necessary implication a representation that the author was the author of the work in the form in which it was sold or published, & since, although there was in many of pltf.'s productions a measure of distinctiveness, the mere seeing of defts.' productions did not necessarily suggest the inference that they were the unaltered work of pltf., the action failed.—PRESTON v. - 340a. ————]—Trade Union Act, 1871 (c. 31), s. 14, & sched. 1 (6), gives every member of a trade union a right to inspect the books of the union, "under proper conditions." That right entitles a member to inspect them by a skilled accountant, but the accountant should not be objectionable to the union on personal grounds, & should undertake not to disclose the information obtained by him except to his client. The fact that the trade union officials believe that the member desiring to inspect the books by an accountant is acting malâ fide, & for purposes hostile to the union, does not give them an implied discretion to refuse the inspection. The onus of establishing that the right of inspection should not be exercised lies on the trade union.—DODD v. AMALGAMATED MARINE WORKERS' UNION, [1924] 1 Ch. 116; 93 L. J. Ch. 100; 129 L. A bye-law passed by the police comrs. of a city in 1915, admittedly valid when passed, provided that it should not be lawful for any person to use any vehicle in the “jitney bus service” for gain without being licensed so to do. S. had a “jitney” licence, but it expired on June 30, 1928. He continued to operate without a licence, & was convicted of a breach of the bye-law. The comrs. had ceased to issue jitney licences, because of an Ontario Statute passed in 1927, validating an agreement between the city corp., & a street railway co., which provided that the corp. should not issue any new jitney licences, & that existing licences should not continue in force after June 30, 1928.—Held: the validity of the bye-law was not destroyed.—Re SHAWRA, [1929] 1 D. 935a. — — —.—Pltfs. were by statute entrusted with the control & management of part of the navigations of the Rivers Ouse Foss, in Yorkshire, with power to charge such tolls, within limits, as the corp. deemed necessary to carry on the two navigations in which the public had an interest. In 1888 the corp. entered into two agreements with the firm of H. L. & Sons. By the Ouse agreement the corp. covenanted to allow the firm, their successors & assigns, the right to carry cargoes on the Ouse in consideration of the annual payment of £600 in place of the authorised dues & charges, with a proviso that there should each year be refunded to the firm, their successors & assigns, the difference between the £600 & the amount ordinarily charged on the traffic actually carried. By the Foss agreement the firm covenanted to pay the corp. £200 per annum for twenty years as a composition for the ordinary tolls, & the corp. covenanted to allow the firm, their successors & assigns, the free use of the Foss navigation, on payment of £200 per annum in lieu of tolls, for such further term or terms as the firm, their successors or assigns, might from time to time desire. Defts. were the successors of H. L. & Sons:—Held: the agreements were ultra vires, because during their currency, which depended on the wishes of defts., the corp., no matter what emergency might arise, had disabled itself from exercising its statutory powers to increase the tolls so far as might be necessary; & being ultra vires at the date of their execution, the agreements did not become intra vires by reason of estoppel, lapse of time, ratification, acquiescence or delay.—*YORK CORPN. v. 986a. Expenses of running omnibuses—Power to run omnibuses on authorised routes.—Omnibuses run to connect up authorised routes.—The corp., of L., a municipal corp., had by virtue of their special Act power to maintain & run a service of omnibuses within the city or outside the city boundaries. In the latter case, their special powers only extended to the running of omnibuses along the route of any tramways which the corp. should be authorised to construct. There were in fact two such authorised tramway routes. The expenditure in connection with the running of these authorised tramways could, under the corp.'s statutory powers, be borne out of the city fund. The corp. began an omnibus service in pursuance of their statutory powers, but it appeared that for a very small portion of the omnibus route, namely, for a distance of forty yards, the service of omnibuses ran outside the boundaries of the city, joining up with the tramway routes slightly further on, & that the expenses in connection therewith were borne by the city fund. An action was commenced by a ratepayer for a declaration (inter alia) that the running of these omnibuses over this particular stretch, & payment of the expenses in connection therewith out of the city fund, was ultra vires the statutory powers of the corp., & ought to be prohibited. The question at issue was whether, so far as the forty yards stretch was concerned, the corp. were entitled to spend moneys out of the city fund in connecting an authorised route of omnibuses outside the city with a route of omnibuses within the city boundaries. Under their statutory powers the corp.'s service of omnibuses along the route of a tramway outside the city which they were authorised to construct was a part of their tramways undertaking, & they were also authorised to apply the city fund in discharging the expenses in connection with the tramways undertaking:—

Held: the expense of running omnibuses over the forty yards so as to connect the two routes was an expense fairly incidental to the tramways undertaking, & that it was not ultra vires the corp.'s statutory powers to expend any part of the city fund in working & running the omnibuses over the forty yards which connected the two services, & which were branches of the corp.'s tramways undertaking.—A.-G. v. LEEDS CORPN., [1929] 2 Ch. 291; 141 L. T. 658; 93 J. P. 153; 27 L. G. R. 351.

991a. Purchase of land for street widening & pleasure garden—Subsequent use of pleasure garden for street widening.—A local authority bought land in 1896 for the purposes of: (a) street widening; (b) making new streets; (c) providing public walks & pleasure gardens. The land was conveyed to the local authority for the purposes authorised by the Public Health Acts. A plan & specifications were submitted to the Local Government Board, & subsequently the scheme was carried out in accordance with the plan & specifications. The pleasure gardens were surrounded by railings, & were not dedicated or open to the public. In 1927 the local authority resolved to utilise one of the pleasure grounds for the purpose of street widening & providing a parking place for motor cars. Objections were raised by some of the occupiers of adjoining premises, & an action was brought to restrain the local authority from carrying out their resolution:—Held: as one of the purposes for which the land was acquired was street widening, the local authority was not acting ultra vires in using part of the pleasure gardens for that purpose.—A.-G. v. - 1235a. ——By a local Act a canal was vested in appts., who were required by the Act to keep the navigation & locks, & all works to be thereafter executed for the improvement thereof, in an efficient state for the traffic thereon. Appls. raised the coping on both sides of one of their locks & the banks behind it to prevent the lock from being flooded. Resps., adjacent landowners, objected that the effect of the works was to pen back the water in the part of the canal above the lock & to occasion the flooding of their lands, & appls. removed the coping without prejudice to their rights, but they did not reduce the height of the banks:—Held: there being no evidence of negligence, appls., in constructing works in the exercise of their statutory powers for the protection of their navigation, were not liable for the flooding of resps.' lands.—*LAGAN NAVIGATION CO. v. In 1910, the house was let to deft. at a rent of £75 per annum for three years. At all material times the ratable value was £68. After certain intermediate tenancies at rents less than two-thirds of the ratable value, deft. in Dec. 1920, took from pltf. a new lease : “To hold the said premises with the appurtenances unto the tenant from Mar. 25, 1920, for the term of seven years . . . at the yearly rent of £120.” The reason for the increased rent was a trade revival which had caused a great improvement in the licensed trade of the house. The conditions of the new lease as to repairs were more onerous for the tenant than those of the old. In an action by the landlords for rent, the tenant contended that the repairing clause amounted to a prohibited increase :—Held : the question as to repairs could only be decided by the county ct., & the High Ct. had no jurisdiction on this point.—*BRAKSPEAR (W. C. 1.139a. ——— Issue of summons before leave obtained—Irregularity.—On Jan. 30, 1924, a tenant of a dwelling-house within the Rent Restrictions Acts lodged two plaints in the West London county ct., the one under sect. 12 (3) of the Act of 1920 for apportionment of rent, & the other under sect. 14 (1) of the same Act for certain sums paid by him in respect of rent which, as he alleged, was irrecoverable by his landlord. These sums were, by sect. 8 (2) of the Act of 1923, recoverable on or before Jan. 31, 1924, but not afterwards. The claim for apportionment could regularly be brought in the West London ct., but the claim for repayment could not be brought in that ct. without the leave of the judge or registrar on an application supported by an affidavit. No affidavit was sworn until Feb. 5, 1924. Notwithstanding this the plaint was entered, a plaint note under the seal of the ct. was given to pltf., & a summons was issued, all bearing the date Jan. 30, 1924. By Ord. 7, r. 2, a summons to appear to a plaint shall be dated of the day on which the plaint was entered, & the date thereof shall be the commencement of the action :—Held : (1) the irregular entry of the plaint & issue of the summons before the necessary leave had been obtained did not deprive the county ct. of jurisdiction to hear the action, but the irregularity could be waived by deft.; (2) as deft. had appeared to the summons & raised a defence in no way challenging the jurisdiction of the ct., he had waived the irregularity; the action must therefore be taken to have commenced on

Jan. 30, & plff. was entitled to recover.—PRINGLE v. HALES, [1925] 1 K. B. 573; 94 L. J. K. B. 458; 132 L. T. 785, C. A.

- 147a. ——— Claim for declaration as to future payments—Involving payment of sums exceeding prescribed limit.—Where an action was brought in the county ct. to recover a money claim under an agreement, & also for a declaration as to future payments under the agreement:—Held: the county ct. judge had no power to make a declaration which might involve the payment of sums of money by debt. in excess of the limit of £100 prescribed by 1888 Act, s. 56.—*SMITH v. - 198a. Duty of judge to make order—On proof of right to possession.—The words “may order” in 1888 Act, s. 138, are enabling words only, but where the legal right of a landlord to the possession of premises has been established it is the duty of the judge, notwithstanding the permissive form of the sect., to make an order for possession. In exercising the discretion given him as to the period for the coming into operation of the order, the judge must fix a period reasonably adjusted to the circumstances of the case, including the nature & term of the tenancy. The county ct. judge in two cases of weekly tenants whose tenancies had been validly terminated by notice to quit, refused to make any order in one case, & in the other, while making an order, postponed its operation for twelve months:—Held: this was not a judicial exercise of his discretion, in either case.—SHEFFIELD CORPN. v. LUXFORD, SAME v. MORRELL, [1929] 2 K. B. 180; 98 L. J. K. B. 512; 141 L. T. 265; 93 J. P. 235; 45 T. L. R. 491; 73 Sol. Jo. 367, D. C.

Upon a contract for the sale of real property at a price exceeding £500 the vendor brought an action in the county ct. against the purchaser, claiming a declaration that debt. had forfeited the deposit paid under the contract by debt. to stake-holders, who were not parties to the action, & that he was entitled to receive payment of the deposit from the stake-holders. No other claim appeared in the plaint or the summons or the particulars of claim:—Held: the county ct. had no jurisdiction to entertain the claim, (1) on the above ground, & (2) on the further ground that the claim was for partial specific performance of an agreement for the sale of property within 1888 Act, s. 67, where the purchase-money exceeded £500, the amount limited by that sect.—*DE VRIES v. - 373a. On jurisdiction of county court—Reduction of claim for damages—Alternative claim for injunction.]—Where an action, commenced in the High Ct., has been transferred to a county ct. under 1919 Act, s. 1, the effect of sect. 4 of that Act is to give the county ct. jurisdiction to deal with the matter equal to or the same as that of the High Ct.

- Pltf. & deft. entered into an agreement, which provided that in the event of any breach thereof by deft. he should pay to pltf. in respect of each such breach a sum of £150 by way of agreed & liquidated damages. Pltf. alleged that deft. had broken the agreement, & he brought an action in the High Ct. claiming the sum of £150 & an injunction. Pltf. afterwards applied, under 1919 Act, s. 1, to have the action remitted to a county ct., reducing the money claim to £90, & claiming an injunction in the alternative. The master made an order for remittal. Pltf. then delivered particulars of claim, asking for £90 damages or in the alternative an injunction. He admitted, however, that the real object of the action was to obtain an injunction. On the action coming on for trial the county ct. judge declined jurisdiction on the ground that in substance the action was for an injunction alone. On appeal to a Div. Ct., that ct. held that the county ct. judge had jurisdiction to entertain the action, & sent it back to him for trial:—Held: the decision of the Div. Ct. was correct.—*DAVEY v. Ord. 14, an order in respect of part of his claim whereby he may sign judgment for £20 or upwards either unconditionally or unless that sum is paid into ct. or to pltf.'s solr., & the remainder of pltf.'s claim is remitted to a county ct. with leave to defend, the judge of the county ct. has the same jurisdiction as a judge of the High Ct. over the costs of the whole proceedings, & he may order them to be taxed on the High Ct. or on the county ct. scale. But in deciding the scale on which they are to be taxed he must exercise his discretion judicially, & he is not entitled to deprive pltf. of the High Ct. costs of the High Ct. proceedings unless pltf. has been guilty of some misconduct.—*JENKINS & Co. v. - 497a. — Application under Administration of Justice Act, 1920 (c. 81), s. 3—Discretion of judge to order trial without jury.]—On May 10, 1923, pltf. commenced proceedings claiming from defts. damages for personal injuries caused by the alleged negligence of defts.' servants. Defts. filed a defence denying negligence & afterwards gave pltf. notice of an application to dispense with a jury.

The application for trial without a jury was made under the above sect. The county ct. judge, without giving any reasons for his decision, ordered the trial of the action without a jury, & pltf. appealed against that order & alleged that the learned judge had not properly exercised his discretion.—Held: the above sect. did not give the county ct. judge an absolute power to order the trial of an action without a jury; the sect. gave him a discretion which must be exercised judicially; in this case there were no proper materials on which the learned judge could exercise his discretion judicially; it would not be a proper exercise of the learned judge's judicial discretion to dispense with a jury merely because it was inconvenient; on the other hand it is not necessary for the judge to give his reasons for dispensing with a jury, but there must be some grounds for so exercising his discretion.—WINN v. LONDON COUNTY COUNCIL (1923), 130 L. T. 350; 88 J. P. 31; 40 T. L. R. 106; 63 Sol. Jo. 502, D. C.

Further, the fact that the lists are congested is not a ground on which the county ct. judge is entitled to suspend a litigant's right to trial by jury.—CALCRAFT v. LONDON

The execution creditor did not admit the claim & claimant deposited with the bailiff under 1888 Act, s. 156, the sum of £26 which was considerably less than the value of the goods claimed, but was more than sufficient to cover the judgment debt & costs of the execution. The money was paid into ct. by the bailiff, who remained in possession of the goods, & an interpleader summons was issued. Before the return day of the interpleader summons the execution creditor gave notice that he admitted the title of claimant to the goods, & the bailiff withdrew from possession. Upon the taxation of the costs the bailiff claimed possession fees up to the date when the execution creditor admitted claimant's title, upon the ground that under sect. 156 he was bound to remain in possession until the amount of the value of the goods was deposited with him :—Held : as the £26 was deposited with & taken by the bailiff under sect. 156 of the Act, he must be deemed to have taken it upon the assumption that it represented the amount of the value of the goods, & therefore he had no right to remain in possession or to possession fees after the date of the deposit.—*NEWSUM, SONS & Co., LTD. v. 783a. Order for payment of possession fees of high bailiff—Under Ord. 27, r. 1 (2).]—(1) A Div. Ct. has jurisdiction to hear an appeal from the decision of a county ct. judge who, under the above sub-rule has, on the application of the high bailiff, made an order against the execution creditors, who have directed the high bailiff to withdraw, for the payment of his fees.

On May 15, 1924, the high bailiff of a county ct. under a warrant of execution purported to levy upon the goods of judgment debtors at their premises, & put a man in possession. The sheriff was then in possession of the goods under process of an earlier date, but not to the knowledge of the high bailiff, as the county ct. judge found. The high bailiff on taking possession received from judgment debtors a document which stated that in consideration of his withdrawing from possession they authorised him at any time to re-enter & undertook not to remove any of the goods. On June 12, 1924, the high bailiff on the instruction of the judgment creditors withdrew from possession. The execution was ineffective, except in so far as it brought the parties into negotiation with a view to a settlement. The high bailiff made an application to the county ct. judge under the above rule, for an order for payment by the judgment creditors of his fees for keeping possession from May 15 to June 12. The county ct. judge found that the high bailiff did not withdraw from possession, but was in actual possession & not in mere walking possession.

- sion of the goods, & made an order for payment of the fees claimed:—Held: (2) the possession of the sheriff did not in the circumstances prevent the high bailiff from taking & keeping such possession as would entitle him to claim fees; (3) there was evidence to support the finding of the county ct. judge that the high bailiff did not withdraw from possession, but kept actual as distinct from walking possession; & therefore the order of the county ct. was right. —*A.
